Hodgdon foreman of the borough water department, Mr. Hodgdon succeeding John Crawford, of New London, employed as foreman for seven years and whose services were dispensed with last week because of the alleged failure of Crawford to co-operate with Supt. W. S. Jacobus. Mr. Hodgdon is a native of Groton and has been employed on the ferry-boats plying between New London and Groton and by the New London Ship & Engine company, besides having been employed for several years by the Groton water and light plant.

Two sailors, James E. Parker and Arthur James Roberts, from the coast guard steamer Porter, which vessel is engaged in chasing the ships that are loitering about rum row off Montauk awaiting an opportunity to get liquor ashore by means of small boats, were arrested Sunday night by Patrolmen Dorsey and Riordan. The sailors were on Main near State street, when Night Watchman Samuel Barnes heard a window crash. He pursued them but the sailors got away, running up the street in the direction of the state pier. He notified Policeman Dorsey and the latter recalled that he had just seen sailors pass him. With Policeman Riordan, the officer went to the state pier and there arrested Parker and Roberts. One of them was hatless. As a hat had been found at the site of the window smashing, the sailors were taken into custody. They were in the police court this morning. Both were under the influence of liquor, evidently having found some liquor before they got to the so-called rum row. They denied that they were concerned in the scrape, but the testimony of the officers was taken, nevertheless. An officer from the Porter was in court and appealed for the men in custody to be allowed to return to the ship, as the craft was ready to leave port. Judge Prince allowed them to go in the custody of the ship's officer with the understanding that they should appear for trial as soon as the Porter returned to this harbor.

The funeral of Hannah C., wife of Charles S. Williams, of Flanders, was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at her home and was attended by many mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. P. S. Collins. Relatives and acquaintances acted as bearers. Burial was in Flanders cemetery.

An automobile owned and driven by Henry J. Weldon, 73 Riverview avenue, in passing through Broad street this afternoon knocked down Louise Delick, of 19 Crouch street. The child was rushed to Lawrence hospital, where an examination showed that she had sustained injuries no more serious than bruises and scratches. After the injuries had been treated the child was taken to her home.

Funeral services for Mrs. Josephine A. Crosby were held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Raymond Peabody of Waterford, Rev. George H. Strouse, pastor of the First Baptist church, Waterford, officiating. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Guiseppi De Nono, 10 Shaw street, janitor of the Turello block, Bank street, who was taken into custody early Sunday morning on a charge of intoxication following his attempt to gain entrance to the basement of the structure, was not presented in the police court this forenoon. De Nono was allowed his liberty because of the circumstances attending his apprehension. De Nono was arrested when a neighbor observed him trying to get into the place and believing the janitor was a burglar, notified the police.

George Hunt, of Mystic, was in the Groton town court this morning, charged with non-support and intoxication. Hunt having been arrested Saturday by State Police Officer Giles Watson, of Groton barracks, following a row at the Hunt home. Hunt pleaded not guilty on both counts. He testified that he was employed by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad and his daily wage was $7. Judge Cornelius C. Costello ordered Hunt to pay his wife $20 weekly and ordered the accused to furnish a bond of $500 that he would live up to his agreement, or serve a term of 60 days in jail. Hunt could not provide a bondsman and went to jail. A suspended sentence was ordered of the charge of intoxication.

Mrs. Jessie Hatton, of Eastern Point was fined $100 and costs on a charge of violation of the liquor law and paid. Her son, Thomas Hatton, was also charged with violation of the liquor law, but his case was continued a week. The Hattons were arrested Saturday following a raid upon the Hatton home, where evidence was obtained that liquor was kept for sale.

Frederick Allyn, of Ledyard was fined $5 and costs for operating an automobile without having a license to do so.

In the case of Leslie Adams, of My-stic, charged with violation of the automobile law, a nolle was ordered.

J. D. Rizzo, a sailor on U. S. Coast Guard cutter Senaca, was fined $10 and costs, on a charge of intoxication.

Six of the fleet of 75-foot patrol boats from the local United States Coast Guard sectional base, state pier, that have been engaged with a dozen additional coast guard craft attempting to break up the trafficking of liquor in the sound by putting a stop to craft receiving supplies from the fleet of schooners off Rum Row, put into port early this evening and went to the state pier, where they will receive supplies before resuming their watchfulness off Montauk Point. The craft will return to patrol duty tomorrow or Wednesday. The destroyer CG-4, also put into port during the forenoon, and after receiving supplies and fuel, departed this evening for further sea duty.

Richard Henderson, Louis Sheldon, Mamie Hollway, and Corine Roberts, all colored and all residents of New London, were arrested late Sunday night charged with breach of the peace in Waterford. This afternoon the quartette were before Justice of the Peace Frederick L. Goss, at Waterford and each was fined $6 and costs. They paid. Henderson and Sheldon, together with their female companions, had been to a Waterford house, it is understood, and before they had decided to return to New London they became involved in an argument, which resulted in a fight. So boisterous was the conduct of the gang that the state police were notified and Officers Caron, Kennerson and Nelson were dispatched to the location of the row. When the officers reached the state highway the two men and two women were found and taken into custody. They were landed in the New London police station about midnight, but were later released on bail to await their trial this afternoon.

William L. Street, 451 Jefferson ave-nue, arrested late Saturday night by State Police Officer Nelson, charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor in Waterford, was not tried this afternoon before Justice of the Peace Goss, as was planned, for the case was continued one week. Street furnished a surety on his bond of $15 for appearance at that time.

Fire was discovered early this morn-ing in a small building on the premises of the New England Collapsible Tube company, Waller street. An alarm was sent in from Box 27, corner of Broad and Williams street, summoning the greater part of the city's fire apparatus. When the firemen reached the building, a small wooden structure, in which was stored rags and waste, the fire was burning briskly, but a liberal quantity of chemicals sufficed to extinguish the blaze in quick time. The damage was slight.

Miss Ethel Markow, Brooklyn, N. Y., has arrived in New London and will remain here the balance of the summer as the guest of her brother, Louis Markow, Ocean Beach.

Miss Marie Leverone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Leverone, has returned home, having spent several days in New York.

Russell H. Corcoran was today no-tified of his appointment by Judge Thomas of the United States district court as commissioner. Mr. Corcoran will get the busines of hearing the rum running cases that have heretofore been heard by Earl Matthewson of Norwich, who heard the cases after Frank L. McGuire resigned some few years ago. Mr. Corcoran is one of the youngest lawyers in New London. He has an office with Morris Lubchansky, a very capable lawyer. There has not been a great deal of business for a commissioner as he serves only in federal cases, but since the prohibition law has been in force the cases of seized boats and of rum runners over the road have gone before Commissioner Matthewson. The late Charles W. Butler was the commissioner at New London for many years, and he heard some very important cases, notably that of a mutiny on the brig Northern Light. He was succeeded by Mr. McGuire, who gave up the position when his business increased so that to attend to it was tax upon his time and energies.

Louis Lubchansky, 22 North Bank street, was arrested this evening by Patrolman Edward Riordan, charged with assaulting a child, the son of Mrs. Josephine Hoinski, 210 North Bank street and is scheduled to be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow morning. Lubchansky, it is understood, became annoyed at the conduct of the youth, and seizing the child struck him several vigorous blows. Mrs. Hoinski believed that Lubchansky had exceeded his authority and lodged complaint against the man.

The New Haven police believe they have a clue that may lead to the identity of the man that died aboard the fishing schooner M. J. Fitzsimmons at this port several days ago; tonight the New Haven authorities requested information as to where the body could be seen for the purpose of attempting to permit an identification. The body is at an undertaking establishment, but will be buried within a few days if identification is not established.

Michael Solomon returned to his home, Montauk avenue, late this afternoon, having undergone an operation for affection of the throat at a New York hospital.

PURCHASE OF AERIAL LADDER HAS TO BE DEFERRED

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, May 18—The city council this evening almost, but not quite, voted to purchase a Seagraves 75-foot extension aerial ladder for the fire department. The city manager recommended the purchase of that apparatus, but the La France company was a competitor in the bidding and the recommendation of the city manager was not adopted.

Councilor Scott pointed out that the city could not under the provisions purchase except from the lowest responsible bidder. He pointed out that the Windsor company and the White [illegible] company, which [illegible] bidders were commercial builders and that the experience of the city had not been such that it should be repeated. Councilor Streeter sided with him, saying that the bid of the La France company was made in accordance with the specifications and that the company should have the contract. Other discussion followed and then it was decided to refer the matter to a committee that would hear the matter of the merits of the two pieces of apparatus discussed. Foreman Pollock of the Konomoc company advocated the purchase of the Seagraves ladder.

CHAS. B. WHITTLESEY CHOICE FOR DIRECTOR OF LAW

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 18—Charles B. Whittlesey was this evening chosen director of law of the city of New London, to succeed Frank L. McGuire, resigned. The action of the council came as a surprise, for though it had been arranged by a majority of the members of that body—4 to 3 as usual—that Mr. Whittlesey was to be successor to Mr. McGuire, they kept the deal under cover and secreted the fact that he was a candidate. City Manager Holt this afternoon said that he was not aware that Mr. Whittlesey was after the place. Only one ballot was taken in the council this evening. Mr. Whittlesey had a majority so that his election was made unanimous. Councilman Whiton nominated Mr. Whittlesey and Councilor Murray nominated Thomas E. Troland. The latter nomination was seconded by Councilor Scott, and he and Councilmen Fox voted for Mr. Troland. The others voted for Mr. Whittlesey.

The resignation of Mr. McGuire was accepted as a matter of necessity as he positively refused longer to serve the city in the office he has filled during the past two years. Councilor Whiton in moving for the acceptance of the resignation, said that while he had differed with the attorney at times he recognized the ability of Mr. McGuire and the faithfulness with which he had discharged the great volume of work that had fallen to him at the request of the city manager and the members of the council. He asked that the council express its appreciation of his ability, his faithfulness to his duties and the creditable manner in which he had discharged his obligations to the city. Councilor Scott desired to and did express his sincere sorrow because Mr. McGuire would no longer remain as director of law for the city. He regretted that the constant criticism of certain members of the council had brought about the resignation. He regarded Mr. McGuire as one of the brightest and best legal minds in the minds in the state. Mr. Scott said he had talked with Mr. McGuire during the afternoon and found that he was determined not to longer serve the city and he annoyed by the criticism to which he had been subjected. There were no further remarks and the resignation was then accepted.

The council voted to buy fire hydrants and hose connections to be installed on Ocean avenue in connection with the new main being laid there.

William J. Tracey Voted $250

The council voted $250 to William J. Tracey, a young man who was injured last summer in diving from the float at Ocean Beach. The award was made on motion of Councilor Whiton, acting for the committee to which the matter was referred at the last meeting of the council. It was represented that Mr. Tracey was a veteran of the World War, that he had been wounded and that he still was suffering from injuries thus sustained. The committee reported that while the city was not legally liable for damages there was a moral obligation which should be recognized and recommended the award which the council voted.

The report of the special committee appointed to conduct the probe concluded several months ago to determine the efficiency of the police department, which report was handed to City Manager William A. Holt Friday by Councilor Streeter, secretary of the committee, has not been given the consideration and careful study that City Manager Holt intends it shall have, before he makes any recommendation to the city council and as a result the matter was not considered at the meeting tonight, but probably will be at the meeting to take place next week.

The report, which is signed by the full committee, Councillors Whiton, Streeter and Murray, is known to suggest many changes in the rules and regulations of the police department and that whatever changes be made, a strict adherence to and observance of the amended rules and regulations result. There is nothing in the report to indicate inefficiency on the part of any member of the department and nothing is said of demotion, retirement or dismissal of any member.

The supplementary report of Coun-cilor Streeter, which is signed by him as an individual and in no sense of the word a committee report, suggests the retirement of Captain Pinney and the demotion of Sergeants James D. Gaffney, now acting lieutenant; Nelson Smith and Patrick Murphy, pointing at inefficiency on their part. The report also suggests the elevating of Sergeant Samuel Hick to the office of captain and Sergeant John Cavanaugh to that of lieutenant, but as the suggestions are merely those of Councilor Streeter and are not recommended by the committee, it is safe to anticipate that the city manager will be prompted by any action he may take in the way of a recommendation solely by the suggestions contained in the committee's report.

Some members of the council have expressed surprise that Councilor Streeter should sign the report of the committee in which no recommendation is made of any of the members of the force being retired, demoted or dismissed and then submit his own report in which he recommends the retirement and demotion of certain officers.

Patrolman Timothy T. Sullivan was placed on the retired list at tonight's session, the retirement being recommended by City Manager Holt at the request of the officer because Sullivan has been in ill health a long time and has been off duty at present six months. The officer has been afflicted with asthma a long time and his physician has given the opinion that Sullivan will not be fit to perform police duty again. Patrolman Sullivan has been an officer 23 years.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET CONTINUES "BULLISH"

New York, May 18.—(A. P.)—The "bull" movement in stock prices today entered upon its third consecutive week. Continuance of easy money rates, hardening of commodity prices and increasing indications of trade expansion furnished the groundwork for the advance.

Two score issues were lifted to new peak prices for the year with the public utilities and motors giving the best demonstrations of group strength. High prices specialties again recorded the most spectacular gains. Nash Motors soared 31 1-2 points to 397, a new record price and more than 200 points above the year's low. Mack Trucks soared nearly 9 points to a new top figure at 173 3-4.

Net gains of 3 to nearly 7 points were recorded by Bush Terminal, Famous Players, Havana Electric Railway, National Lead, United Fruit, United States Cast Iron Pipe, Utah Securities and West Penn Power.

With the public imagination fired by rumors of new super power projects and reports of high current earnings by the principal power and light companies, public utilities were in brisk demand. American Water Works continued its remarkable advance by moving up 3 points to a new high record at 63 1-2, closing near the top. Detroit Edison, Electric Power and Light certificates, Brooklyn Edison and All-American Cables also bettered their previous 1925 high prices. Virginia Railway and Power was one of the few outstanding weak spots, breaking nearly 17 points to 103 and closing near the bottom.

Rumors of an early increase in Pennsylvania crude prices stimulated activity in the oil shares during the afternoon. Associated Oil standing out by climbing 5 points to a new 1925 high at 40. Houston closed nearly 3 points higher at 65 7-8 and net gains of a point or so were recorded by the Pan-American issues. Pierce Oil preferred, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Tidewater.

Certain-teed Products crossed 49 to a new high in anticipation of an early resumption of dividends. Other specialties for which there was a good demand were Marlin-Rockwell, Motor Wheel Corporation, Artloom Corporation, Crez Carpet, Yarnouth Pioneers common and preferred, Coca Cola, Union Bag and Paper, Advance Rumely preferred, Mathieson Alkali, Dupoint, Ward Baking A and Van Raalte Silk, all of which attained new maximum prices for the year.

Activity in the rails was confined to a relatively small number of issue. Frisco common and preferred and Chesapeake and Ohio were bid up to new peak prices for the year while Erie common, Missouri Pacific preferred, Canadian Pacific, Atlantic Coast Line and a few others sold 1 to 3 points higher.

The St. Paul issues held firm despite the announcement that the Interstate Commerce commission had ordered an investigation of the recent receivership proceedings. Wall Street was inclined to regard this as a bullish factor on the the theory that it would prove the bankers' contention that the action was unavoidable and that the road, together with others operating in the northwestern territory needed relief in the way of higher freight rates.

Call money held steady at 3 3-4 per cent. The time money market was slightly easier, 60 to 90 day funds being quoted on a flat 3 3-4 per cent basis and the longer dates at 4 per cent. commercial paper rates were unchanged.

The foreign exchanges moved within narrow and irregular limits. Demand sterling held firm above $4.85 but French francs were slightly easier around 5.18 1-2 cents.

Argentine exchange touched a new high on the current movement at 39.40 cents.

TAX ANALYSIS COMMITTEE REACHES AN AGREEMENT

Tax analysis committee, which has been divided on a majority and minority report, has at length reached a report upon which they have agreed and which will be presented to the citizens as the committee's recommendations of the method to be followed in effecting an equalization of property valuations for the grand list of the town.

This agreement was reached at a meeting held last Friday evening with twelve members of the committee in attendance, but Chairman James L. Cass stated Sunday night that he could only say that the report agreed upon will be a modification of both the other reports but it embodies the strong points of each. The matter has been referred back to the executive committee to put the report into shape for presentation to the town meeting that will be called.

VEGETABLE GROWERS FAVOR PUBLIC MARKET HERE

The Norwich Vegetable Growers' association at a recent meeting in the rooms of the New London County Farm Bureau in the Shannon building discussed plans for the establishing of a public market in this city.

The opinion of those present at the meeting was in favor for the establishment of such a market in Norwich. These markets are owned by the farmers and all of the products are sold from their wagons directly to the consumer, this doing away with the middleman's profit which is said to be responsible for high prices.

Told How to Make Up Rations.

The grain dealers of New London county met recently at the office of the New London County Farm Bureau in this city to hear an address on Making Up Rations, by Prof. J. A. Simms of the Connecticut Agricultural college, Storrs. Prof. Simms brought out some interesting facts relative to the preparation of rations.

GREENEVILLE

The many friends of Mrs. George Bailey, will be pleased to learn that she was able to return to her home on Central Avenue on Saturday, after having spent nearly ten weeks at the Backus Hospital, with a broken leg. Although unable to get around yet she can sit up each day and with the aid of crutches will soon be able to walk again.

Mrs. George A. Howard, of Central Avenue, had as her guests the past week, her two sisters, Mrs. Merton Darrow, and Miss Grace Clark of Niantic.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Shea of Prospect St., were visitors in Hartford on Saturday, where they went to attend the funeral of a relative, George Lucet, who was a patient at the Uncas-on-Thames for some time.

The Community Workers held their regular May meeting with Mrs. Harry Boyden of Prospect St., on Thursday afternoon with a large number of their members present and one visitor. The president, Mrs. Charles F. Sears, presided and a fine report was given by the acting secretary and treasurer, Mrs. John McNeely. Reports were also given by the members who distributed the May baskets to the sick and shutins and it was found that many hearts were made glad by this annual feature of the workers. The members were pleased to welcome back Mrs. John Scott, who has been detained at home for some time by sickness and after the meeting Mrs. Boyden delighted the members by playing selections on her Edison. It was found that one of the members had a birthday in May so at the conclusion of the meeting a dainty luncheon was served, the color scheme of the table being pink and white, and Mrs. William Link assisted Mrs. Boyden in serving. As usual the birthday cake was cut and served by the one who had the birthday and it was decided to hold the June meeting with Mrs. John McNeely of Boswell Avenue. This will be an outdoor picnic and a surprise basket luncheon has been planned for that day.

The Ladies' Aid of the Third Baptist church held an enjoyable social evening and food sale in the chapel on Friday evening. The Family Album was presented by a cast of fifteen people, with Mrs. James Spicer, taking the part of Mrs. Almira Pease.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH CONCLUDES CELEBRATION OF 125th ANNIVERSARY

A banquet for members of the church, followed by a reception and an anniversary programme brought the 125th anniversary celebration of the First Baptist church to a close about 10:30 o'clock Monday night. The anniversary banquet at 6:15 o'clock was attended by about 175 members of the church. The menu was as follows:

Roast Turkey
Mashed Potatoes — Dressing
Creamed Onions — Celery
Cranberry Sauce — Rolls
Coffee
Ice Cream — Wafers

Following the supper served in the assembly room at the church there was was an informal reception for the members and friends of the church, this taking place in the Sunday school room. Music was furnished by Swahn's orchestra and fruit punch was served under the direction of the committee in charge. An exhibit of church relics in the Sunday school room attracted much attention and was a center of interest for the members and friends of the church. In the exhibit were pictures of former pastors, deacons, officers and choir members, the first communion silver used in the church and a number of books containing the records of the church from its organization.

CHARLES R. CROSS
Senior Trustee

Anniversary Greetings.

About 8 o'clock the formal anniversary programme took place, with the reader and relative who showed the pictures. The food table was in charge of Mrs. George Howard and Mrs. William Sweet and a substantial sum will be added to the treasury from the proceeds. The affair was in charge of Mrs. William A. Lund, president of the Ladies' Aid, assisted by Mrs. Henry Sebastian. During the week Mrs. Lund was the recipient of a beautiful May basket containing a Pyrex casserole in a silver holder, which was hung to her by the members of the Aid, as a surprise gift, for her faithful service.

The beautiful basket of flowers which graced the pulpit at the Third Baptist church on Sunday, was loaned by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert I. Peckham as it was sent to them on Friday in honor of their silver wedding anniversary, by the members of the church.

Among those who will attend the annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary association of New London County at the Montauk avenue Baptist church in New London on Tuesday are Mrs. Herbert Peckham, Mrs. George A. Howard, Mrs. Irving Larkin, Mrs. Henry Sebastian, Mrs. Elmer Mulkin and Mrs. William A. Lund.

TAFTVILLE

Ulric Pepin, son of William Pepin and Miss Viola Ethier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Ethier of 25 North B Street were married Monday morning by Rev. U. O. Bellerose, at a nuptial high mass celebrated at Sacred Heart church. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Aldea Ethier, and the best man was Aime Pepin, brother of the groom. The church was filled with relatives and friends of the young couple and the chancel was prettily decorated with May flowers. The bride wore a gown of white satin, with veil of tulle, and carried a bouquet of roses. Her maid was attired in blue crepe de chine with hat to match. Following the ceremony at the church, there was a reception at the Naturalization Club, which was attended by many. The bride received many useful and valuable gifts. Both Mr. and Mrs. Pepin are popular among the young people of the village, and have many friends who extend to them their best wishes for a happy married life. After a short wedding trip, they will reside in a newly furnished home at Taft's station.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Smith and family of North B Street had as week end guests, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Laramee of Danielson and Miss Eva Stone and Miss Flora St. Cyr of Attawaugan.

The Community Sewing Class held their weekly meeting Monday evening in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building.

Extensive alterations have been completed at the Hillcrest Theatre, the stage having been remodelled and made larger. The interior has also been decorated and presents a most attractive appearance. The stage is now 32 by 22 feet and will be in use by Wednesday.

Inexpensive Mouth Wash

A six ounce bottle (60 cents) of Kojene added to water will make half a gallon of a better, more powerful and more pleasant mouth wash than you are now using.

And that's beating the high cost of keeping the mouth clean and pure—you'll have to admit.

No germs can live when this new and wonderful antiseptic is used. Try one bottle—you'll be so delighted you'll never care to go back to the weak ones again. At Lee & Osgood's and all progressive druggists.

You don't need to make it all at once—a teaspoonful makes a tumblerful.

tion by Rev. Mr. Dunbar, brought the anniversary observance to a close.

Historical Sketch.

The history of the First Baptist church as an organization began in February 1800, but before that year people calling themselves, "people of God," met for the purpose of prayer. These meetings as early as 1790 were held in the homes of individuals, including Ephraim Story and Elijah Herrick and in the year 1797 were organized as a branch or mission of the church at Kingston, R. I.

At these early meetings there were no regular ministers and the meetings were mostly for singing, prayer and testimonials. The people who attended these meetings in many places were not looked upon with favor but in Norwich there was little opposition and the meetings flourished.

The First Baptist church owes much to John Sterry and Dewey Bromley for these two men with 26 others organized the church in February 1800 and in October of the same year Mr. Sterry was elected pastor and Mr. Bromley deacon.

The early place for baptism was in the Yantic river not far north of the present Central Vermont Railroad station.

The first house of worship was completed in 1807 after a work of five years, upon a lot on High street, presented to them by Mr. Hall. In efforts to raise money a petition was sent to the state legislature for privilege to hold a lottery but this was refused for three reasons, 1st, the Baptists did not endorse existing ecclesiastical laws; 2nd, the Baptists were not known in law as a denomination; 3rd, the pastor was a co-editor of a republican paper. At this time the church and state laws were enacted by the same legislature.

MISS MAZIE I. STAMM

Elder John Sterry died November 5, 1823, in his 57th year. During his pastorate 177 had been received by baptism, ten by letter, a total of 187.

By 1833 the church had outgrown the old meeting house and in that year the larger meeting house was erected, this being the church now occupied by Mt. Calvary Baptist church.

In 1840, on August 26th a meeting of the church voted to erect a church in a more central part of the city. On September 15, 1840, the Central Baptist church was formed and publically recognized seven days later with Rev. M. G. Clark as pastor.

Rev. William Palmer was recalled to the First church, the old meeting house hired and church began with 20 members. In 1845, Martin H. Rising, a student at Suffield preached in the church and became its pastor. Assisted by Rev. D. D. Lyon and Rev. C. S. Weaver, he began the greatest revival the church has ever known. The city aroused and hundreds were converted.

In 1876 there was talk of disbanding the church and except for Elder Curtis Keesey this might have happened. Captain Morgan as messenger of the church went to Peekskill, N. Y., and after two days of pleading induced Rev. C. C. Frost to come to Norwich.

During his term in 1884 the new church was built, the first meeting in the new chapel being held on January 29, 1882. Following this the church thrived and today over 3,000 have been added to its membership from time to time.

During the pastorate of Rev. Herbert E. Wise the church gained over 40 in membership. In 1907, Rev. William T. Thayer came to the church and during the last year of his pastorate, in 1910 the church burned the mortgage with appropriate services.

In the year 1900 during the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary the tablet in memory of Rev. John Sterry was dedicated, and during the service Sunday was draped in memory of the first pastor who served faithfully for 23 years, the longest pastorate of any minister of the church.

During the past few years new floors have been laid in the church school room, new carpeting in the church, the interior of the church has been done over, new electrical fixtures installed, a new heating plant put in, the church renovated both inside and outside, in all making the structure far superior to the one first erected in 1884.

Brief Historical Notes

Church organized in 1800.

First pastor was Rev. John Sterry who also had the longest pastorate, 23 years.

Joseph W. Carroll held the office of deacon for a period of 57 years.

Mrs. Lydia B. Davis, now of Hartford, was baptised March 9, 1856, thus having been a member nearly 75 years. The church, Sunday morning, voted to send her a basket of flowers in memory of her membership, the oldest living member. Other long standing members are: Miss Elizabeth Webb, 1867; Mrs. Nancy Perkins, 1867, Mrs. Lucy Sparks, 1871; Mrs. Maria Smith, 1872; Mrs. Lillian Cross, 1876. Two members are now over ninety, Mrs. Harriet Olcott and Mrs. Caroline Beebe. Mrs. Lydia Davis will be 90 next June.

Pastors, deacons, deaconesses and clerks of the First Baptist church since 1800 have been as follows:

Turns Right Out Itself

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

PANIC CAUSED BY A SHORT CIRCUIT IN N. Y. SUBWAY

About 100 Persons Were Injured in East Side Subway Train a Block From the Grand Central Terminal—Of Nearly 1,000 Persons in the Six-Car Steel Train, About Half Tried to Fight Their Way Toward Exits—Firemen and Policemen Plunged Into the Tunnel and Assisted Women to the Street.

New York, May 19.—(By The A. P.)—Trapped in a smoke-filled, unlighted tube thirty feet underground, about 100 persons—men, women and children—were injured in a panic which followed an electrical short circuit which set fire to an East Side subway train a block from the Grand Central Terminal station today.

Eighty-six of the victims received treatment at first aid stations hastily improvised in nearby hotels and in hospitals. The remainder made their way to their homes without having left their names with the authorities. One woman suffered fractures of both legs when trampled in a terror driven rush for windows and emergency exits. The others suffered from partial suffocation, cuts and bruises received in the riotous rush, or from shock and hysteria.

There were probably 1,000 persons in the six-car steel train, a southbound local from the Bronx Park. Half of them tried to fight their way through the acrid smoke clouds toward exits which were in some instances six blocks from the scene of the accident.

It was at first thought that two women were near death of internal injuries, but later examination at St. Vincent's hospital revealed that their hurts would not be fatal. Most of the victims had their clothing badly torn in the underground flight through the smoke and dark. Three school girls had their shoes torn from their feet.

At Forty-First street, a block below the Grand Central Terminal Station, there was a loud report, and a sheet of flame came from between the fifth and sixth cars. The "jumpers" which connect the cars electrically had "shorted." The lights flickered out as the motorman, Harry Post, shut off the train current and threw on his brakes, the sudden, lurching stop throwing scores to the floors.

The real panic occurred a few moments later after Post had started up his train in an effort to get it to the next station, Thirty-Fourth street. He had run less than a block when there was another flash and all the lights on the train, with the exception of a few emergency bulbs supplied with electricity by car motors, blew out in a series of explosions.

Immediately the six cars became a swirling mass of shrieking humanity. Women and girls threw themselves on the car floors in hysterical attempts to get below the clouds of swirling acrid smoke that filled their eyes and lungs. A few men tried to stem the rising tide of fear, but without avail.

One girl literally dived through a window, the shattered glass ripping half her clothes from her body and slashing her about the head and back. Two other women swept helplessly by the panic tide, were hurled through windows to the roadbed, falling dangerously near the highly-charged third rail.

All began groping thir ways toward exits, stumbling through the choking dark, some of them toward Thirty-Fourth street six blocks away, while others had the mental presence to seek the exits at Grand Central, two blocks off. Post, a veteran motorman of eighteen years' experience, groped his way to an emergency power switch and turned off the power in the third rail.

The din rose to the street above, Park avenue, where a patrolman's eye was caught by a wisp of gaseous smoke that swirled from a manhole. He summoned ambulances, firemen and police reserves and plunged into the tunnel and assisted a number of women to the street.

The fashionable Hotel Vanderbilt at Park avenue and Thirty-Fourth street, the Commodore, the Murray Hill and the Park Avenue hotels hastily organized their staffs into emergency workers and the sufferers were given first aid treatment. Internes installed an operating table on the Grand Central Station platform and took care of thirteen victims there. Lounges and dining rooms in all the hotels, including the famous Della Robbia room at the Vanderbilt, were turned into emergency hospital stations. The more serious cases were sent in ambulances to Bellevue, St. Vincent's, Flower and other hospitals.

There were several reports of cowardice and lack of gallantry and consideration on the part of many of the men passengers, but there also were tales of bravery and gallantry, one of these, in which the chivalrous youth involved did not tarry to give his name, concerned the rescue of the four-month-old baby boy of Mrs. Calia Walker, of the Bronx. The youth took the child from Mrs. Walker's arms and disappeared. Ten minutes later when the hysterical mother stumbled from the tube at Thirty-Fourth street, sobbing for her child, the gallant stranger stepped forward, placed it in her arms, doffed his hat, and disappeared in the crowd.

Thomas Odges, a lumberman from Akron, O., and Patrolman George Deno were the bearers of different tales. Hodges, who was a passenger in the fourth car, commented bitterly on the conduct of some of the men aboard, declaring that many of them had trampled women and children in their flight. Reno arrived at the Thirty-Fourth street exit just as the first of the fugitives were coming out. He saw burly men knocking hysterical women about in their race for the air. The patrolman tore off his coat and flung himself into the seething mass, knocking down five men before he turned his attention to the business of rescuing the women.

A. L. Merritt, traffic superintendent of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, took charge of the company's rescue workers a few minutes after the accident occurred. He paid high tribute to the presence of mind displayed by Motorman Post, saying his action in switching off the third rail power undoubtedly had saved the lives of many of the panic victims.

U. S. STANDS FOR OPEN DOOR AT ARMS CONFERENCE

Geneva, May 19—(A. P.)—The United States took a strong stand for the maintenance of the principle of the open door at the International Conference of Armaments. The Dutch delegation had introduced a proposal that control of the arms traffic should not apply to the despatch of arms and munitions to territories of the exporting countries and that especially there should be no control when arms were forwarded from and to the mother country for use of its armed forces.

Representative Theodore E. Burton, head of the American delegation declared this would exclude from the convention's operations all shipments, both governmental and private, from mother countries to their dominions. If troops in Canada or Australia were recruited by and belonged to these dominions, Mr. Burton believed they should not be exempt from the provisions of the convention.

He contended the proposition struck at a doctrine which the world was coming more and more to recognize—that of the so-called open door.

WORKING ON REVISION OF MEXICAN DEBT AGREEMENT

New York, May 19—Reported progress made toward a revision of the Mexican debt agreement may pave the way for a resumption of interest payments on Mexico's $5,000,000,00u external debt on July 1, according to private advices received in Wall St. Operation of the debt plan was suspended last July when Mexico defaulted on the first semi-annual payment for 1924.

Members of the international committee of bankers on Mexico which negotiated the debt agreement with Finance Minister Adolfo de la Huerta in 1922 were unable to confirm the reports that payments would be resumed and said there had been recent negotiations. Bankers generally accepted the rumors with reserve although Wall street has been under the impression for some time that the Mexican financial authorities were aiming toward a restoration of the agreement in a modified form.

SELECTING JURY FOR TRIAL OF W. D. SHEPHERD

Chicago, May 19—(A. P.)—Faces changed in the jury box but no progress was made in obtaining the 12 men for the trial of William Darling Shepherd, charged with slaying his young foster-son, William Nelson McClintock, by administering typhoid germs.

INDICTMENT MADE FOR BABY INSTITUTION

New York, May 19—The first indictment for baby substitution in the 242 years history of the New York criminal courts was returned today against Mrs. Helen Augusta Geisenvolk, former German Red Cross nurse and proprietor of an East 86th street "baby farm" by the May grand jury.

At the same time the additional grand jury heard evidence on which a charge of manslaughter is being sought against Mrs. Geisenvolk.

The state board of charities at a meeting today took steps to obtain legislation giving authorities more strict control of infants' boarding houses such as that which Mrs. Geisenvolk operated.

The indictment against the "baby farm" owner charges that she substituted baby boy of Mrs. Mary Shimus for Stephen Angerer, infant son of William Angerer. Stephen has not yet been found.

Annual Address by Bishop Brewster

The Late Gardiner Greene Among Those For Whom Words Were Spoken in Eulogy.

New Haven, Conn., May 19—A. P.—The Right Rev. Chauncey B. Brewster, Protestant Episcopal bishop of Connecticut this afternoon, in his address to the clergy and laity delegates in diocesan convention in Trinity church, again asked that a bishop coadjutor, with right in succession to the bishopric, be chosen by the body. He said that a young man's hand on the helm was needed, and in his request he specifically stated just what duties he desired the bishop coadjutor to assume in administration of the diocese.

As is the usual way the convention was opened with prayer and the reading by the bishop of the names of clergy and laity who have died since the last convention, and after these names had been read, and words spoken in eulogy of them, prayer was again offered.

Among the laity who have answered the last unions were mentioned A. Hatch Robertson, of New Haven, Robert Elliott DeForest, of Bridgeport, Ralph Palmer Smith, of Litchfield, LeGrand Jackson, of Norwalk, Capt. R. H. Hullings, of the same city Samuel G. Redshaw, of Ansonia, Judge Gardiner Greene, of Norwich, George William Ellis, of Waterbury, and others. The bishop also mentioned the names of many women members who have died including Mrs. Ella R. Hinman Heminway of Watertown, Mrs. Harriet G. Buck, of Derby, and Mrs. Hannah Louise Smith, of Norwalk.

Speaking of clergymen who have gone to their reward, the bishop paid tribute to the memory of the Rev. Ernest deFremery Miel, of Hartford, saying he had the gifts "which win friendship and was probably the most beloved of all our clergy."

The total number of persons confirmed in the diocese during the year is 2,226, the bishop announced. In the year Bishop Brewster officiated on 219 occasions; delivered 231 sermons and addressed and confirmed 1,123 persons. The suffragan bishop in the same time has confirmed 1,104 persons, the bishop said.

The number of clergy belonging to the diocese at present is: Bishops, two; presbyters, 197; deacons, six; making a total of 205, he said. An additional fourteen presbyters officiating under the bishop's license, makes the total number of clergy within the diocese 219.

Of the 24 candidates for holy orders during the past year, four have been ordained and one has been transferred, the bishop reported. At present there are 19 candidates and 18 postulates for holy orders. Nineteen deaconesses and trained women workers are serving in the diocese, while there are 51 lay readers regularly licensed, the bishop announced.

MYSTIC WILL HAVE NEW POST OFFICE

Mystic, May 19, 1925.

Announcement was made Tuesday by the post office department of the awarding of the contract for the new post office building in Mystic to the William McDonald Construction Co. of St. Louis, for the sum of $43,736. The building will be a single story structure of brick and hollow tile construction, 64 feet long and 62 feet wide. The price submitted by the St. Louis company includes payment for the installation of approaches to the building, plumbing, heating and electric wiring.

The new post office building will be erected at the corner of East Main and Willow streets, Mystic, upon the site purchased for that purpose several years ago. The contract calls for the building completed by May 16, 1926, a year from the day the contract bid was accepted.

The William McDonald Co. figures were the lowest among those submitted by nine contracting firms. The Algernon-Blair Co. of Montgomery, Ala., submitted a bid of $45,345, and the A. M. Lundberg Co. of St. Louis submitted a bid of $45,600. The figures of the other firms were not made known.

An appropriation of $55,000 was granted by congress about 10 years ago to cover the cost of a new post office and a suitable land site. The project was delayed for several years until the war period when action was taken, but owing to the rapid inflation of prices for building materials and labor, none of the contractors were able to submit a bid within the appropriation. Two attempts were made to secure bids, but in each case the lowest figure exceeded the appropriation.

EARL WOODWARD CLEARED OF KIDNAPPING CHARGE

Middlebury, Vt., May 19—(A. P.)—Earl Woodward, charged with the kidnapping of 11 year old Lucille Chatterton of Granville April 24, was discharged "for lack of evidence" sufficient to hold him for a jury trial in Addison county municipal court late today.

Immediately upon Woodward's discharge, State's Attorney Wayne C. Bosworth, filed a complaint of the larceny of the blanket alleged to belong to a neighbor of Walter Chatterton, father of the girl, in Granville. Counsel for Woodward asked that he be admitted to bail and bail was fixed in the sum of $50. This was furnished by Professor Llewellyn R. Perkins, Professor of Mathematics at Middlebury college.

As Woodward went free from the courtroom the crowd engaged in a demonstration which included cheers and handclapping. Those near the farmhand, who had declared that he took the girl away so that she could go to school, pressed forward and shook his hand.

The action followed testimony by the father and mother of the girl, the county sheriff and Lucille herself concerning the disappearance of the girl from her home with Woodward and the week of hunting through the hills by posses until she and Woodward were found—the girl unharmed.

MISS MACRI TELLS JURY OF RELATIONS WITH BAGNANO

Accused Girl was Composed as She Went Through the Ordeal of Testifying in Her Own Defense—Story Related Today Covered Her Early Association With the Murdered Man and Had Not Reached the Period When Their Relations Ceased to be Chaste When Court Adjourned For the Day—As Witness Left the Stand She Appeared Faint.

New Haven, May 19—(A. P.)—Olympia Macri, on trial here for the murder of John Bagnano February 26, took the witness stand in her own defense late today and told the jury how she had met Bagnano and was questioned regarding her relations with the young man. She had completed but the preliminary part of her story when court was adjourned for the day.

Before the girl defendant took the stand, the court room had been cleared of spectators, with the exception of newspaper men and a small group of women comprising members of her immediate family and society women. Nicholas Macri, her father, was not in the court room nor were any members of the Bagnano family.

Miss Macri showed no signs of nervousness on the stand and spoke in a well-modulated voice. In reply to questions put to her by Joseph Koletsky, her counsel, she said she was born in Meriden, Conn., and believed herself to be 18 years of age at the present time.

"When the first time you met John Bagnano?" she was asked.

"On Christmas eve in 1921," she replied.

"The first time I met him we were playing cards. He sat down and played too."

"How long did he stay?"

"Until 11:30 p. m. I was 15 when I first met him. He wanted me to meet him the next night, but I couldn't.

"Did you meet him the next night?"

"No. The next day I met his brother and he asked me why I didn't meet John. He said his brother had waited two hours for me. He told me that John wanted to go steady with me and would like to marry me when I became a little older. Later that week I met John and he asked me why I didn't meet him and I explained that I couldn't go out at night with fellows. He noticed a ruby ring on my finger that my mother had given me. He told me to give it back to the fellow. He thought that I was going steady with some other fellow. He said: 'I will give you a diamond.' I used to meet him quite often after that when I was walking. He used to bring figs to me because I liked them."

"Up to this time did he ever make any immoral advances?"

"No, he was always good to me."

"About two weeks later I got a phone call from his mother. She asked me to come and see John because he was sick. When I got there she said that John was sick for me. He wanted to marry me, she said. Then she showed me a hope chest. About two days later John met me. He was all dressed up and had about $300. He wanted me to go and buy some clothes and then go to Boston with him."

"You didn't go, did you?"

"No, I left the shop where I was working and got another job."

"Did he meet you at the new place?"

"Yes, one day he came to meet me and I said: 'Are you still bothering me?' He asked me again to marry him. I said: 'I'll never marry you. I made up my mide to it.' Then we shook hands and parted. He said: 'I'll always respect you because you were a good girl. That's why I wanted to marry you.'"

"Did John get married after that?"

"Yes."

"Did you ever meet his wife?"

"Yes."

"You were still friends with him?"

"Yes."

"Did you ever meet John again after that?"

"Yes. I met him one day on Chapel street. He told me his wife just had a baby boy and I congratulated him."

"Did you ever meet his wife after that?"

"Yes, about a year later. I asked her about her baby and she said it was outside. She waited until I got through working and then I went outside to see him." At this point, Judge Avery adjourned court, until tomorrow. As Miss Macri left the witness stand she appeared faint.

Several preliminary witnesses were heard during the day including Joseph Candee, a photographer, who identified pictures of scratches and a stab wound on the body of Miss Macri after she had been taken to the county jail following the shooting; Dr. Harry A. Conte, who testified to being called to the home of the Bagnano family about two weeks before the shooting and hearing Mrs. Carolina Bagnano, wife of John Bagnano, make a bitter remark to her husband because of his treatment of Miss Macri; Constable Frederick C. Sperry, of Orange, who testified he had never seen Miss Macri in Orange as had been testified to by a witness for the state; a clerk at the Acme Wire company, who produced employment records, called for by the defense in an attempt to prove that Bagnano could not have met Miss Macri at the hours set by a witness for the state; three school officials whose records were sought by the defense to show the confusion that exists relative to Miss Macri's age; Dr. James H. Geddings, who was questioned by the defense attorney regarding the technical phases of the assault alleged to have been made on Miss Macri by the slain man, and five character witnesses for Miss Macri.

FULL MILITARY HONORS AT FUNERAL OF LIUT-GENERAL NELSON A. MILES

Washington, May 19—With the full splendor of military honors due his rank and valor, Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles, veteran among veterans, was laid to his rest today amid the comrades of many brave days who keep their last watch together in Arlington National cemetery.

Long ago, before his active army life had ended, the gallant soldier stood upon the bold promentory that juts out beneath ramparts of grass at old Fort Myer in the Virginia hills and looked down across the river to the tree sheltered city beyond. He willed it then that his last sleep should be upon that quiet slope, and tonight his wish had been realized.

Aside from the high military honors befitting his place in the service he loved, the funeral rites were brief and simple. It remained for the army, navy and marine corps, trooping in escort with the columns filled by trudging, sun-browned lads, to testify to the tradition of sturdy loyalty to the flag he had handed on to them.

The president and high officials of the government had gathered in St. John's church, near the white house, before that clattering cavalry heralded the coming of the gun carriage that bore the flag draped casket on this last journey. Gathered with them were a few old friends of the veteran, many bent with age and a few clad in the uniforms of another day in the sister services.

Eight general officers of the army, only one of whom is on the active list and who was the official representative of the active army, one rear admiral, long ago retired, and a civilian friend were the honorary pallbearers for the dead leader. Sturdy young noncommissioned men of the army of today, trim in olive drab and tan trappings, bore the heavy casket.

Outside, the orderly ranks of infantry, cavalry, engineers and artillery, headed by the big army band, waited to lead the long march to Arlington. With them stood the natty blue-clad ranks of a marine battalion, and beyond these the youngsters of the navy in blue and with spotless white watch caps marking off the solid block of the naval column.

The church service was brief. Then as the casket was carried out again to be strapped high on the caisson, the column swung down the tree shaded streets to the highway bridge and on the hills to the waiting vault near the old fort. Behind the caisson came Major Sherman Miles, the soldier son, whose homecoming from duty in Europe was saddened by this pageant.

Behind the motor cars moved the little columns of veterans of two wars and many Indian campaigns who claimed the general as one of their number. Comrades of the Civil War were too aged for military display, but the graying veterans of the Spanish War, who soldiered under his command, still kept their proud stride in his honor.

As the caisson rolled through the gates at the tomb, the first minute gun drummed out in salute from the garrison at Fort Myer, accompanied by the slow half step beat of marching feet on the roadway, the dulled rumble of muffled drums and the deep notes of the dirge.

The service of committal at the door of the tomb was very brief. At its conclusion a squad of riflemen stepped out, the triple volley of the soldier requiem crashed, and the soft, slow, bugle notes of "Taps" called a last good night to General Miles.

The police court as it sits in today is without a deputy judge and a prosecuting attorney. Deputy Judge Curtis Dean gave notice some time ago that he did not desire a reappointment to that office. ### TWO DOZEN BOYS FEAST AS GUESTS OF ROTARIANS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, May 19—Thirty-four youths, the guests of as many Rotarians, made merry at the annual Father and Son banquet of the Willimantic Rotary club, held in the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday night. At 6:30 o'clock the gathering was seated and President John Ahern sounded the order bell. While good things to eat, prepared by the Auxiliary of the "Y" and served by high school girls, was being laid in appetizing array on the tables, the junior guests were introduced and applauded as they arose for recognition. President Ahern was handicapped through the partial loss of his speech and vice president James P. Bath became temporary presiding officer. He called for a series of lively songs, which were led by Ray Parker with Doc Jones at the piano and Ralph H. Gibson with the violin. The boys then sang the national anthem after which they recited in lusty voices the pledge of allegiance to the Flag. After singing "School Days" the youngsters sat down to the pleasant business of appeasing hearty appetites. Roll call and the minutes were read by secretary pro tem Girard E. Loisel. Dr. R. Bullock Jones gave a report on Ladies' Night which will take place next Tuesday evening and which promises to outclass anything of that nature ever attempted locally. Dr. William E. Hendry was welcomed back after a trip to a foreign city. Dick Dodge stated that Frank Haggard, of the Hartford Rotary club, would speak at Storrs Congregational church Sunday morning at 10 o'clock and invited any who desired to attend. He further announced that on the evening of Tuesday, June 2 the Rotary club would be guests of the Exchange club at St. Paul's Episcopal church Parish house, where Samuel Chesbro will give an illustrated lecture on his recent tour of Europe. In stating that on July 16 the yearly outing of the Norwich, New London, Putnam and Willimantic Rotary clubs will be held at Storrs, President Ahern named as a committee to represent Willimantic in making arrangements—Harry W. Standish, Girard E. Loisel and G. Everett Harrington. A joint meeting of the four committees will be held in Norwich next Monday evening.

Dick Dodge, chairman of the programme committee was then placed in charge of the meeting. He first presented Mayor George W. Hickey, who told the boys that they were playing a prominent part in civic life and that he had confidence they would fulfil their duties when it became time for them to carry on the welfare of their city. Past President Harry W. Standish made remarks on The Meaning of Rotary. He explained the functioning of Rotary and its sister organizations and asked the junior guests to develop the spirit of co-operation in order to gain victory and happiness in life. The programme was concluded by one hour of entertainments by Bennett Springer of Boston whose magical stunts confused and highly pleased the "big" and small boys. His tricks called for the assistance of several of the youngsters which occasioned much delight.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

Miss Lucille Bowen, the talented little lady from Greeneville, will appear at the Palace tonight and if anyone wants further proof that some of the stars of tomorrow are in Norwich today all we ask is that you come and see this little lady perform. Possessing the grace and confidence of a seasoned performer with a routine of dances and novelty songs with the ability to put them over, Miss Bowen will, we predict, be the outstanding feature of a splendid array of local talent.

Tony Messina, the wizard on the strings, will offer a new musical programme and those who had the pleasure of hearing him on Monday night compared his playing with Roy Smeck who was the sensation of Paul Specht's orchestra.

The Tip Top Harmonizers, Miss Mary Cosento and Mr. Loakhandl complete the bill.

On Friday Jewett City will be represented by a Symphony orchestra of 25 pieces from the St. Mary's Parochial school. Here is an aggregation of young musicians possessing unusual talent that will be a rare treat to the patrons of the Palace. In addition to the Symphony orchestra the girls from St. Mary's school will present their Butterfly Pageant with music. There are twenty-five in the cast, and Friday night will indeed be a big night so patrons are advised to make preparations to come early.

The vaudeville bill today is headed by Arthur Alexander & Co., in a southern singing and dancing act entitled, Melody Land.

The opening act is Will Snell, head balancer, performing a number of novelty tricks while standing on his head.

Marjorie and Jean Doyle are a couple of pretty comedy singers who put over their act in big time style and go big with the audience.

Dorothy Nielson and Co. present a very clever musical act, executing some difficult numbers both on the violin and the cello.

Tim and Betty furnish the comedy stuff, which just keeps the audience roaring.

Who gives the Follies girls the beautiful names? Who suggests to them the selection of such poetic cognomens as Jacqueline Logan, Kathrene Perry, Ann Pennington, Mae Murray and Marilyn Miller?

Flo Ziegfeld helps much, declared Lilyan Tashman, herself a Follies graduate, who plays an important role in B. P. Schulberg's production, "The Parasite," now playing at the Palace theatre.

"A part of Ziegfeld's showmanship," says the beautiful Miss Tashman, "is his ability to choose euphonic names that the public remembers easily."

Broadway Theatre.

An intimate description of the Marquis de la Falaise de la Coudraye, whose marriage to Gloria Swanson, star in Paramount pictures, took place in Paris recently, is given by Forrest Halsey, the playwright and scenario writer, who spent six months in Paris during the filming of Miss Swanson's newest picture, Madame Sans Gene.

Mr. Halsey is the only person in the United States who knows the marquis intimately, and what he has to say of him no doubt will be of interest to all motion-picture devotees.

"I introduced the Marquis de la Falaise to Miss Swanson," explained Mr. Halsey, "in that way perhaps I might be considered the father of the romance. They consider me so, as I received a cablegram, signed by both of them, saying 'your children have done it.' Falaise first came into the unit to represent a number of young men of money who were ambitious to invest in motion pictures in France. They were anxious to learn American methods. The first thing he asked me to do in the unit was to cut off his title; his chair on the set was marked 'Mr. Falaise.' The blood of the Hennessys which created business industry is strong in Falaise.

"The romance began very slowly as both Miss Swanson and Falaise were devoting themselves strictly to the business of making a picture under very difficult circumstances. I think both youngsters were deeply in love with each other without knowing it; well, they knew it now, so does all Paris and America."

Gloria's latest picture, sensation, Madame Sans Gene, opens at the Broadway Sunday.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

The second annual Windham County Older Girls' conference is to be held at the Congregational church here next Saturday and Sunday. This conference, following the successful one held last year, will attract delegations from various country towns and careful preparations have been made to insure that their visit to Danielson will be both profitable, interesting and gratifying.

All the visitors who desire will be entertained in homes in Danielson over Saturday night and during Sunday. A luncheon and a fellowship supper are to be features of the conference, which is under the auspices of the Connecticut Sunday school association.

This is a memorable week for Moses H. Berthiaume, Jr., who is observing the 25th anniversary of his entry as a junior clerk into an occupation that has brought him a large measure of success and established him as one of the best known and most progressive business men of Danielson.

It was at Dayville in May, 1900, that Mr. Berthiaume first came into active touch with the retail drug business. He applied himself in the manner that ever has been characteristic of him and eventually began a course of study at the Massachusetts college of pharmacy, from which he was graduated as a pharmacist in 1905. He successfully passed the Connecticut examinations and registered in this state.

Mr. Berthiaume remained at Dayville until 1912, when he came to Danielson to fill a position as registered pharmacist, retaining it until just prior to entering business for himself August, 1917.

Naturally a builder and tireless worker, he has, since 1917, built for himself, a lucrative business, rating second to none in the line in this corner of the state. At this period of his silver anniversary in the business world Mr. Berthiaume has just completed the installation of a complete new equipment of modern and ornate store fixtures, making his store up to the minute in its appointments and appearance.

Still a young man and well on the high road of success Mr. Berthiaume is this week receiving the congratulations of his associate business men and of the large clientele he serves. He has been ever richly deserving of the success he has achieved, demonstrating once again in this hurrying age that the old rule of constant application, keen perception, courtesy and good judgment are as potent factors as ever in bringing to those with the will to work and save those emoluments that are the hope of all in active walks of life. Incidentally, Mr. Berthiaume has again demonstrated that Danielson may be made a field of successful enterprise—that all successes are not achieved in the seething marts of a city.

Chief A. P. Woodward of the fire department will have his captains and drivers assemble this (Wednesday) evening for a conference. Chief Woodward will give a talk on the new statute, effective July 1, fixing penalties for drivers of motor vehicles who race fire apparatus that is responding to an alarm or block approaches to the location of a fire. This particular law is going to be enforced in Danielson. Due notices are given of the intent of the authorities here to break up the practice of motorists in hindering the firemen and making traveling to a fire dangerous for them. The new law provides for arrest and court penalties for those who violate its provisions. If warnings here are not effective, it is believed a few arrests will bring the desired results. Chief Woodward will explain the new law in detail at the conference scheduled for this evening.

Scores of striking employes of the American Thread company at Willimantic have applied for work in mills in Danielson and in other nearby towns during the past few weeks, it is stated by men in a position to know. Few of the applicants have been successful in obtaining work. At this distance from Willimantic there are many who find it difficult to understand the philosophy of strikers holding out for a restoration of a 10 per cent wage cut and yet seeking employment in plants where a similar or even more drastic cut has been made, along with a previous reduction in pay, and accepted by hundreds of workers who earn less on the average, than the majority of those on strike at the American Thread company plant. Possibly this is one of the things that are too complicated for the average mortal to comprehend, but it is of interest to students of economic conditions nevertheless.

Miss Susan Collins of the operating force at the central telephone exchange is on vacation this week.

F. E. Bitgood will be a member of the Connecticut party of Shriners that will leave New Haven Saturday on a special train bound for Los Angeles. F. W. Tillinghast of Central Village also will be a member of the party.

Francis E. Storer is at New Haven today (Wednesday) attending the diocesan convention of the Episcopal church as a representative of St. Alban's parish.

Leo McDonald is recovering at his home on Academy street after an illness of nearly a week.

Danielson firemen have been notified of an event to be held by the firemen of Plainfield on a Saturday in June and are invited.

Spring seemed to hit its full stride Tuesday, when the mercury climbed up to 76 degrees.

Shortly after 7 o'clock Tuesday morning an alarm called out the fire department for a chimney fire at a dwelling owned by W. K. Pike on Hutchins street.

Mr. and Mrs. James Honohan and members of their family have been recent visitors with relatives in Providence.

This is the last day for paying Killingly town taxes. Collector James R. Walsh will be receiving payments today from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. After today interest will be charged.

Louis A. Lavarence of Central Falls was a visitor with friends in Danielson Tuesday.

Mrs. Catherine Duggan, 70, died Tuesday forenoon at her home on Tiffany street after an illness that had been serious for some time. Mrs. Duggan was a native of Ireland, born February 2, 1846. Mrs. Duggan was one of Danielson's oldest residents and had lived for nearly half a century on the street where she died. She was the widow of John Duggan, who had been dead for many years. Mrs. Duggan leaves five daughters, Mary, who is in Maine, Mrs. Katherine Wilder of Ludlow, Mass., and Misses Bridget, Norah and Margaret, all at home.

The village of Eastford has a new institution in a nursery opened there recently in a farm house. The nursery has been opened for the care of babies whose parents are obliged to work, or travel, or for any other reason wish to leave their little ones under the care of a motherly or professional trained nurse. While such an institution is nothing new there has never been anything of the kind in this part of the state so far as known. It is said that every little bed is extremely clean and each little baby gets the best of care.

Miss Mae Payne of South Main St. has gone to Montreal, to spend the summer.

Class Day parts have been assigned to members of the senior class of the Putnam High school in preparation for the exercises during the commencement week. Class Day will be held on the evening of Tuesday, June 23, at the high school auditorium. Singing, cheering and flaunting of banners by all classes of the school, a feature of other years will be omitted this year and only the two upper classes will sit in groups. Attendance at these exercises will be by invitation only and each senior will have a limited number of invitations for distribution.

The address of welcome will be given by Carl Tiliquist, class president; class history will be given by Percy Barber; class will be Ryburn Lynch and Ellis Pritchard; prophecy, Gladys Peterson and Doris Barrett; souvenirs, Edith Child and Ada Chandler, statistics, Rudolph Metty; characterizations, Irene Dugas and Leonia Dalgle; charge to the juniors, Minot Horn. Plans are being made for a field day celebration of the first anniversary of the headquarters company to be held June 6. The Adams Mfg. Co.'s baseball field has been secured for the date through the kindness of Mr. Owler the superintendent. Although the committee in charge is not quite ready to state definite plans for the day, they promise plenty of sports which will be open to all residents of Windham county in the afternoon and there will be dancing at the armory in the evening. Serg. Davison is chairman of the field day committee.

JOSEPH C. HOPPIN'S WORK PRAISED AFTER HIS DEATH

(Special to the Bulletin)

Putnam, May 19—Friends of Dr. Joseph Clark Hoppin of Pomfret, who died a few months ago are interested in the following from Princeton, N. J., which appeared in a New York paper:

"Important archaeological discoveries made at the Heraeum in Argos, Greece according to word received here today by Professor Edward Capps of Princeton University. Professor Capps is the chairman of the managing committee of the American School of Classical Studies at Athens, under whose auspices the excavations have been made. Twelve chamber tombs of various periods have been found, containing a vast amount of material, as they have never been plundered.

"The Argive Heraeum is situated on the top of a hill midway between Argos and Mycenae. It was a temple to Hera and was at one time one of the most important sanctuaries in Greece and the foremost temple of Hera in the Peloponesus.

"Dr. Charles Waldstein did some excavating on the site in 1892 and then abandoned it. One of his assistants, Professor Joseph Clarke Hoppin, of Boston, came to the conclusion that important discoveries were possible there. He believed that an investigation might disclose the remains of a prehistoric settlement and also that there were more Mycenaean chamber tombs besides the two discovered by Dr. Waldstein. Last year he made plans to return, but died in January before he could carry them out. He left a fund, however, to be used by the American school in carrying out his cherished project.

"This work so far has completely justified his beliefs, and there is no doubt that an important settlement existed on the site in prehistoric times. Trial trenches have been sunk in the terrace above the old temple and have revealed house walls and pottery from all three periods of the Bronze Age.

"On the eastern branch of the Heraeum ridge the excavations resulted in the discovery of twelve chamber tombs in three groups fairly close together. The tombs are in general of two types, one with a short, broad dromos, or entrance passage, and a comparatively small chamber, the other with a long tapering dromos and a large chamber.

"Three tombs of the first type have just been completely excavated. They date from the late third Helladic period, about 1400-1100 B. C. The tombs yielded good images of the late third Helladic period and also gems, beads and a very fine bronze dagger inlaid with gold, with a design of flying birds.

"The remaining tombs are now being excavated, and one tomb of the second type of impressive dimensions has been found. It has a dromos 13 meters long and two meters wide, and the chamber measures roughly 5.6 by 4.6 meters. This and the remaining tombs are furnishing material for the archaeologists who will probably complete their work in June. The excavations are being made under the supervision of Dr. Carl W. Blegen, assistant director of the American School of Classical Studies at Athens.

Mr. and Mrs. George Slater entertained Mrs. Sally, of Woonsocket, for a few days last week.

Friends of Mrs. Herbert Drew were grieved to learn of her death at a Providence hospital following a surgical operation. Funeral services were held at her home Friday at two o'clock with a committal service in the local cemetery.

Several local people were in East Killingly Saturday evening to attend a May basket party.

TELEPHONES INCREASE 5,748 IN PAST FOUR MONTHS

In the first four months of this year there was a net increase of 5,748 in the number of telephones served by the Southern New England Telephone Company, making 239,271 the total number of telephones, on April 30. This rate of net gain is slightly larger than the gain recorded during 1924, when there was a net increase of 17,244 telephones during the year. There are few better barometers of the business trend than telephone development. Business activity generally results in an increased demand for telephone service and the large increase during the first four months of this year indicates that throughout Connecticut, at least, business is equaling in activity the conditions prevailing last year and the year before.

The Hartford District, comprising 19 telephone exchanges, shows a net gain of 2,037 telephones with 74,723 in use. In the city of Hartford 1139 telephones have been added, making the total in that city 40,804. In the New Haven district, comprising 29 exchanges, the gain, since January 1, is 1970 making the total in service in this district 83,959. There was a gain in New Haven of 1314 telephones, making a total in use in that city 39,863. This is the first time in a long period that New Haven has shown a greater gain of telephones than the city of Hartford.

The city of Bridgeport has 430 more telephones than it had on January 1 and now has a total of practically 23,000. The Bridgeport District shows a net gain of 1348 with a total of 53,457. The New London district is fourth in the list, with a gain of 393 in the four months, putting the total in use in the 16 exchanges in that district up to 27,262.

Telephone people say indications point to a continuation of this healthy growth making for a more comprehensive telephone service within the state

CHILDREN IN THE STREETS

The city of Detroit has recently come face to face with a problem which is by no means confined to that municipality. In a period of 30 days there have been 18 instances in which children were killed by automobiles in the streets of that city. The rate of one very other day has been enough to arouse the people of the city to the real meaning of the situation, the why and wherefore of it and what is needed to put a stop to it. It is a deplorable fact that so many young lives are being crushed out.

There seems to be, however, a disregard for the fact that the streets of a city present a real menace today in comparison with what they did a couple of decades ago. Likewise there is a disposition on the part of those who are expected to guide the activities of children to disregard this fact or at least to fail to live up to their responsibilities in keeping them away from danger. Playing in the streets where there is much automobile traffic is perilous. The records of accidents and fatalities show it. In Detroit an investigation by the city attorney's office resulted in the report that the accidents invariably "occurred through the negligence of the child."

To say that the children should be more careful is quite correct, but there is at the same time an even greater responsibility resting upon the shoulders of the parents of the children. When the children are permitted to play in the street accidents are invited. The child may or may not be disposed to recognize the danger. When they get to playing their minds are centered upon play rather than safety. They dash headlong into trouble and in many instances to their death, but it is impossible to get away from the fact that they should not be playing in the streets and that the danger of getting off the sidewalk must be continually dinned into them. That is the only way in which present day highway traffic can be escaped. The day has come when playing about, jumping on or off of or dodging in the path of vehicles must end in the interest of safety, and the parents must do their part, even if it is a large one, in bringing about that end, especially in large cities.

SMUGGLED ALIENS

In his public addresses Secretary of Labor Davis of the department of labor continues to express the need of doing something more effective in the way of checking the smuggling of aliens. We have established laws restricting the entrance of immigrants and they are working well as concerns the aliens who are endeavoring to meet the requirements of this government, but they do not stop those who are bent upon getting in at any cost, even though their means of entrance involves a violation of the law.

There is quite as much difficulty experienced in preventing the smuggling of aliens as there is in stopping the smuggling of liquor. In both instances the incentive of the smuggler is the money that is to be made out of the breaking of the law, while the aliens who place themselves in the bootleg class must be regarded by that very act as being undesirable.

Probably there are no exact figures to show just how many are pushed under the bars, but the secretary has information which tells him the number is large and that they are getting in by crossing the borders and by being landed along the shores. Canada, Mexico and Cuba are countries to which those who want to get into this country and cannot through legitimate channels make their way, and they say a good round figure for being helped over the line.

It is not a new suggestion which the secretary makes when he tells a Cleveland audience that this country should protect itself against this practice and its effects by requiring all aliens to register. That is a measure which would call for much work but it gives the impression of being a method that would be effective and that would be fair to all concerned. It would require rules being kept upon the aliens. Those who have complied with the country's requirements would have nothing to fear. Those who have been smuggled in and thus have no right here would be detected and deported as they should be. Whether it is 100,000 or less that would be affected each year the situation calls for proper attention.

BANISHING THE GUN

While there are plenty of instances to show that murder is not committed solely by firearms, it is usually the case that the criminal is armed and that where crime has been committed the gun is found, looked for or played its part. It is because of this, and the aid which the small arm is to the person engaged in law breaking, that there has grown up such a strong demand for the ending of that practice of carrying a gun. And yet there is some question whether that day will ever arrive.

In a great many instances the fact that a person is carrying a gun puts a stamp on the character of his activities. For the sake of establishing proper protection against those criminally disposed there are those who are obliged to go armed. It is important that an official whose duty requires him to safeguard the public against thugs, robbers and others, that they should have such assistance in upholding the law. But gun toting by those who resort to it for the purpose of aiding them in their quest for money at the expense of the other fellow deserves every possible discouragement.

Legislation against the possession of firearms without permits has been resorted to in some states. It results in many persons who have revolvers for self protection being penalized heavily, and some instances where members of the criminal class are sent over the route because of it. But it hasn't as yet stopped the carrying of a gun, and the prospects are that it will not until the time comes when all states adopt such a law or a federal law regulating such a practice is passed.

One of the greatest aids in the commission of crime is a gun, and while they are obtainable the criminally inclined will be the first to get them. They are necessary for much of their nefarious business and not until there is a nationwide move to banish the gun will the criminal part with it. And should that time come the smuggling in of arms for such purchasers would be resorted to. This doesn't overcome however, the menace of gun toting.

THE GENEVA CONFERENCE

Not what might be called progress is being made at the conference at Geneva where the effort is being made to bring about some method of establishing control over traffic in arms and ammunition between nations. As in the opium conference what is favorable to some is unfavorable to others, and thus far developments indicate that no agreement will be reached.

One of the propositions submitted was to permit the search of vessels on the high seas which were suspected of carrying firearms and ammunition. This country was unwilling to endorse such a move. It is in the first place against international law. Such action is now prohibited, and it is to be realized that while such a search would serve to detect much of the secret traffic that it is desired to reach, it is likewise evident that it would open the way to all kinds of developments.

It would be the easiest thing in the world for the claim to be made in stopping and searching a ship that firearms and ammunition were being sought. That might or might not be the real motive, but with such an excuse the opportunities to [illegible] would be limitless. It is this phase of the matter which furnished some of the strongest objections. Five countries, all small in the shipping world, except Great Britain supported such a plan but they were not sufficient a number to give the proposition a chance to be put into operation.

The convention is giving the respective nations an opportunity to get the views of the other in regard to the traffic in war munitions. But aside from that it bids fair to fall far short of what was expected might be accomplished. It likewise shows the difficulty of getting the nations to come to an agreement when so many have problems so different from the others.

[illegible] SCRAPPING

Now the shipping board's committee on scrapping has moved upon according to a despatch from Washington, a programme for scrapping 500 of the government vessels. This would mean, if it is carried out, that 500 of the [illegible] end of the least value will be put up for bids for the purpose of salvaging what is worth while in them. Clearly there are vessels which are better than others. Many are too good to be scrapped and it would be a far too great sacrifice of money and material to make no other use of them.

But if there is not a market for those ships which can be reconditioned for service there certainly cannot be much prospect of putting the poorest of the shipping board fleet into operation. With such ships costing the government money every year and becoming of less value all the time, the wisdom of ending the expense and getting what they will bring is not difficult to understand.

If this programme in course of [illegible] framed it will mean that the ships will be put up to bids. That course will be followed with the fact stipulated that the ships are for scrapping. Then there will be an opportunity for any and all who wish to make their bids for such vessels to make themselves heard. That will be Mr. Ford's chance to indicate what he considers a fair price. If he should want the ships under those conditions there is no question but what he can have them unless someone wants them so much more that they are willing to overtop his bid. There is every indication that the interest manifested by Mr. Ford in the shipping board vessels has started something.

LEADING THE CROWD

Archie stood a fair chance of developing into a nice average young man until his Uncle Henry came back from Europe a few years ago and brought him six London neckties and the latest monogrammed handkerchiefs from Paris. Those six ties and the hankies utterly changed the whole course of Archie's life.

Up to that time clothes had been just clothes, but what Uncle Henry said when he presented the European plunder started the first pebble of the avalanche. "Here are some eye-openers for the other boys," he had said "Nothing to equal a London tie—there is something about them!"

Archie lived in a gentle glow of superior satisfaction so long as the six ties lasted and he quite annoyed his mother and his sister by his constant demands for their cleansing, pressing and refurbishing. By the time he had finished them utterly he had quite convinced himself that no fellow with sensibilities could possibly wear anything but a London necktie. That was where it all began.

The amount of pleasure Archie got out of being able to say when occasion arose that "Oh, yes, he got nearly all his things from across the water—there was something about them the stuff sold in this country didn't have," was appalling. It made him happy for a week to see the slight awe that invariably ensued.

Trouble arose in several families through envy generated by Archie's imported wardrobe. There were acid remarks from his own family when the facts came to their ears. He was in college and had an allowance and he intended to use it as he saw fit.

By the time he was a senior he read scarcely anything published in this country, smoked bulldoggy pipes and wore suits that were delightfully baggy—being made in London without fittings of course. He saw nothing in any art except that which came from Italy and was mildly bored at his friends' enthusiasm over winter sports at Lake Placid, N. Y.

His faint smile spoke whole volumes about the real winter sports in Switzerland. The Lake Placidites retired abashed. When people mentioned Palm Beach it was a dead certainty that within two minutes Archie would drag in a remark about the Riviera, a name he loved to roll forth. He grew more and more gently bored with these United States, lock, stock and barrel. People who did not know him very well said that when a young chap was as familiar with Europe as Archie White was of course things over here would seem a little crude and one must make allowances.

It bothered him somewhat when he found his interest in Daisy Hemstock growing faster because there were no subtleties about her. She was a brilliant, downright vital creature whose folks had lived on Main street before they came to Chicago, and it did not matter a whit to her where a thing or a person came from. If Daisy liked it or him she liked it or him and what more was there?

"When I marry," Daisy told him with intensity, not at all moderated because he was really awfully good looking and had an air about him, "when I marry, Archie, I'm going to pick out a man who can enter a State street store without having a heart attack! You've never been abroad in all your life and any one would think your national anthem was 'I'm a pilgrim here; Europe is my home!' Your ties are real pretty, but ties don't mean anything when the water pipes freeze up and the monthly bills come in! And I don't love you!"

When Archie reached home he found a fresh box of shirts which had just come through the customs. He had let his insurance lapse to pay for those shirts. He looked hard at the box and then kicked it into a corner and sat down very moodily. Not a shadow of understanding of the finer things about the girl—but, oh, there was something about her!—Chicago News.

From Small Beginnings

James Mill, the Shoemaker's Son, a Great Thinker

How does it happen that the son of a poor and utterly obscure shoemaker, living in a little visited region of Scotland, should become one of the most learned of men, one of the most influential thinkers, a person who should change the government of a vast Oriental empire and the father of one of the greatest philosophers the world has known? That, in brief, is the story of James Mill, son of a poor Scotch shoemaker and father of John Stuart Mill, the great philosopher.

The greatest thing in all this world is mother love. The shoemaker father was willing enough to have the boy help him in the shop. He would have been pleased to see him continue the patching of shoes and the cutting and sewing of leather. Not so the mother. "Jamie maun hae an education," she said. "He shall no bide here i' the shop; he shall go to the school."

"Aye," said the father, "to the school be it."

So mother love sent Jamie trudging off to the little school, dressed in his best homespun and warmed by the mother's kiss. What along, long road that mother was starting her boy on! It led on through the little school to a larger institution and then on into the University of Edinburgh, into many great libraries, into the company of great authors who wrote in Latin and in Greek and of modern authors who who wrote scholarly books of philosophy; down into London in the company of the most learned men in the world and away to India to consider the burdens of millions of dark men and women; into editorial rooms where he son wrote striking articles and at last straight into the shining hall of fame. In every city there should be a statue in honor of Mother Love, the inspiration of civilization itself.

At first in spite of the excellent education that he had gained, James Mill had little success. He failed as a preacher and he could make no money as a teacher. Then he took fate into his own hands and at 20 went to London, where he became a writer and editor a contributor to the best magazines, and a great public figure. The greatest thing that he did was to write a most learned history of India, the first great book on that subject, a book so full of wisdom that it resulted in making over the government of India. "The Elements of Political Economy, An Analysis of the Human Mind, and The History of India are three most remarkable works—and all are the products of a man who was born the son of a shoemaker and sent by mother love on the road to education and fame.

A man may shut his eyes to a painful truth, but he seldom shuts his ears if the aforesaid truth happens to be about his neighbor.

CHILD TRAINING

THE UNDERSTANDING HEART
Margaret Conn Rhodes

"I do not want you to question what I say, Robert; if I tell you to do a thing you don't need to know the reason why," said a mother the other day.

I wondered what the child thought. Did he get the idea, as many a child has done, that because Mother was a big lady and he was a little boy she could make him do things whenever she wanted to?

I heard a young mother say the other day, "Oh, I am so afraid I won't understand Teddy, he is such a queer child," and I thought: "It would be much better for you to be concerned about whether Teddy will always understand you."

Do you not believe that much of the disobedience and the seeming indifference of children comes because they do not understand older people? Parents so often demand blind obedience, and the child often grasps only unreasonableness and injustice.

"Let's make the room tidy for Daddy, Bobby," is much better than "Pick up your toys at once." In the former case, the child has been given a reason for what he is required to do and so the request appeals to him.

Older people are often real enigmas to these little tots who come out of their dream world bump against requests of ours that seem useless to them. Blind obedience with understanding to back if makes of the baby child a cooperative being.

You will find it helpful to ask yourself daily: "Does my baby grasp what I mean?" "Does he get the idea back of that request?" "Does his child mind wonder at my actions?" "Can I take more time to explain and have less desire to command?"

We should lead instead of drive, give the reason with the command and question the child's understanding. A mother may thus avoid both misunderstanding and being misunderstood by her own baby, who undoubtedly wonders at the doings of all grownups.

Stories That Recall Others

Real Patriotism.

Speaking of the right use of the flag, respect for it and patriotism, Mr. A., who has just returned from a visit in another city tells of this incident which specially attracted his attention.

There was a Music Week programme at which a band was playing. Three sailors were hiking briskly across the street and had just reached the center when the band started playing "The Star Spangled Banner." At the sound of the first note the sailor boys came to a dead halt and, snapping themselves to attention, brought their right hand to rigid salute. They stood there until the last note had floated away and then as automatically resumed their hike. A long line of automobiles and trucks, which also had been held at attention by the sailors, who blocked the street, pushed forward and, in their traffic struggle, drivers strained the vibrators of their electric horns.

NORWICH TOWN

Rev. James B. Aldrich preached on Sunday morning at the First Methodist Episcopal church, from Genesis 32. 24. And Jacob was left alone; and there wrestled with him until the breaking of the day.

At the Young People's Christian Endeavor service in the evening the regular preaching service was combined with this meeting, with Rev. Mr. Aldrich as leader. The topic was How to Make the Most of Summer, March 6:31, 32; Romans 13; 11-14. During the meeting the two delegates from the Methodist church, Mrs. Richard Carter and Mrs. Albert G. Miner, who attended the all-day and evening sessions, Friday last at Willimantic of the Mohegan Trail Epworth League submitted interesting reports. Others from the Methodist church in attendance Friday evening were the pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. James B. Aldrich, their sons, Lewis and Mark Aldrich and Miss Florence Brown who motored to Willimantic.

During this week Scout Master Frederic H. Wyant is having the boys of Troop No. 20, Boy Scouts of Norwich Town, burn out the caterpillar nests all over the highways on country roads.

It is anticipated that Scout Executive Frederick A. Benton will conduct a similar campaign throughout the city parks, etc., with the cooperation of the city scouts.

The Forty Hours' Devotion at the Sacred Heart church, closed Tuesday morning with a high mass at 7.30, celebrated by the pastor, Rev. Charles W. Brennan. While the choir sang Pange Lingua; the boys and girls of the Sunday school, again marched in procession. Rev. Father Brennan carrying the Sacred Host was preceded by the children bringing the devotion to a close in a very impressive manner. During the devotion there was a large attendance, many communions being received.

Those who assisted Rev. Father Brennan during this period were the following visiting priests: Rt. Rev. Mgr. M. H. May and Rev. Myles P. Galvin of St. Patrick's church, Norwich, Rev. Philip J. Mooney of Colchester and Rev. James O. O'Meara of Montville. The attractive floral decorations under the direction of the Altar society, were very attractively arranged about the altar and with the lighted candles made the sanctuary especially beautiful in the evening.

At the meeting for conference and prayer of the First Congregational church Thursday evening in the chapel, the third lecture in continuing the study of Fosdick's book "The Modern Use of the Bible," the theme will be The Ancient Solution.

The Drop-In class of the First Congregational church Sunday school, is to hold a meeting with Mrs. Gurdon F. Bailey Friday afternoon, at four o'clock (D. S. T.) at the parsonage on Elm avenue.

The annual Cradle Roll party of the Congregational church Sunday school will be held on the church lawn, Saturday afternoon from 3.30 to 5 o'clock (D. S. T.) All children eight years old and younger have been invited to attend and bring their mothers. At this time games will be played and the cradles mite-boxes will be opened.

PANTS MANUFACTURER SUED FOR WHAT HE DID WITH SURPLUS CLOTH

Before Judge Isaac Wolfe in the superior court here Tuesday, the trial was begun in the suit of Abraham Hirsch of New London against Victor Miller of Boston, in which there is also a cross complaint.

Hirsch in his complaint claimed $450 damages for services rendered. Of this the defendant admitted $442.80. In a cross complaint the defendant, Miller, claimed $10,000 damages from Hirsch. This complaint arose out of a verbal agreement between the defendant and the plaintiff in which Hirsch agreed to manufacture and dispose of pants as directed by Miller, Miller to supply the material.

The factory, now defunct, was located at the corner of Bank street and Montauk avenue, New London. Hirsch was to furnish the thread and labor. According to Miller, Hirsch was to receive compensation for the finished product. The agreement was to be in effect from October, 1923, until June, 1924. Miller said that during this time he shipped 121,544 yards of pants material and 55,587 yards of pocketing. In the cross complaint, Miller alleged that Hirsch, contrary to agreement, failed to account for and return all garments made from the cloth and further that he used for personal profit the goods unaccounted for. It was said that 9,729 yards of pants material and 2,650 yards of pocketing were unaccounted for. The value of the unaccounted goods was reported as $3,875 for the pants material and $2,839 for the pocketing goods.

Miller in another counter complaint, doing business with the Canton Clothing company, claims that Hirsch owned land and property on Bank street losing the property to pay for debts, and that when he was in danger of that he conveyed the property over to his wife, making himself solvent. Miller asks that the conveyance be set aside.

Attorney Thomas E. Troland, counsel for Mr. Miller, put on the witness stand during the day Victor Miller, David G. Tourtellotte, Wilfred J. Pardy, Joseph M. Riley, Charles H. Smith, Bernard H. Aronson and Abraham Cramer, the last named a Norwich merchant, who testified to buying a number of dozen pair of khaki pants from Hirsch.

For the other side of the case Attorneys John C. Geary and Arthur T. Keefe called Mr. Hirsch to the stand as the first witness. Through the testimony of Mr. Hirsch it was brought out that he was to be paid $3.60 per dozen for making the khaki pants from the cloth that Miller furnished and the agreement was that he was to produce one dozen pair out of every 32 yards of 28 inch cloth. Mr. Hirsch said that it was possible to cut the cloth in such a way that more than a dozen pair would be secured from 32 yards and he considered this surplus belonged to him. Nothing was ever said between them, he said, about who owned the surplus cloth. In some cases where there were extra sizes, it was not possible to get a dozen pair of pants out of 32 yards of cloth.

Judge Wolfe inquired what the witness meant by extra sizes. "Oh, large sizes," replied Hirsch. "Like Mr. Geary, for instance," suggested Judge Wolfe, while the spectators in court enjoyed the judicial joke.

The witness said he kept no record of the cloth that was received from Miller, but kept a record of his shipments made at Miller's orders and he was paid according to these shipments. He read from his records that he had made 641 dozen pair of pants from a certain kind of cloth. He said he had sold to Cramer from 80 to 100 dozen made from the surplus cloth and had used for his own store about 25 dozen. He never told Miller what was made from the surplus cloth.

At one point in the trial, Judge Wolfe remarked that the case seemed to have narrowed down to who owned this surplus.

Hirsch testified that his business relations ceased with Miller because Hirsch refused any longer to endorse trade acceptances for Miller. He told of calling up Miller at one time when Miller's son-in-law answered the call and said: "I got the goods on you. Five years in prison for you."

On cross examination of Mr. Hirsch by Attorney Troland, the New London man was asked if he did not on June 6, 1924, the day he brought suit against Miller, transfer all his property, real and personal, to his wife. He admitted he gave a deed of his real estate to his wife. "Didn't you change your bank account to read in the name of Sadie Hirsch?" asked the attorney. Hirsch answered that his wife always had a bank account and when Attorney Troland kept pressing for a direct answer the witness said "I did not."

Judge Wolfe also took a hand with a question or two about the bank account, asking the witness "What did you do with it?" Hirsch's answer was that he couldn't recollect. "Never mind, you needn't answer if you can't recollect," remarked the judge.

After further cross examination, the court session adjourned at 5 o'clock to continue the trial the next day.

TWO MACHINES CRASH AT BROAD STREET CORNER

Two machines crashed early Tuesday evening at the corner of Broad and Warren street, both being considerably damaged and each driver blaming the other for the accident.

The drivers and owners were William Barry, of 1425 Concourse, New York city, a former Norwich man who is now on the stage, and Bruno William Budzek, 18, of 69 Division street, the former driving a Buick coach and the latter a cut-down Ford. Barry was accompanied by his father and was crossing Broad street on his way to Mohegan park as the machine driven by Budzek was coming along Broad street from Boswell avenue. The Budzek machine struck Barry's on the right near the rear. Barry claimed in his report to the police that Budzek was racing with a truck and Budzek claimed that Barry tried to get across the intersection of the streets ahead of him.

The Barry car had its back stove in, right rim bent, and mudguard bent. The Budzek car had a front axle bent, spring thrown out, wishbone bent, steering gear bent, crank broken and headlight damaged.

GEO. NORRIS NASH, JR., TO WED DAUGHTER OF CAL. JUDGE

Berkeley, Cal., papers have had numerous references to an engagement which is of interest to Norwich friends of the family of the late Mr. and Mrs. Asa Nash, whose handsome home was what is now the Norwich Elks' Home, on East Main street. The items concern the betrothal of George Norris Nash, Jr., and Miss Sarah Myrtle Chamberlain, of Berkeley.

The engagement was announced at a largely attended tea, given by Miss Vivian Baxter, of Oakland avenue, Berkeley. The rooms were decorated with spring flowers. Each guest on arrival was presented a betrothal card announcing the engagement. Among those in the receiving line were young Mr. Nash's mother and sister, Miss Marian Nash.

Miss Chamberlain is the daughter of Mrs. Lewis Lee Chamberlain and the late Judge Chamberlain. She received her degree at the University of California, class of 1922 and is a popular member of Delta Gamma sorority.

Mr. Nash is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Norris Nash, of Piedmont avenue, Berkeley. He is now with a realty company in San Francisco, having been graduated in 1921 from the university where he was a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity. The wedding is to take place in June.

The day following the announcement Mrs. Nash gave a large tea in compliment to her future daughter-in-law and a girl friend, Miss Marguerite D. Belser. The latter is daughter of Mrs. Belser and the late J. J. Belser, of Honolulu. By a happy coincidence, her father had served as usher at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. George N. Nash. Miss Belser recently announced her own engagement to William Gordon Hitchcock, of Burlinghame, Cal. She is a university girl, a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority.

The same evening, Mrs. Nash gave a reception for the two engaged girls. Young Mr. Nash's father was born in Norwich and is the nephew of Mrs. John Irish, of Laurel Hill avenue. His sisters, Evelyn H. ## WHEN GLASS BOTTLES WERE MADE AT WILLINGTON

Joel N. Eno writes The Stafford Press:

The manufacture of glass bottles was established in Willingly as early as 1815, the works being set up about a mile east of West Willington, on what has been known since as Glass factory brook, which runs thence to South Willington. Suitable sand was found about two miles north, and wood ashes used, were abundantly produced, for everybody burned wood for the home fires.

Abel Johnson was the most prominent of the early owners of the plant, later Gilbert Turner and Co., owned it, and finally the Willington Glass Co., a joint stock company carried on a prosperous business until the Civil War, employing 12 or more glass blowers, making black bottles, flasks, and finally demijohns. In the later days willow covered. The end of the war was approximately the end of glass making in Willington. The business went to Westford Village, where it survived for a few years.

CAR STARTER HANDLES FIRE IN AUTOMOBILE

A telephone call Tuesday night summoned the fire department to Franklin square for a fire in a Chevrolet coupe, which was owned by William D. Cross of Westerly. The blaze was started when Mr. Cross attempted to switch on his lights, causing a short circuit in the starting motor. Before the fire department arrived at the scene, Terry Horgan, the starter on the square for the Connecticut company, secured a fire extinguisher in the waiting room of the Connecticut company and quickly put out the blaze. The car was able to proceed under its own power after a few repairs were made.

Officer P. Shahan notified Captain Thomas Murphy at police headquarters of the fire and the captain sent in the call for the fire department.

PAINT AND PERSISTENCY NEEDED FOR CROSSWALKS

A supply of white paint backed up by an adequate supply of persistency in its application seems to be needed to maintain the marking of the crosswalks in the streets in the central part of the business section of this city.

Some time ago when modified traffic ordinances were adopted the crosswalks in Franklin square were marked off but these marks have long ago faded and have not been renewed often enough to prevent them from disappearing altogether.

RACE GROWS CLOSE IN STORRS EGG LAYING

All the breeds except Wyandottes were in the race for supremacy in the 28th week of the Storrs laying contest. Meadowedge Farm's pen of White Leghorns from Sterling Junction, Mass., were the outstanding performers for the week with a score of 64 eggs. The remaining seven pens that deserve especial mention were separated by the very small margin of only two eggs. Keewaydin Farm's pen of Barred Rocks from Darien, Conn., and Red Mount Farm's pen of Rhode Island Reds from Franklin, Mass., tied for second place with a total of 57 eggs each. Two pens of White Leghorns entered by Willgerodt Bros., of Red Bank, N. J., and Hanson's Leghorn Farm of Corvallis, Oregon, tied for third place with 56 eggs each. Robert B. Parkhurst's pen of Rhode Island Reds from Boxwood, Mass., and two New Jersey pens of White Leghorns owned by Rapp's Leghorn Farm at Atlantic Highlands and Thomas H. Neill of Vineland, all tied for fourth place with 55 eggs each.

The total lay for all pens was 5,880 eggs or a yield of 60 per cent. Although a shade under the production for the previous week, this record is relatively 400 eggs better than for the corresponding week last year. It now seems certain that May will be the month of most eggs. There are exceptions to the rule, to be sure; but year in and year out, mixed poultry populations lay more eggs in May than in any other month of the year. A survey of the Storrs laying records dating back to 1915 shows that in 1917 the hens laid the most eggs in June; in 1921 and again in 1922 they laid the most eggs in April; while in 1924 they laid the most eggs in March. But in the remaining six years of this ten year period, May was the popular month. Furthermore, if one averages the scores for the entire decade, May wins out by a safe margin. For the first two weeks of May in the current contest, the production has averaged a little better than 60 per cent., as compared with 54 per cent. for the first two weeks in May a year ago. Thus the management is convinced that in 1925, May will be the banner months of the year.

The leading pens in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

ACADEMY TO PLAY SOUTH HIGH TEAM OF WORCESTER AT CAMPUS TODAY

Sailing victoriously over the high seas of schools, the triumphant Academy baseball team, only conquerors of Bulkeley this season plan to have one of their biggest weeks of the year, when they engage in three battles as a sort of pastime to appease their hunger for more victories.

If they win all three games, the Red and White will have an enviable record of overcoming three dangerous contenders in four days. Not too confident but just enough confidence in their playing, the Academy is out to make this season a championship one. For a good many games, they lacked the confidence which all winning teams must have. Now, after their thrilling victory over Bulkeley, whom no team has been able to leave behind, a team which has emerged triumphant from every battle, the wearers of the Red and White form a good baseball machine. With its consistent hitters, dependable fielders and stellar pitchers, the Academy presents a team, which any school or town would be glad to call its own.

As a sort of formality or more in fact a hidden desire for more, the locals will play South High of Worcester, rated as one of the fastest teams in Massachusetts this afternoon on the campus at 3 o'clock. South High from all reports is bringing down their best players, to be sure of defeating the local nine.

Either Ray Woods or Ed Healy will twirl for the Academy, with Smiling Johnny Greene in reserve.

Then on Friday, the Red and White travel to Westerly for a league game with the Westerly High. So far the locals are leading the race, with two victories, while Westerly has been defeated by Stonington and treated the same way by Chapman Tech. The Academy plans to make it six straight for the championship in this game Smiling Johnny Greene will in all probability be the slab artist.

Then, on Saturday, for the first time in a number of years, Hartford High school will be the attraction on the campus. It is not necessary to state that the capitol city boys have always a great team and an exciting contest is expected.

Lefty Lloyd Jarvis, the pride of local fandom will slant them over in the Hartford game. His performance in Saturday's game was marvelous, both his hitting and pitching being in major league fashion. Lefty has hit his stride and should give another good showing in this game.

As another sign of good fortune Pheno Tombari, last year's star infielder, who had his leg broken earlier in the season, will attempt to play in today's game. Pheno is a sure infielder and hitter and should give added strength to the Red and White aggregation.

Misch, the rapidly improving young catcher, who sprained his ankle last week will also be in the lineup again. With these two men back, the Academy will have the smoothest working combination they have had for a number of years. With Misch, catching, Lefty Jarvis or Green pitching, Burke 1b, either Cimikoski or Capt. McGowan 3b; Carroll 3b; Pheno Tombari ss; Hinrichs lf; Greene or Jarvis cf. Radio Ed Brewer or Capt. McGowan rf; they present a pretty team. What say?

BUSH PITCHES WELL AND BROWNS WIN

St. Louis, Mo., May 19—Joe Bush pitched well and the St. Louis Browns defeated the Boston Red Sox today 3 to 2, in the final game of the series.

DEMPSEY REFEREES BOUT IN PARISIAN RING

Paris, May 19—Jack Dempsey's new filmdom nose made its first appearance in a Parisian ring tonight when the heavyweight champion, hand in hand with Georges Carpentier, bowed to the public at Gaumont Palace prior to refereeing a bout between Debeve and Kelly.

Previously some portions of the populace were able to get a glimpse of Dempsey and his new nose on his arrival in Paris with his bride, but only after they had had a battle with the police, who were endeavoring to protect the champion from the onrush of admirers at the railway station.

Jack had an easy evening in the ring, because the bout he refereed, which was to have gone ten rounds, terminated at the end of the fifth when Debeve took a count of nine and refused to continue.

The champion's refereeing evidently was heartily appreciated by the crowd of seven thousand who acclaimed him an expert on the fine points of the game. After his official duties had ended Dempsey went to the hotel and took his wife, known in the film world, as Estelle Taylor, to a dinner given in their honor at a fashionable restaurant by Carpentier.

Dempsey's appearance in the ring brought him an ovation such as had not been seen on Gaumont Palace since Marshal Joffre appeared there to witness a film commemorating the first battle of the Marne.

In refereeing the bout he clinched his claim to popularity, the gallic fight fans forbearing to greet him with their accustomed assortments of boos, catcalls and whistling.

LUQUE PITCHES STRONG GAME AGAINST BRAVES

Boston, May 19—Cincinnati came out of its five game slump this afternoon to trounce the Boston Braves 7 to 3 behind Luque's strong pitching. 'Twixt promise and fact

(It's up to you!)

Only a rash enthusiast will say flat-footedly that you'll like a certain cigar better than any other you ever tasted. It's entirely up to you to decide whether the taste and mildness of Blackstone make it your favorite cigar.

But facts are another matter. The 100% filler of your 1925 Blackstone is the finest tobacco of its type that Cuba has grown in years. Still sticking to facts: Blackstones are noted for their perfect construction and firm ash. Scientifically made for easy drawing. Invariably even-burning. And as clean as a young trout in a mountain brook.

These facts explain why nearly half of all Blackstones are bought 5 or 10 at a time in the handy Pocket Packages—the same full-size Blackstones as those sold from cedar boxes.

Blackstone was a fine cigar 52 years ago. It was even finer 10 years ago. It is at its very finest in this year of 1925.

BULKELEY BEATS COLLEGIATE PREP IN NINTH INNING BATLING RALLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, May 19—All good things must end. The Academy snapped Bulkeley's run of consecutive victories at ten, and this afternoon at Morgan Park, Bulkeley without notice as to what was going to happen stepped up to the plate and knocked out five runs to win from Collegiate Prep by a 7 to 6 score and also to break the team's winning streak which had reached ten victories. The game was a thriller throughout and it marked Bulkeley's second victory in five days which was decided by a one run margin.

The game proved and disproved a number of theories. It proved for one thing that no team is "stay put." No matter how low the animal it may rise to win out. This is exactly what Bulkeley did this afternoon in flashing a last minute victory which started them on the right road again and at the same time paid back the Collegiate nine an old debt which the Orange and Black had saved up for this day since the last inning defeat handed the locals at New Haven three years ago. It made scores even, and at the same time it placed Tillie Daniels pitcher, captain and three-base hitter extraordinary, into the limelight once again. All in all it was one of those games which is uncertain from the start, the lead wavering from one team to another and then a melodramatic finish. All these thrills were crammed into a single game.

Going into the last inning four runs behind, Bulkeley overcame this huge lead and went the New Haveners one better, winning the game by a single run after two were out in the ninth. Bulkeley struck while the iron was hot, and it was Captain Daniels who was responsible for the victory in more ways than one. His pitching not only stood out, but two triples which accounted for four of the seven runs came as the result of his healthy clouting. Especially in the ninth with bases thickly populated, Daniels promptly emptied them with a triple to right center and Bulkeley was in the ball game once more. No other pitcher could do more to win his own game.

Bulkeley did not fail to take the lead from the start. After two were out in the first inning, Sheflott lined one through the box and when the ball hopped over the center fielder's head, Sheflott was credited with a home run. Shannahan got the first hit for the visitors in the second, a hit through the box on a hit and run play. But no scoring was done by either team even though Mansfield doubled in the Bulkeley half of this frame.

Collegiate went to the front in the third. Clarke walked to start the inning. Goeble tripled to right and scored a minute later when Daniels uncorked a wild heave. Bulkeley drew up on equal terms with the visitors in the fifth, scoring one run. Falvey walked, and Daniels hit the fence in the left center on the fly with a tremendous whack. It was some drive. An attempt at a squeeze failed, and that ended the scoring for that inning.

It was all Collegiate in the matter of scoring from that time on. The sixth was probably the most fruitful for the Elm City players in both run making and hitting. Coombs singled with no outs Callahan tried to sacrifice, but Daniels made a good throw to second to get Coombs. Conor fanned, Callahan advancing to third on a wild pitch. Shannahan, Paier, Fuge followed with singles which scored two runners and Collegiate took the lead with a 4 to 2 score. The lead was increased in the next in two Bulkeley pulling out of a bad hole. Goebe singled as a starter, and Ginaell walked. Coombs was hit by a pitched ball choking the bases with no outs. Callahan hit to Gaetano at short and he tagged Ginael out, while Goebe scored. Connor hit an infied fly and was out automatically, but as Coombs attempted to leave his base on the throw he was run down on the base line between second and third, Hutchison to Gaetano to Barry.

It looked bad for Bulkeley going in the ninth for Collegiate added another tally in that frame with Goebie doing the hitting. Bulkeley made its last stand and was rather successful at that scoring enough runs to tie the count and one over the amount needed for a tie score. Gaetano flied out. Montali a bad man in the pinch singled on a line to right field. Mansfield's fly dropped safely in right as three Collegiate players debated over who was to take it. Parisi went in to bat for Falvey and was hit by a pitched ball. It was a perfect setting for Daniels and he gave the Bulkeley supporters something to cheer about by smacking a triple which caromed off the stone wall in right. He was perched on third when the ball was returned to the diamond, the run being the sixth and tieing one, if scored. Barry was hit by a pitched ball on the first ball served. Hutchison hit to short stop and Daniels was out at the plate. Bulkeley was still shy one run to tie the score. Sheflott walked, but Booth singled to the short stop the ball almost taking the hand off the latter's anatomy as Barry and Hutchison raced over the plate with the tieing and winning runs. It was a great game that was agreed upon by all. But if Bulkeley continues to win ball games by one run margins, the people will pass out due to heart failure. The score:

Unc' Billy Finds a Trail

Fortune is a fickle thing:
You never know just what 'twill bring.
—Unc' Billy Possum.

It seemed to Unc' Billy as if somehow he was wholly out of luck this morning. Yes, sir, Unc' Billy Possum certainly did feel out of luck. He knew that Peter Rabbit had found the eggs of little Mrs. Teeter the Sandpiper that very morning, yet he, Unc' Billy, hadn't been able to find them. Then he had hoped to catch a crawfish and again had been disappointed. The only crawfish he had seen had been in water too deep for Unc' Billy to even try to catch him. So Unc' Billy felt that luck was against him, and he was quite out of sorts.

He sat on the bank of the Smiling Pool trying to make up his mind whether or not to go back to his home in the Green Forest, when he caught sight of something moving a little farther along on the bank. Right away he forgot his troubles. Curiosity started him to creeping along cautiously until he could see who or what was moving up there through the grass.

It was Mrs. Snapper the Snapping Turtle

In a moment or two out on the top of the bank waddled a very homely not to say ugly-looking person, and a sharp hiss warned Unc' Billy that if he were wise he would not come too close. It was Mrs. Snapper the Snapping Turtle. Now both Snapper and Mrs. Snapper have very stout-cutting jaws and Unc' Billy knew better than to interfere with Mrs. Snapper. He knew that with one snap she could and would bite off one of his paws if he should put it within reach. So Unc' Billy kept his distance and was most polite.

"Good mo'ning, Mrs. Snapper," said Unc' Billy. "Ah hope yo' feel as fine as yo' look. Ah don' remember ever seeing yo' look finer, Mrs. Snapper."

To this Mrs. Snapper merely hissed again, and started on down the bank. When she reached the water she looked back at Unc' Billy, hissed once more and disappeared. In a moment her head appeared above water out in the middle.

Unc' Billy looked at her thoughtfully. "Yo' certainly has a most unpleasant way with yo', Mrs. Snapper," muttered Unc' Billy, but not so that she could hear. "Ah wonder what yo' were doing up here on the shore. It seems to me that yo' belong in the water and not fooling around out on the shore. Ah just natu'ally wonders where yo' done been and what yo' been fo'."

Unc' Billy waited until Mrs. Snapper had disappeared. Then he shuffled along over to where she had appeared in the grass at the top of the bank. He could see where she had pressed the grass down. Because he hadn't any thing better to do Unc' Billy began to follow the trail Mrs. Snapper had left in the grass. It was idle curiosity, nothing else, that led Unc' Billy on.

"Ah, don' see what she wanted to go way up here fo," said he as the trail led farther and farther from the bank. "Ah should think her short laigs would have geen all tired out. She cert'nly couldn't have been waiting fo' her health."

Unc' Billy's curiosity was growing, but for a while it was curiosity only that urged hi mon. And then he remembered something. It came to him so suddenly that he stopped to think it over. And as he thought a grin spread over his sharp face, an eager, hungry grin.

"Aiggs!" exclaimed Unc' Billy under his breath as if fearful that some one might overhear him, although no one was about. "Ah don't hear that Mrs. Snapper lays aiggs just like all the other members of the Turtle family. Ah wonder could it be that she has been up here fo' to lay her aiggs."

INGROWN NAIL

Turns Right Out Itself

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

The blacksmith shop of Samuel Bailey, on Coggswell street, Pawcatuck, was broken into the first of the week and the break is being investigated by the Pawcatuck police authorities of the town of Stonington. The motive for the breaking and entering, which was committed in the nighttime, has not been definitely decided, but it is thought that tools were sought, perhaps for a bigger job. Entrance was gained by cutting the tongue grooving between planking, the boards being bent back to gain entrance. On one plank was an electric light conduit and this plank had to be forced back. All the planks removed were piled neatly along side of the building. When entrance was gained to the shed, it appeared that no attempt was made to enter the office, a separate corner room, with door locked. The intruders to gain entrance were forced to slide down a large pile of horseshoes at the side of the building.

An altercation which began in a West Side restaurant Tuesday night resulted in a fist fight on Coggswell street, a short time later. Some of the parties in the argument were truck drivers and when an exchange of blows began, an Italian sympathizer was reported to have taken a hand in the fight, cutting one of the fighters about the face with a blow, also started for a rock. A crowd had collected when the Pawcatuck Patrolman Varien Burdick appeared a short time later. Then the Italian youth made a hasty getaway for Rhode Island. Officer Buddick, inasmuch as the chief trouble maker had escaped, advised the truckmen to leave immediately and the crowd dispersed.

WESTMINSTER

The first serious forest fire of this region was discovered by Mrs. William Davies of Elm Arch Farm May 7 a corner of their meadowland. Mr. Davies notified F. Lachapelle, local fire warden and the call extended by telephone to Canterbury Green. About 25 men responded and worked hard for nearly three hours, a stream and closely cropped grass helping curb the fire in one direction, the shifting wind adding to its danger. The area burned has been variously estimated, 25 acres, probably covers it. Charles Phillips was the heaviest loser. The fire is supposed to be caused by some fishermen who were not sufficiently careful.

Mother's Day was observed at Westminster the flowers being a large vase full of white French lilacs. The texts were st. John 19:26-27 and Is. 66:13.

When the Windham Association of churches and ministers met at Mansfield Center in annual session May 12, Arthur Edmond and Mrs. William E. Davis were the elected local delegates, by action of the church May 3rd.

The same day, Tuesday May 12, Buell Union, the Canterbury W. C. T. U., met by invitation of Mrs. Gaskell in the beautiful colonial house at South Canterbury. The gathering was well attended, the president, Mrs. Bilven, in the chair, Miss Baldwin, evangelistic superintendent, conducted the religious exercises with the theme, The Value of a Human Soul. The report of the Treasurer was read and accepted. Timely items of special interest were given among these on account of the hearing on the Wheeler Bill, Mrs. Davies being the appointed delegate. She stated that the provision of the bill making the buyer equally guilty with the boot-legger was the one defeating the bill. Before adjourning for the social period, the Union voted to have Mrs. Woodmansee their delegate at the County annual meeting at Putnam Thursday May 1st. During the balance of the afternoon, Mrs. Gaskell lived up to her reputation as a hostess, serving delicious refreshments with true southern hospitality, being assisted by her neighbor, Mrs. Kilpatrig.

Wednesday, Mrs. Allen Moody with her little son Manfred, and Bobby Joslyn, returned home for the summer, she having suffered severely from malaria, and so compelled to shorten her stay in New York by a month.

Whip-poor-wills were heard in Westminster the week of April 20, the earliest in ten years.

The new town library is assured. In the second part of the school exercises of which Supervisor E. B. Floyd was chairman, Mr. Garrison, regional director was asked to speak and did, citing the case of East Killingly as example of what can be done and emphasizing the needs and possible result of a library in any town.

Previous to this, two lads from Frost school had given the number of books, with authors' names, read in a year, each giving an able review of one book.

After Mr. Garrison's talk, Mr. Floyd called upon the teachers to individually report what they had recieved or had promised toward a town library, it being stated that if the town raised $200 the state would give $200. Frost school, Miss Dawley teacher, had raised some $97, most of it through plays given by her pupils and an entertainment at Grange hall, several years ago, when a town library was first considered possible. After the schools had reported the $200 was in sight, and the balance was quickly subscribed by those present. To catalog the library and to furnish a room for it, will call for some extra expense. It is felt by many that the library should be located at the geographical center of the town (the town hall) that all may have equal access and opportunity to benefit by it.

Leadership - and why

Graham Brothers impressive advance to first position in the 1½ ton truck field, and second in the 1 ton and the 1½ ton fields combined—during the first quarter of 1925—is explained by four vital reasons:

1. Distinct price advantage.
2. Pronounced quality advantage.
3. Dodge Brothers engine.
4. Substantial character of Dodge Brothers dealer organization.

Ordinary logic demands that these facts receive your immediate consideration if you have any need whatever for a truck.

POETRY

In May

What May has done
For that old apple-tree,
How I wish
It might do for me!
For who grown old,
Would not look, now and then,
Young like that tree
That has blossomed again?

May, merry May,
Might accomplish that much
If it could reach,
With its magical touch,
More deeply down
In the life that is mine,
And change my blood
Into something like wine

To have the bloom
Of that old apple-tree,
I must, I know,
Have it first inwardly!
May, even May,
With its delicate art,
Cannot restore
What was once in my heart!
—Ralph H. Shaw in Boston Transcript.

The Wearing O' the Green

"The great unwritten law of golf
Is 'Please replace the turf,'
And by his attitude to this
We judge a player's worth.
So let us try this coming year
To pick our ball up clean,
Although there is no rule against
The wearing o' the green.

"I've met with scores of players,
The novice and the crack
Who, when they take a divot,
Forget to put it back.
'Tis the most distressful feature
That golf has ever seen,
We ought to try to remedy
The wearing o' the green.

"And if we find we cannot play
Unless we take the turf,
Just cover up the nakedness
Of poor old Mother Earth.
There's some will say it will not grow,
And leave it to be seen,
But there are men who take no heed,
For the wearing o' the green.

"So on this blessed summer day
Just make this solemn vow:
I promise to replace the turf,
Don't falter—do it now!
Your handicap may be reduced
More than it's ever been
By giving just a little thought
To the wearing o' the green."
—Frasers.

Three and a half million 1-2 cent stamps were recently shipped to western cities by airplane.

Recent psychological tests have shown that college students do their best work in the middle of the week.

Statistics are said to show that more money has been spent in drilling for oil than has been received from the sale of the petroleum produced.

The horseless age is a fact at Albany, Ore, a city of 5,000 inhabitants. The express company was the last to withdraw its horsedrawn equipment. Automobiles now serve every one who formerly used horses.

First class mail for the orient which reaches Seattle within a few hours after ships have sailed from there is saved one to three weeks' wait for the next sailing by airplanes, which catch the boats at Victoria, British Columbia.

The smallest animals at the London Zoo are pigmy mice from Gambia, in western Africa. They are smaller than bees, and a pair could easily set up housekeeping in an ordinary safety match box. While the pigmies were being shipped to London fifteen of them escaped through a hole smaller than might be made by a lead pencil and were never seen again.

A finger and toe nail-less family of women has been discovered by a Naples scientist, J. A. Pires de Lima. For three generations no woman in the family has had a full-fledged finger or toe nail. The investigations fo de Lima show that in every other way the women are normal and healthy. What is particularly obnoxious to the women is that they should be overlooked in this manner, while their seven healthy brothers have full sets of healthy nails. Of three finger nailless daughters, one has been married and produced daughters who are also without finger or toe nails.

A new method of getting cockroaches to leave home has been put to test by Dr. Paul Mitchell, quarantine officer at Townsville, Australia. In fumigating luggage of passangers, Dr. Mitchell noted that veteran travelers sometimes used magnesium sulphate, better known as Epsom salts, to ward off vermin. As the linen closets of the quarantine station were populated with cockroaches, silverfish, moths and a certain kind of ants, he cleaned out the shelves and scattered crystals of the salt over the lines of certain closets. Observations at the end of a year showed that no vermin had returned to the salt-treated cupboards, and Dr. Mitchell reports that magnesium sulphate in closed spaces should be an efficient pest remover.

PLAINFIELD TOWN COURT IS ESTABLISHED BY THE LEGISLATURE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, May 19—Among the bills passed in the house today was one creating a town court in the town of Plainfield. At first proposed it included within its jurisdiction the town of Sterling but that has been eliminated from the bill as passed.

Section 1 provides that the court shall have cognizance and jurisdiction of all criminal matters within the corporate limits of the town. Provision is made for appeal from any judgment of the court to the superior court of Windham county. It is given exclusive jurisdiction of all complaints for crimes and misdemeanors committed within the town, in which the punishment provided by law shall not exceed a fine of $200.00 or imprisonment for a term of six months. If the offense charged as such as to require a greater punishment the court may bind over for appearance before the next term of superior court in Windham county. There is to be a judge and with power to appoint a deputy to act in his absence. In case of the death of the judge the deputy assumes the office. In case of the inability of either one to act the prosecuting attorney in writing may call in a qualified justice of the peace, a resident of the town.

The judge is to act as clerk of the court.

The judge is to appoint a prosecuting attorney, and an assistant. The judge is to receive a salary of $500.00 per annum, the deputy judge $100.00, the prosecuting attorney $500.00 and the assistant $100.00. This compensation is to be in lieu of all fees whatsoever for their services, and are to be paid monthly from the treasury of the town. The town is to furnish adequate room for court purposes. The powers of justices of the peace in civil activities remain as at present.

Another bill passed by the house was the senate bill that validates the election held in April, 1925, and provides for biennial elections in the future, in the borough of Colchester.

Another important act passed was nte one defining the term "Qualifying Academic Certificate". It provides that any certificate issued by the secretary of the state board of education certifying that the person to whom the same shall be issued has had the preliminary academic education required by any provision of the general statutes or by any regulation of any board for admission to an examination to practice any profession or for admission to the practice of any other profession for which evidence of academic education shall be required by the provisions of the general status.

Ex Mayor Herbert M. Lerou, Secretary of the State Pharmacy Board, with Representative George E. Engler of Norwich were in consultation with Legislative committee on Public Health and Safety, regarding proposed changes in the Pharmacy law. The bill had been recommitted for this purpose.

The house chamber was crowded to capacity today when a joint session was held in order to receive Governor Trumbull who had as his guest, Hon. E. Lee Trinkle, Governor of Virginia. When the visiting party entered they were greeted with prolonged applause.

Following an eloquent plea for unity and co-operation between the south and the north, Governor E. Lee Trinkle of Virginia today told the members of the house and senate of the general assembly in joint session at the state capitol that the time had come for the laying aside of petty political differences and the consecration of effort to the service of America regardless of partisanship and personal ambitions.

"It is sometimes difficult for me, whether I stand here or in our own capitol or in the marble halls at Washington and look into the faces of the members of representative bodies to tell whether the men and women I see before me are patriots or politicians," declared the Virginia executive. "It is difficult to tell whether they are patriots looking after the welfare of their country or politicians looking after their own sordid interests. It sometimes seems as though both political parties in their legislative activities were thinking of laying down successful political issues for the next campaign rather than of what is best for the country and the people. But I believe the time has come for the laying aside of petty political differences and for working with the spirit of unity and co-operation for that which spells prosperity for America. It is time to lay aside our personal hopes and ambitions and loves and think only of that which is best for America. I am sure that that is the spirit which finds a place in the hearts of you men and women before me now."

The remarks by Governor Trinkle were interrupted by applause from the members of the general assembly.

The visiting executive recalled the visit last year of Governor Templeton to Virginia and of the interest that the Connecticut governor took in the fact that some of the door fittings in the executive mansion in Richmond were made in Connecticut.

"Last year we had the honor of a visit from your distinguished governor, Governor Templeton," said Governor Trinkle, "and I recall that scarcely had he entered the executive mansion, that beautiful house built by Mr. Monroe, than I found him looking with a peculiar stare at the hardware. He soon discovered that the governors of Virginia had, since those early days, been opening the door of the executive mansion with a knob that was made in Connecticut and he also discovered that the clock there which has been ticking for centuries was made in Connecticut. So you see that our two states are not so far apart after all.

"We are here because we love the Foot Guard of Connecticut and our gates of hospitality never swing open so widely as when we are welcoming these military representatives of your state."

Governor Trinkle recalled the reception that he and the Richmond Blues received in New Haven yesterday with the declaration that, "it was inspiring, it was colorful, yes, it was uplifting."

Referring t othe fact that the Connecticut legislature has several women members, Governor Trinkle said, "I see scattered in this hall several ladies whom I am told are members of this distinguished assembly. I want to say that way back yonder, when I was a good deal younger than I am now, I sponsored the cause of woman suffrage. I recall that when I introduced a resolution to give women the rights and privileges of political responsibility, I could find only one other member who would vote for the measure.

"But I know that your presence here spells for good and will in no way tend to dethrone you from your rightful place as queens of your husbands' hearts, arbitresses of his destiny, sovereigns of the realm of home, patronesses of genius. I rejoice in the part you are now allowed to play in service to your country in this representative capacity."

Governor Trinkle declared that since the war, the world had been shell shocked and that "men are faltering uncertain as to the party they should follow." Anyone with a quack remedy can find millions to beat the drum and follow in his wake. If ever there was a time when patriotism was needed, it is now. This is no time for men of the north and men of the south to exploit their differences. This is no time to debate whether the Pilgrim Fathers landed in the north or whether government had its beginnings in this country in the south. This is rather the time to recall the magnanimity of Grant and the godlike majestry of Lee, the fiery impetuosity of Jackson and the marvelous eloquence of Jefferson. We of Virginia esteem you of Connecticut, we admire you and we rejoice in your prosperity and your progress.

Governor Trinkle was presented to the members of the general assembly by Governor Trumbull, who spoke briefly, saying that as chief executive one of the pleasant experiences that are his is an occasion such as that of today and that he was pleased and honored to present the distinguished governor of Virginia.

Governor Trinkle began his address with the salutation, "Your Excellency, Mr. President, Mr. Speaker and my fellow Americans, I profoundly appreciate the courtesy you are extending to me, not personally but as a representative of the mother of states."

A resolution was adopted in the house about 11:30 authorizing the speaker to appoint a committee of two to inform the senate the house was ready to meet a joint convention to greet the governor of Virginia. Mr. Alling and Minority Leader Bransfield of Portland, were appointed on the committee and the house then recessed. The senators came in at 1:55 and Lieutenant-Governor Brainard presided at the joint convention.

Arrival at Capitol

Governor and Mrs. Trinkle arrived with Governor and Mrs. Trumbull at the state capitol shortly after 11 o'clock, having motored from Plainville, where the distinguished visitors spent the night at the home of Governor Trumbull.

At the executive offices in the state capitol, the party was augmented by Miss Marjorie Alling, of Bridgeport, and Executive Secretary Edward L. Kelly of Bridgeport.

Governor Trinkle, who bears a striking resemblance of the late Senator Frank B. Brandegee except that he wears his hair a bit longer in the southern statesman style, was introduced to Executive Clerk Frank D. Rood by Governor Trumbull. The Virginia executive complimented Mr. Rood on his forty-six years of service to the state and was then presented to several members of the governor's staff, who had arrived at the executive offices. Clerk J. Frederick Baker of the senate and House Leader Benjamin W. Alling were presented to Governor Trinkle and arrangements were at once made for the joint session of the general assembly.

THE HOUSE

The house was late today in assembling as it was 10:42 when Speaker Darbie's gavel fell. Prayer was offered by the house chaplain, Rev. Arthur J. Lewis.

The motion of Representative Sherwood, of Waterbury, which was pending when the house adjourned Thursday, to take from the table, H. B. 516, amending the charter of the city of Waterbury was withdrawn.

Judge B. W. Alling, of New Britain, and Mr. Bransfield were appointed to notify the senate that the house was ready to meet them in joint session.

The senate entered soon after led by Lt. Governor Brainard, who assumed the chair and called the convention to order. Prayer was made by the senate chaplain, Rev. Edward P. Ayer. Senator Cronin, Representatives Alling and Bransfield were appointed a committee to notify the governor that the convention was ready to receive him and his guest, Governor E. Lee Trinkle, of Virginia. Governor Trumbull soon entered accompanied by Governor Trinkle and in a brief address introduced the governor to the assembly.

At the close of the joint session the business of the house was resumed. The judiciary reported unfavorably on H. B. 771 concerning moving pictures in public schools.

Committee on forfeited rights reported unfavorably upon the petitions for restoration of rights to Michael Dominick, Charles R. King, James Henry Burwell, Herbert M. Knapp, Nicholas Fagan, Peter Turlocki, Thomas D. Daly, John Ricci, George H. Hummell, William H. Harlow, Arthur W. Dickinson, Albert L. Wilson, and Leonard F. Maloney. The reports were accepted and the petitioners were given leave to withdraw. The house concurred with the senate in rejection of all bills that had failed of passage in that body and in passage of the bills there passed.

Among those passed was one concerning elective officer in the borough of Colchester. Bill concerning amending the charter of the New Haven Water Co., came back to the house on disagreeing action with a request for a committee of conference. On motion of Judge Alling the matter was tabled, he giving notice that it would be taken up tomorrow.

Judge Pec kexpressed his regret that the appropriation committee had not been able to recommend an appropriation for the building of an armory in Bristol. S. B. $39, a favorable hole report on an act concerning an investigation and report on the probable water resources of the state was recommitted to the committee.

SENATE

The senate met today at 10.30 (standard time), with Lieutenant-Governor Brainard in the chair. Prayer by the chaplain.

Busses on Shore Line

The committee on railroads reported favorably on a bill amending the charter of the New Haven Shore Line Railway company to authorize it to operate busses through the shore towns between New Haven and Old Lyme.

The committee on finance reported favorably on a substitute bill authorizing the city of Bridgeport to issue "Yellow Mill bridge" bonds to the amount of $800,000 at a rate of interest not exceeding 5 per cent. Calendar.

Senator Cronin explained the unfavorable report of the committee on the judiciary on the bill relating to cases in action. The senator said no one appeared in favor of the bill at the time of the hearing. The bill was rejected. The bill provided exemption from taxation so much of a bond or note secured by real estate mortgage as does not exceed the assessed value of the real estate.

The committee on appropriations reported favorably on a substitute bill for an appropriation of $5,000 to the First Company, Governor's Foot Guard for the purchase of clothing and equipment. Calendar.

The committee on the judiciary reported favorably on a substitute bill providing retirement allowances for state employes. It provides that any employe in the service of the state thirty years or who has served the state twenty years and who has reached the age of 70 years may be retired by the board of control on one-half salary for the average of the five preceding years; in service of state thirty-five years and less than forty years may receive two-thirds average salary for the five preceding years; for forty years or more service, including those who were retired prior to 1923, three-fourths salary. Employes who were in the service of the state thirty-five years and less than forty at the time of retirement under the old law will receive two-thirds their average salary for five years. Calendar.

Restricting Local Indebtedness

The committee on finance reported a bill to prevent towns or cities, including sub-divisions, to incur a total aggregate indebtedness to exceed 5 per cent. of the town's grand list. In computing the net indebtedness subject to the limit prescribed by this act bonds issued for the supply of water, gas, electricity or for the construction of subways or underground conduits for cables, wires and pipes shall not be included. Calendar.

Thomas W. Farrell of Windsor Locks was elected deputy judge of the local court of that town.

The senate adjourned to Wednesday at 10.30 (Standard Time).

The city has apparatus of both makes in use in the fire department and firemen favor both makes. The Ponemocs have a Seagraves, while the Niagaras has a La France. It is claimed that there are members of the department who have a special interest in the purchase of either machine and that these are seeking to have their choice made that of the council. ### NEW YORK AUTHORITIES ASK ABOUT FRANK GRUNDY

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, May 19—The New York authorities are seeking from the New London police information relative to Frank Grundy, 35, who was in the police court May 26, 1923, charged with the theft of a diamond ring from the store of Roddy & Costello, on State street. Particularly are the authorities in New York anxious for the Bertillion measurements of Grundy. As the Bertillion system is not employed for the identification of prisoners here, the information sought will not be forthcoming but the New York authorities will be referred to the Pittsburgh police, who arrested Grundy at the request of the New London police. Grundy, who was a jewelry salesman, visited the New London store and examined several diamond rings, stealing one of them while an attendant absented himself for a few seconds. Following his arrest Grundy was sentenced in the superior court to not less than one year, nor more than three years in state prison.

UNFORTUNATE COLORED GIRL ACCUSES FORMER EMPLOYER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 19—Another scandal may be revealed in New London with a few days, unless a well known resident in the southern part of the city makes restitution for his alleged wrongdoing and already steps have been taken in an effort to compel the resident to make a settlement with the girl he is alleged to have wronged.

Within a week a colored girl, 23 appeared in New London, coming here from Hartford and with her comes the story that the New London man, who is well known, is the father of her child, which is at the present time in a charitable institution in that city. The girl alleges that while she was employed in the New Londoner's home as a domestic her relations with the head of the house started and ended only when her condition became such that she went to Hartford to cover up her shame.

After the child was born it was placed in the Hartford institution where the girl has paid for the child's keep until a month ago, when she was thrown out of employment and could not continue payments. Finally in despair, the girl came to New London and being without funds, sought aid from the alleged father of the child. The man refused to have anything to do with the girl and the latter then made known her plight to some church-goers of her race, with the result that the matter has been taken up with the authorities. What the result will be cannot be foretold, but those who are defriending the girl-mother, declare that the New London resident will be compelled to do something for the girl if it is no more than support the child.

MARKET WAS BROAD

New York, May 19—High priced industrial specialties reported to be under pool control led another vigorous advance in today's stock market. Trading showed a marked expansion in volume, the day's sales running over one and one-half million shares. While the demand for stocks showed a broadening tendency, the motors and public utilities continued to give the best demonstrations — of group strength. Tobacco and steel shares also attracted a larger following.

Financial interest was divided between the buoyancy of the stock market and the strength of sterling exchange, which advanced to within one cent of parity and the highest price in nearly 11 years. Buying of sterling bills was stimulated by South Africa's return to the gold standard on the theory that this would lead to an expansion of gold shipments to England.

Although public participation in the stock market was still relatively small, there was a better demand for the recognized industrial leaders. United States Steel common was bid up 2 1-4 points to 118 3-4, a new high current movement and Baldwin closed fractionally higher at 114 1-2. American Can continued its steady advance by touching a new peak price at 193 and then slipping back to 192 5-8, where it was up 2 1-8 on the day.

Utah securities was the spectacular individual feature, soaring 17 1-2 points to a new record price at 144, as compared with a low of 41 1-8 only a few months ago. Mack Trucks jumped more than nine points to a new top at 183 and then dropped back to 177 3-4. Nash Motors more than doubled its year's low by jumping nine points to a new top price of 406. Dupont, which owns a large interest in General Motors and is reported to be negotiating for Mack Trucks, soared nearly 11 points to 165.

Other outstanding individual strong spots includes Associated Dry Goods Electric Power and Light certificates, General Electric, Foundation company, International Business Machine, May Department Stores, Sloss-Sheffield Steel, Union Tank Car, and Virginia Railway and Power, all of which closed from 3 to 8 1-2 points higher.

Oil shares were under steady accumulation on the announcement of an increase in Smackover heavy crude prices. Houston Oil stood out with a gain of more than four points at 76.

The surprising turn for the better this spring in the automotive industry was reflected in the brisk demand for those shares the three Pierce-Arrow issues, Willys-Overland and Briggs Body all climbing to new high ground.

Sporadic strength developed in the railroad group, which was featured by the heavy buying of the Wabash issues, all of which broke through to new maximum prices for the year on net gains of 2 to 3 points. Another advance in the price of lead brought fresh buying into American Smelting which closed 2 3-8 points higher at 98 5-8.

There were several weak spots scattered throughout the list, Marine common and preferred each broke more than two points to new low levels for the year on reports that spring earnings had not come up to earlier expectations. Sharp losses also took place in Cushman's Bakery and United States Cast Iron Pipe.

Call money held steady at 3 3-4 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged with business quiet.

Foreign exchanges were irregular. Most of the continental currencies lost ground. French francs dropped about 2 1-2 points to 5.15 cents and Italian lira slumped six points to 4.01 cents.

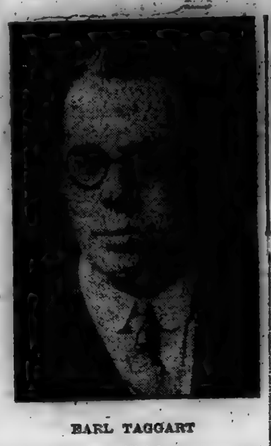
EARL TAGGART TO HEAD DRIVE OF SALVATION ARMY IN THIS CITY



EARL TAGGART

The following official announcement of the Salvation Army drive for $5,000 for its home service fund is made:

In the last several years the Norwich pubic has been called upon to support various drives for good causes. Our citizens learned the noble art of giving and are happier because of their generosity. All the drives that took place in our city were for institutions which helped make Norwich a better city to live in with an unselfish citizenry always alive to the civic and charitable needs of our city. However, the old "War Horses," the noble old fellows who have always shouldered the responsibility of doing the driving are becoming tired and in their fine modesty would rather put their shoulders to the wheel and help along under the leadership of the younger men. It is a very wise and politic move for civic betterment on the part of those who were foremost in carrying the brunt of the civic activities in our city. They want the young men who are to supplant them in the affairs of the city to come forward and step into their places at an earlier age than in less advanced communities. And it is gratifying to note that this wise forethought is bearing fruit. The younger men are coming to the front to accept leaderships in several civic activities with a virility and determination which shows the timber of which they are made, bidding well for the future of our community.

In the last Boy Scout Drive, E. A. Harris, a young member of the Rotary Club, came to the front with a vim and perseverance which put the drive across in practically three days. The veterans of the Rotary Club stood behind him in a noble phalanx and a team of the Lions Club, all young men, worked as they never worked before to see young Harris go over the top. Those who were present at these Boy Scout Campaign meetings will ever remember the sincerity and enthusiasm of the young chairman and his workers.

The Boys' Week celebrated for the first time in Norwich with Judge Nelson J. Ayling as chairman proved the civic trend of events in our city. Judge Ayling acted the wise supervising father confident of the ability of our younger citizens, he left most of the work to the leadership of young E. A. Harris and the crowning success of the Boy's Week celebration was worthy of his confidence.

Now Earl Taggart, of the Norwich Gas & Electric department, a member of the Lion's Club, the youngest member in our community to assume civic responsibility in forging to the fore in the service of humanity as chairman of the Salvation Army drive. He will carry the banner of the Salvation Army in a one day appeal to take place on Tuesday, May 26th, to raise $5,000 for the Home Service Fund for 1925. And by what we already know the old fellows of the Rotary Club have put on a grim aspect and are determined to stand solidly behind this young leader and see him to victory. The Lions Club will surely follow the noble example of the oldet organization. And there is not the slightest doubt in the mind of Earl Taggart that all the churches and schools in our city will give him an enthusiastic hand. Watch Earl run around the city telling all his friends, with the fire and enthusiasm of youth that he will put the drive over in one day. "Aiva Boy Earl!" Earl Taggart surely knows the heart of our people and he possesses the confidence of their support.

Another young man sincerely interested in the success of the Salvation Army appeal is Theodore R. Sage, of the Dime Savings Bank. Mr. Sage will act as treasurer of the drive and will surely make a fine team mate to Earl Taggart.

It is hoped that our people will give their whole hearted support to these two energetic young men and put the drive over the top in one day.

STARTING MOVEMENT TO RAISE HUTCHISON MEMORIAL

The class of 1883 of the Norwich Free Academy has started a movement to raise a fund for a new gymnasium as a memorial to Professor Hutchison. The plan for the Hutchison Memorial is fully explained in a circular letter mailed to graduates of the Academy. The letter is as follows:

Dear Classmate:

The class of 1883 has started something big. There is an immediate demand from other classes to get in on the proposition and help put it over. Healthy rivalry is springing up among former students to see that their class is not left in the ruck.

The members of the class of 1883 wanted a memorial to Professor Hutchison. A new gymnasium was suggested. Enthusiasm approval and subscriptions came in rapidly. Two graduates have already provided in their wills for legacies of $10000 and $20,000 respectively. Promises have been made of large contributions as soon as work is definitely begun. Cash payments are already in. Announcement is expected that at least $15,000 has been pledged by a small group of alumni contingent upon the raising of $35,000 within a year.

The proposed gymnasium will provide for the [illegible] instruction of the entire undergraduate body, as required by state law. It will have a floor for basket ball, a swimming pool, locker facilities, shower baths and everything necessary for adequate gymnasium training of the 300 boys and girls in the school, as well as providing equipment and housing for the teams in football, baseball, track, basket ball, tennis and hockey, and accommodations for visiting teams.

The estimated expense is $50,000.

But we can not wait for legacies. A fund is needed for the immediate construction of the building, and when the bequests become available they will provide maintenance and additional equipment required by the anticipated growth of the school.

How much will you sacrifice for our class and school?

SURPRISE BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR MISS CORA DISCO

Miss Cora Mae Disco, was pleasantly surprised Monday evening, when 25 of her young friends gathered at her home, 210 Broadway, in honor of her birthday. The house was beautifully decorated with flowers and ferns. Dancing and games were the principal features of the evening. Several piano selections were played by Miss Disco, and a novelty dance was done by Dana Lamitie and Florence Disco. Elizabeth O'Neil played several popular songs on a banjo ukulele. A grab bag created much excitement, each guest receiving a laughable favor. A silk mah jongg umbrella was presented Miss Disco from the guests.

Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Nelson Disco assisted by her daughter Florence.

Miss Cora Disco was one of the youngest girls to graduate from the W. W. Backus Hospital training school in 1923. She is a popular young nurse, and her career is her highest aim in life.

BIACH AND GEER DIVIDE YALE PRIZE

John Louis Biach of Providence, R. I., formerly of Norwich and Charles David Geer, Jr., of Norwich, members of the senior class of the Sheffield Scientific School, Yale University, have been awarded the Edward O. Lanphier Memorial prize of $100 for proficiency in the field of electrical engineering and especially for initiative show in research work.

The Edward O. Lanphier Prize was established in 1922 by a gift from Robert C. Lanphier, Ph. B. Yale 1897, and Mrs. Lanphier of Springfield, Ill., in memory of their son Edward Oliver Lanphier, of the Class of 1923 S., who died before completing the course in electrical engineering. More than half of the fund is made up of scholarship prizes won in the Sheffield Scientific School and money earned during vacations by Edward O. Lanphier. The income of the fund is awarded annually to members of the Senior class of the School for proficiency in the field of electrical engineering and especially to those showing initiative in research work. Owing to the high attainment and promise of Biach and Geer, the prize was divided this year.

Biach is the son of Ludwig E. Biach, consulting chemista for the Greenville Finishing Company, Providence. He was a scholar of the second rank in his Freshman year and the next year winner of the Benjamin F. Barge and the Stone Trust Corporation prizes for excellence in mathematics. Biach is a member of the honorary scientific society of Sigma Xi and a member of the executive committee of the Yale Branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers. He received third place in the call votes as the most brilliant member of his class. His father was formerly chemist at the United States Finishing Co. in this city.

Geer is the son of the late Charles David Geer of Norwich. ## MAKE NUMEROUS AMENDMENTS TO MOTOR CAR LAWS

Hartford, May 19.—(A. P.)—The amendments to the general laws governing the use of motor vehicles were adopted in the house of representatives today and as this is the bill from the motor vehicle department it is expected that the senate will adopt the same in concurrence.

The changes in laws are numerous but mainly in details. In the first section descriptive of vehicles a "rubber tired" vehicle which is propelled by other than muscular power is classed as a motor vehicle. A "trailer" shall mean any "rubber tired" vehicle without motive power drawn or propelled by a motor vehicle.

In section 3, the commissioner shall furnish without charge "for official use only" certified copies of certificates, etc., to "officials" of the state or municipalities "in this state." A sentence added is "any certified copy of any document or record of the commissioner, attested as a true copy by the commissioner, deputy commissioner or chief clerk, shall be competent evidence in any court of this state of the facts there in contained."

In section 5 appears this change: "* * * said commissioner shall refuse to register any motor vehicle which shall not be equipped with lighting devices as prescribed by section 41 of said chapter 400."

In section 6 there is this addition: "The commissioner of motor vehicles may refuse to register any motor vehicle which shall be incapable of maintaining a rate of speed of at least 12 miles per hour without the approval in writing of the highway commissioner."

Number Plates on Dec. 31

In section 7 there are the following additions in regard to number plates: "Provided, on renewal of any registration, the number plates so assigned for the ensuing year may be so displayed on the last week day of December of the year preceding that for which such number plates shall have been assigned" and "provided any motor vehicle may upon permission of the commissioner of motor vehicles, display more than one number plate in front or rear, subject to such conditions as said commissioner shall prescribe."

In section 8, which deals with commercial registration of cars the record of inspection shall be subject to inspection by any officer "designated by the commissioner." It also provides that "no public service motor vehicle shall be registered unless the owners thereof shall have complied with the provisions of chapter 340 of the public acts of 1921."

In section 10, relating to fees for registration it says: "Two and one-half tons, $45; three tons $52.50; three and a half tons $60.

In the same section this paragraph is added: "For the registration of any other trailer there shall be charged the same fee as is provided for commercial motor vehicles in sub-section (A) of said section 22. The commissioner, with the approval of the highway commissioner, may permit any municipality to attach more than one trailer to a motor vehicle, which trailer may be used by such municipality in any work in connection with any governmental duty, and the commissioner shall so determine the registration fees for the use of such additional trailer."

Showing Registration

In section 12, which relates to an officer intercepting a motor vehicle it provides that an operator of a machine shall show his registration card, "when requested by any other person."

In section 13, which relates to punishment for reckless driving and other forbidden things are these new sentences: "Any person who shall violate any provision of sub-section (B) of this section (excessive speed) shall be fined not less than ten nor more than one hundred dollars. No person shall be convicted of a violation of both sub-sections (A) (relating to recklessness) and (B) of this section if the same act shall constitute both violations."

Applying to Public Service Machines

In section 15, relating to passenger service there is this new provision: "Every public service motor vehicle of a seating capacity of more than seven shall have exits on more than one side. * * * "No jitney shall carry more passengers than the seating capacity thereof, provided upon application to the public utilities commission, said commission may, after examination of such jitney, issue to the owner thereof a license to carry such a number of passengers in excess of the seating capacity of such jitney and not exceeding 25 per centum of such seating capacity, as said commission shall deem reasonable, provided such license may be issued upon such conditions and for such additional fee as said commission may prescribe. The total number of persons carried at any time by any public service motor vehicle, "other than a jitney" shall not exceed two persons more than the regular seating capacity. "The commissioner shall determine the seating capacity of any motor vehicle used for the transportation of school children." No motor vehicle which so used shall carry any number of passengers in excess of such seating capacity and the commissioner may suspend the registration of any such motor vehicle for any violation of this provision for such term as he may deem advisable."

View of Highway

In section 16, the changes are: "No article shall be attached to any motor vehicle in such a manner as to interfere with an unobstructed view of the highway upon which any person shall be operating a motor vehicle." The commissioner of motor vehicles, by himself or an inspector authorized by him; and any commissioner or officer of the state police department, may examine any motor vehicle, its number, equipment and identification. Any person who shall wilfully interfere with or obstruct or attempt to interfere with or obstruct any such examination shall be fined not more than fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days or both."

In succeeding sections there are numerous changes in phraseology of the present law. In the last section is this new provision: "Any person renting or leasing to another any motor vehicle owned by him shall be liable for any damage to any person or property caused by the operation of such motor vehicle while so rented or leased."

The R. & J. Waist Co., of New London has leased the Elgart factory in Colchester for a period of years and has already started a branch factory there. The R. & J. Its business and lines have greatly increased in recent years, until now with more than 100 power sewing machines operating in its New London plant, it cannot manufacture its product in sufficient quantities to meet the demand.

It is the intention of this company to have 100 machines in operation in Colchester when the new factory is operating to capacity. Now about 25 are in operation.

MOVEMENT TO ABOLISH THE FED. TRADE COMMISSION

May Result From the Challenge by Commissioner W. E. Humphrey of the Right of the Senate to Direct the Commission to Make Investigations as Senator Borah Declared the Commission is Not Going to be of Any Service to the Country—Other Senators Coincide With Borah's View of the Matter.

Washington, May 20—(A. P.)—Strong indications that an effort will be made at the next session of congress to abolish the federal trade commission followed quickly upon an address by Commissioner W. E. Humphrey, challenging the right of the senate to direct it to make investigations for its information.

Mr. Humphrey, citing several senate resolutions directing investigations not directly relating to alleged anti-trust law violations, announced that "the question of our jurisdiction" under such resolutions have been submitted to the attorney general and that his opinion would be followed "until reversed by the courts."

Commenting on the commissioner's address, which was delivered before the annual convention of the United States Chamber of Commerce, Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, declared that "it seems to me that the best thing to do with the federal trade commission is to abolish it."

Mr. Borah, who opposed the bill which created the commission on the ground that political considerations were likely to influence its official acts, was joined with other senators in the view that its action with respect to senate resolutions had demonstrated that it could not be expected to carry out the plans they regarded as leading to its establishment.

"It is perfectly apparent," Mr. Borah said. "That it is not going to be of any service t othe country, and in the interest of economy and peace in the business world. It would be better to abolish it. After a commission of this kind comes under the influence of factional politics and political pressure from the outside, it can be of no possible service to the people. The commission is no longer a protection to the small business interests— the purpose of its creation cannot under existing conditions be realized."

Mr. Humphrey told the business men that the federal trade commission act provided that the agency should have power, "upon the direction of the president or either house of congress to investigate and report the facts relating to any alleged violations of the anti-trustacts by any corporation."

Recalling that the senate, but not the house, so far as he knew, had directed the commission to make certain investigations, he declared that "some of the resolutions that have been passed by the senate, it seems to me, have gone far beyond our jurisdiction."

He cited resolutions by Senator La Follette, Republican, Wisconsin, Norris, Republican, Nebraska, and Shipstead, Farmer Labor, Minnesota, and asserted that "it is clearly apparent that the primal motive in all of them is political; to advance the personal fortunes for some person, party, or class."

"However commendable such purpose may be," he added, "the congress, in its infinite wisdom, has not made it any concern of the commission, and neither does congress, in its boundless generosity, provide funds for such work.

"If the commission must respond to every resolution of either house of congress, then it is entirely within the power of either house to control the commission's activities. When it would be entirely within the power of either house to use the commission absolutely as a publicity bureau to spend such prepaganda as the whim of the hour might dictate."

The La Follette resolution directed investigation of production, distribution, transportation and sale of flour and bread, including by-products, from the time the wheat leaves the farm until the bread is delivered to the consumers. The Norris resolution, as outlined by Mr. Humphrey, sought a report covering everything in connection with propaganda "through the expenditure of money or through the control of the avenues of publicity, to influence or control public opinion of the question of municipal or public ownership of the means by which power is developed and electric energy is generated and distributed." That of Senator Shipstead, the commissioner added, "directs the commission, among other things, to secure information with respect to the economic advantages and disadvantages of the co-operative movement in this country as compared with other types of marketing farm products."

"It seems to me," he continued, "that these resolutions are about as wide as the English language and inclusive as the imagination. I do not very well understand how the commission can proceed to investigate everything under the sun that relates to a great industry, when no specific charges are made, or evidence submitted, and when there is nothing that would give us reason to believe that such investigation would lead to the discovery that there was violation of the anti-trust act. Certainly we would have no power to compel the production of evidence under such resolutions."

"If I am right in my contention, then such resolutions are not within the power given by the act of congress to the commission, and an attempt to carry them out would not only be without authority but would be an direct violation of law. It would be illegally expending public funds and an act that would be official misconduct, sufficient to warant our dismissal. In this connection it is recalled that the supreme court now has under consideration a case in which the jurisdiction of the commission to conduct investigations into the books and papers of corporations by direction of the senate is at issue. It recently decided that, acting under a senate resolution, the commission could not compel certain grain concerns in Baltimore to furnish information which it sought in connection with proposed legislation intended to increase the foreign market for American wheat."

New York, May 20—Sterling exchange today approached within one-half cent of dollar parity—$4.86 5-8—which goal has not been reached since November 1914.

The world-wide interest in Sterling's remarkable recovery from the extreme low of $3.19 in February, 1920, was evident from the buying orders which have poured into New York during the last week from the Far East, Australia, South Africa, South America and other remote corners of the globe, as well as from London, Paris, Berlin, Amsterdam, the Hague, Copenhagen, Uzrich, Rome, Madrid and other European centers.

Waterbury, May 20—In the arrest here today of John L. Andrews and John Williams and the discovery of ten or 12 automobiles whose engine numbers are believed by police to have been altered, local authorities uncovered what they allege to be a clearing house for stolen cars.

Investigation at the Square Deal garage at 590 Hamilton avenue, disclosed to police a set of number dies, the size of which are alleged to agree with the reported altered figures on th engine blocks of the cars found at the place.

Probe of activity at the garage followed the discovery on Bank street early this afternoon by Salvatore Bosco, of 34 Branch street, of an automobile which he said was stolen from him heer last December. Andrews, the driver, told police he had purchased the car from a Hamilton avenue garage but was unable to hsow registration for it. He was arrested on a charge of driving a car without registration.

Bosco's story sent Lieutenant Joseph P. Stevens and Sergeant Henry L. Johnson, of the detective bureau to the Square Deal garage where Williams was taken into custody. He is charged with mutilating automobile numbers. The same count was also lodged against Andrews.

The girl shot Miss Simnick three times, then turned the pistol on her father and fired once, but missed. As she pressed the trigger again, her mother rushed in front of her father, and was wounded by the last of the girl's bullets. The mother said she did not know her daughter had the pistol.

12 Ballots Fail To Elect Coadjutor

Episcopal Diocesan Convention Leaves Matter to Bishop Brewster and Standing Committee.

New Haven, May 20—Because of the failure here today of the annual convention to elect a coadjutor, a special diocesan convention of the Episcopal church of Connecticut will be called to elect a bishop coadjutor, who shall in turn succeed the Venerable Bishop Chauncey B. Brewster.

When the twelfth ballot taken during an all day session of the convention failed to break a deadlock of the three leading nominees for coadjutor, the convention voted to leave the matter of his election in the hands of Bishop Brewster and the standing committee who are to call a special convention at some later date.

On the twelfth ballot, after the field had been narrowed to three leaders in the seventh ballot, Rev. Samuel S. Drury, rector of St. Paul's school, Concord, N. H., had 55 votes; Suffragan Bishop E. Campion Acheson, of Portland, 45, and Rev. John N. Lewis, of St. John's church, Waterbury, 19.

The first ballot in the morning gave Rev. Mr. Acheson 45 votes; Rev. Mr. Drury 18; Rev. Mr. Lewis, 19; Rev. Frederick H. Sill, headmaster of Kent school, Kent, 28, and the remaining of the 140 ballots cast scattered among 12 others. Rev. Mr. Sill on the seventh ballot received six votes and none on the eleventh and twelfth. The constitutional majority necessary to elect the coadjutor, as announced by Dr. John S. Plumb, of Hartford, secretary of the diocese, was one-third of the votes of all the clergy in the diocese and representatives of thirty parishes.

Between the balloting small groups of the clergy gathered outside of Trinity church where the convention was held and discussed the possible switching of the supporters of one of the leaders to another. Wives of the delegates, occupying seats in the balcony, were interested spectators to the day's business and the balloting.

Arch Deacon Brown twice moved that the convention leave the selection of the coadjutor until a later date. His first attempt came after the fifth ballot, and then second after the twelfth.

When the eleventh ballot showed the futility of further balloting in the short time before adjournment for supper was necessary, the clergy voted to give the lay deputies a chance.

S. Van B. Nichols, of Norwalk, then to express themselves on the election. rose and asked for an adjournment for a short time so that the individual men representing the different candidates could get together and agree on one of the three leaders. Mr. Nichols suggested that when the convention reconvened, if the first ballot failed to elect, the election be postponed.

Burton Mansfield, chairman of the lay delegates, replied that the lay delegates were there to take care of the business allotted them and would stay there until tomorrow night if necessary.

Cattle in London Streets.

The custom of driving pigs, sheep and cattle through the streets, a practice begun centuries ago when London was a village, is still being carried on. However, it is seldom that the public generally witnesses the sight as the work is done during the early hours of the morning. A herd of cattle, delayed on its way to the market, got into a traffic jam recently in Holborn, one of the city's main thoroughfares, and extra policemen had to be called to assist the drivers in their task of getting the animals started again. The present day city regulations provide that live stock can be driven through the streets only between the hours of midnight and 5 in the morning.

A Strange Job.

On a housetop near the Eiffel Tower in Paris there works each day a soldier of the French army who has the queerest job any soldier ever had. His name is Pierre Fleury and he is official cloud painter to the weather bureau. Beside him works a cloud photographer, also a soldier. When the camera clicks a record from a cloud Fleury takes a brush and records its color in all its variations and with an exactitude that is scientific. The army is establishing a complete series of cloud conditions for the use of airplane pilots and for codifications in the study of weather conditions.

Since the introduction in 1922 of the honor club system in Roosevelt Junior high school, Springfield, Ohio, the number of students averaging 90 per cent or better increased from 5 to 22 per cent. All the other junior high schools in the city are now using a similar plan to stimulate scholarship.

Girl Stolen From Summer Cottage

Posses Are Searching Maine Woods For Miss Aida Heyward and Her Abductor.

Winthrop, Maine, May 20.—(A. P.)—Armed posses numbering between 100 and 200 men returned to Winthrop tonight after a futile search through the surrounding woods for Miss Aida Heyward and her abductor, who early this morning stole here away from her summer cottage on Lake Maranacook after firing two shots at her aunt, Mrs. Emma M. Towns and then setting fire to the cottage.

Authorities here are without any definite clue other than the fact that they were searching for a closed automobile seen upon the roads early this morning carrying a man and a woman. State police guarded all roads tonight in the hopes that this car the number of which the authorities believe they know, might turn up. A cap was found near the cottage and a name in the crown written in ink indicated that its owner might be an employe of a Mount Vernon dance hall. It also was learned that the name in the cap was that of a prominent man in Boston financial circles, and F. H. Moulton of Lexington, Mass., a brother-in law of the abducted woman, has wired to this man asking if he had ever given such a cap to any one while on a vacation trip in Maine.

One false clue after another was followed in the search for Miss Heyward and the man who shot at Mrs. Towns, and burned the cottage to the ground.

Winthrop tonight resembled the little town of Randolph, Vermont, a few weeks ago when angered citizens armed themselves and went into the woods after Earl Woodward and Lucille Cheverton. But Winthrop citizens have even fewer clews to follow than did the Vermont searchers.

The shooting, kidnapping and the burning of the cottage occurred early this morning. Miss Heyward and her aunt had returned from an entertainment in Winthrop. As they entered the house, Mrs. Towns later told a physician, a man shot at her twice without warning. She fell to the floor and heard the man say something about money and jewelry, then tell her niece to go with him, and there would be no more trouble. She heard them leave, she told the physician, and lay on the floor for perhaps three-quarters of an hour. Then, she said, the man returned, looked at her, apparently believed her dead and set fire to the cottage. She escaped from the burning building and made her way to another cottage, where she was found when the firemen arrived.

The fire was discovered about three o'clock this morning. Tracks were picked up, those of a man and a woman, and were followed over a hill for about a mile to Stanley road, where automobile tracks showed that a car apparently had been stopped at the side of the road.

BLOODHOUNDS PUT ON TAIL OF THE ABDUCTOR

Winthrop, Maine, May 20.—(A. P.)—Bloodhounds tonight went on the trail of the man who early today shot and wounded Mrs. Emma Towns, abducted her 35 years old niece, Miss Aida Heyward and then fired their sumifer cottage on the shore of Maranacook lake. The dogs picked up the tracks of a man and a woman that led to the top of a hill along Stanley road.

"DEMOCRATITIS" SWEEPING THE NAUGATUCK VALLEY

Hartford, May 20—"Democratitis, a new disease, which leads men high in the councils of the republican party to recommend democrats for office is sweeping the lower Naugatuck valley from Derby to Waterbury," Lieutenant Governor Brainard told members of the judiciary committee this afternoon in appearing favor of the appointment of Ralph Clark as judge of the Derby city court. Alfred C. Baldwin, present judge of the court, who will go on the superior court bench, appeared in favor of William Healey, law partner of ex-congressman Patrick B. O'Sullivan. Judge Baldwin said that Mr. Healey had worked for various republicans, including Senator Bingham and had long wanted to "disconnect himself from the democratic party but had been dissuaded to save his law practice from the charge of playing politics by having a member in each major party. Ex-Mayor Atwater said that [illegible] was the only republican in Derby to favor Mr. Healey. The committee voted to report favorably on the nomination of Mr. Clark.

$47,000,000 FOR IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM IN NEW ENGLAND

Boston, May 20.—The six New England states and the included counties and municipalities will expend approximately more than $47,700,000 in improvement programs mapped out for the ensuing year, according to a survey by the United States employment service.

No shortage of labor of any class is expected in carrying out the projects in any of the six states excepting Rhode Island where, it was said, "a shortage of certain skilled tradesmen may materialize later in the season as the work progresses."

Four New England states will spend $16,000,000 on road building and maintenance, the survey reveals. County and city paving and highway projects will add $7,794,800 to this total, including Connecticut $1,334,000.

Not including the construction of a score of bridges in Massachusetts and others in New Haven, Conn., the report indicates that $1,750,800 will go into bridge construction in the esix states.

The New England states will put more than $12,228,000 in the construction of new public buildings, largely school houses, the report indicates. This figure and the statistics given for Connecticut, do not include the New Haven city hall and other projects. The expenditures of Connecticut will be $1,311,000.

An arithmetic and spelling survey recently conducted in the schools of Pittsburgh, Pa., by the educational research bureau of that city shows that children in the platoon schools make higher scores in these subjects than do children in nonplatoon schools.

MISS MACRI GIVES DETAILS OF SHOOTING OF BAGNANO

Testified That She Had Stolen the Revolver From Her Brother's Desk For the Purpose of Shooting Herself—Told the Jurors That Bagnano Made Threat "If You Don't Kill Yourself, I'll Kill You Myself"—Her Mother Had Advised Her to Drown Herself and Her Father Had Driven Her From Home—Claimed That She Could Not Remember Making a Confession to Coroner Mix.

New Haven, May 20.—(A. P.)—Olympia Macri, on trial here for first degree murder late this afternoon completed her story on the witness stand by describing how she shot to death John Bagnano, alleged father of her baby on last February 26 in the lobby of a theatre here.

The contention of Defense Attorney Joseph Koletsky that she shot in self defense was supported by her testimony when she told the jurors that Bagnano said to her a moment before the shooting "If you don't kill yourself, I'll kill you myself." Miss Macri then testified that the slain man reached his hand back to his hip pocket and started to draw out a gun. It was then that she drew her own revolver from inside her coat and fired, she etatified.

Miss Macri testified earlier in the day that she stole the revolver from her father's desk about two weeks before the shooting for the purpose of killing herself. "But I didn't have the courage," she tesified. She declared that she did not recall a thing that happened after the shooting until she was in the county jail. She testified that she could not remember making a confession to Coroner Eli Mix or being taken to police headquarters after she had been overpowered.

It took the girl defendant just 21 minutes to tell the happenings of the day on which she shot Bagnano. State's Attorney Arnon A. Alling took up the cross examination of the witness when she completed her story but only asked a few preliminary questions before Judge Christopher L. Avery adjourned court.

Only once today did Miss Macri show signs of breaking down under the ordeal and that was shortly before the noon recess when she declared that she was too tired and dizzy to testify further.

Taking up her story of the shooting, Miss Macri told of going to the theater building to see John Bagnano in a booking office there. She called him out into the hallway and talked with him for about an hour and a half before the shooting, she testified.

During this time she pleaded with him to sign for her baby at a home for babies so that the child might be admitted to the institution, Miss Macri testified. She said Bagnano took a ukelele while they were talking and sang and danced and then laughed at her.

The girl defendant said that Bagnano threatened the life of the baby if she did not leave him alone.

Asked what was the last thing she said before she shot Bagnano, Miss Macri replied that she had asked Bagnano to help her as she had no home. "Please help me or I'll kill myself," she said she told Bagnano. It was at this point, witness said, that Bagnano reached for a revolver and she shot him. "He started to run," she said, "and I thought he was going to get a better place to kill me.

In reply to a question she said she did not want to kill Bagnano.

Earlier in the day, Miss Macri had told of the alleged assault made by Bagnano. She said she was unable to face her mother and father, that her mother had beaten her and told her to drown herself and her father had driven her from his home. Continuing her story, she told how she had gone to John Bagnano and other members of her family for assistance.

INTEREST IN PRESENTATIONS AT THE COURT OF ST. JAMES

London, May 20—A feeling of expectation prevailed in Mayfair tonight as the time approached for the royal court presentations tomorrow and Friday nights. Twenty-four American maids and matrons will be sponsored by Mrs. Alanson B. Houghton, wife of the American ambassador, at the two courts. The Buckingham Palace functions are the sole topic of conversation among the debutantes and others of society circles, as all are interested, either directly or through relatives and friends.

This year's court promises to be respondent in coloring. The official regulations for court gowns do not place restrictions on shades or materials, so that every presentee is free to indulge her taste in both directions. Now that fashion permits evening dresses to be elaborately decorated, the "georgeous" type of gown is more in prominence than at any time since 1914.

Mrs. Houghton tomorrow will wear a gown of silver lace, handsomely embroidered with diamante. The train will be of blue chiffon velvet, lined with silver lame, with a band of brown fox across the bottom. In her hair she will wear a diamond bandeau.

On Friday Mrs. Houghton's gown will be draped brocade in deep rose and silver, embroidered with rubies and diamonds. The train of velvet will be lined with silver with a large band of Chinchilla across the foot, the train being held at the shoulder by motifs of rubies and diamonds.

Those who will be presented at the court Friday night in the general circle are: Miss Jane Hamilton Brady of Gladstone, New Jersey, granddaughter of the Countess of Limerick; Miss Usula Corning, Litchfield, Connecticut, daughter of H. J. Cornins, professor of medicine in the University of Basle, Switzerland; Mrs. Howell H. Howard, of Dayton, Ohio; Miss Irene Jamieson, Spokane, Washington, a student at Oxford; Mrs. Archibald H. Rowan, Irvington on the Hudson; Miss Laura Thompson, Lake Forest, Illinois; Mrs. Alexander Tuck, of Maryland, and Mrs. Wallace Payne Moats, of Mexico City.

There will be plenty of silk stockings on view at tomorrow's court—the first great affair of the London season—despite the dictum of the chancellor of the exchequer regarding a tax on silk, and also there will be more shingled heads among the debutantes than the court functionaries have seen approaching the king for many years past, most of the Americans as well as the British debutantes having adopted the bob for convenience and because it is the fashion.

Bobbed hair does not bar the wearing veils and feathers, and the hirees from following regulations regarding ostrich feathers which custom dictates must be worn slightly to the left side o fthe head can be fixed there by a contrivance brought out especially for the occasion and from which a tulle veil 45 inches in length will hang.

WITNESSES FOR PROSECUTION OF SHEPHERD DISAPPEAR

Chicago, May 20—Grand jury investigation of the disappearance of one of the chief witnesses for the prosecution overshadowed interest today in efforts to obtain a jury to try William Darling Shepherd, Chicago lawyer, for the alleged murder by administering lethal germs of William Nelson McClintock, the millionaire orphan, who for 16 years was Mrs. Shepherd's ward.

No new jurors were chosen, three tentative ones remaining from 46 veniremen.

Chagrined by the disappearance of Robert White, who had been depended upon to corroborate testimony of C. C. Faiman, head of the National University of Sciences, that Shepherd studied germ culture in the institution, Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, called a special session of the grand jury this afternoon.

Forthwith subpoenas were served on John E. Jones, head of a detective agency reported to have done investigation for Shepherd, and five other persons connected with Jones' office.

An announcement was made of action voted, however, and it was regarded as probable that Mr. Crowe had acted to force statements from persons known to have been associated in behalf of Shepherd.

MAN MAY HAVE MET DEATH IN BATTLE ON RUM ROW

New York, May 20.—(A. P.)—Dead man may tell no tales but in the discovery today off Fire Island of the body of a murdered man who had been given sea burial in a weighted strip of canvas, coast guard officials read mute testimony confirming stories of war to the death in the waters of rum row which had been coming to their ears all winter.

The cutter C. G. 108 on patrol picked up a body which showed every mark of violent death. It bore no marks of identification.

Officials said that for months up to the time of the present blockade they had been receiving reports of terrific sea battles. It was generally known, they said, that organized bands of rum thieves, pirates of a modern order, were engaged in systematic spoliation of the rum ships.

Stories of shooting and murder filtered back to shore, they said, but no definite evidence of such fights was obtainable until the finding of the body today. Coast guard men reported that they believed the present blockade had completely stopped the activities of hi-jackers as well as of the rum runners.

HEARING ON ELIMINATION OF BISHOP'S CROSSING

Hartford, May 20—Plans were submitted to the public utilities commission at hearings today by the state highway department and the "New Haven" road for the elimination of Bishop's Crossing in Plainfield and Reynolds Bridge Crossing in Thomaston. The estimated cost of the first, as submitted by the highway department, would be $74,000 and of the crossing in Thomaston, $230,000. Both hearings were continued, the Thomaston crossing hearing until June 8, and the other until June 9, as the railroad company asked for more time to consider the plans and submit possible less expensive proposals. All interested admitted the necessity for safety measures at the crossings.

WAS NOT FIT TO DO HER WORK

Dreadful Condition of Mrs. Fullerton's Health Remedied by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Clearfield, Pa.—"I cannot begin to tell you how much Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped me in every way. Before taking it I couldn't stand on my feet without pains running all through my whole body from my waist down, just like threads pulling. I was not fit to do any work. My mother got me to try the Vegetable Compound and I have found great benefit, and I not only recommend it for such troubles, but to build up the whole system. I have used it for most everything that gets wrong with me. When I begin to feel nervous and irritable I don't stop long in getting a bottle of the Vegetable Compound if I haven't got one in the house. It gives a fine appetite and makes a new woman of me. You may use this testimonial in my own town or anywhere else, and I will answer any letters I receive."—Mrs. RUSH FULLERTON, 525 S. 2nd Street, Clearfield, Pa.

If you are suffering from nervous troubles, irritability, give the Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

FIVE ACCUSED STRIKERS ARE NOT BROUGHT TO COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, May 20—At the meeting of the striking body of the operatives of the American Thread company Wednseday morning, Organizer Horace Riviere, of Manchester, N. H. spoke on the necessity of a powerful body of picketers, and said that the operatives need not be alarmed at the moving of the machinery from the Willimantic plant to other places. A parody on "It Ain't Goin' to Rain No Mo'," was sung by a group of young women, the audience joining in the chorus. Miss Mary Kelleher spoke briefly on picketing.

Damornan David, Namie Malham, Joseph Nauhan, Nick Tellage, and Abe Tellage, who was taken to the local police station very early Wednesday morning and released on bonds for appearance in police court for alleged assault on Nicholas Mezaway, were not brought to court Wednesday morning, as Mezaway was found not to have sufficient evidence to bring about a conviction. No very definite light was thrown on the affair, as the only statement made by Mezaway was that the five laid for him to give him a beating, which statement was denied by every one of the accused.

AGENT OF THREAD COMPANY SETS 25TH AS RETURN LIMIT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, May 20—Awaited word from the American Thread Company relative to its decision in the strike situation came in the form of an eleventh week announcement, Wednesday afternoon, that the mills will continue to be kept open and full protection will be furnished those who return. The statement is flavored with warnings to the effect that during the eleven weeks of the strike the company has succeeded in supplying its customers by moving machinery to other towns, where it is being operated satisfactorily or by having goods made and processed by outside concerns. It is stated that the other mills of the concern, inclusive of Holyoke and Fall River, have not been called upon and will not be called upon to process Willimantic brands of the thread.

With $500,000 loss in wages to the city of Willimantic and some business permanently diverted from the city, the company asserts that it is the belief of its officials that many of the employes failed to return to work when the mills were opened under power on May 11th, due to the acts of intimidation on the part of the more lawless section of the community. The strikers have been occupying company tenements without paying rent and such a condition cannot be indefinitely continued, is another phase of the situation sounded in the warning.

Agent Don H. Curtis continues: "I am instructed to say that, after very careful consideration by my Directors it has been decided that all who do not report for work by Monday next, May 25th, will forfeit all privileges previously acquired, because of length of service and all rights to consideration of pensions.

"We understand" he states, "That some of the operatives believe that should they return to work at this time, other operatives now on strike will refuse to work with them when the strike is over. In this connection, the Management wishes to go on record as guaranteeing that all who now return will be given employment as long as they are worthy."

"Why should the child feel that he should have any religious training?

His talk was largely a description of a conference for young people held in Middletown which brought out many questions later. The devotional period was led by Rev. Edwin G. Crowdis, of Taftville, who after reading the scripture from First Timothy, spoke of the challenge, inspiration and possibility of growth for the young people. This period closed with prayer.

Forty years ago this spring, when the romantic military drama Rosedale was produced here in Whiting's hall, in April, 1855, under the management of E. F. Burleson, it marked the pioneer period of amateur theatricals here. After months of strenuous rehearsals the show was put on with great success. The hall was filled so people were turned away for three nights in succession. There was new scenery by Seavey, new music by Tubbs and new costumes by Eaves. There were thirty persons in the cast, all drilled down to the last word. The present generation is unaware that such a grand production was ever staged; but those who were there to see will never forget the Gipsy Dell by starlight, the beautiful songs and the splendid character interpretations by local actors.

Those who took part were all from Jewett City: J. W. F. Burleson, Homer L. Lee, John H. Tracy, Walter B. S. Jeffers, E. F. Burleson, A. H. Burnham, George A. Ross, N. B. Denison, Herbert E. Tucker, Frank Bishop, James E. Roberts, Henry A. Bishop, F. H. Fanning, Charles A. Weaver, Mrs. E. F. Burleson, Mrs. H. H. Burnham, Miss Lou B. Young, Miss Mary K. Knight, Miss Annie T. ## ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

The first motion picture ever to play on Broadway at five dollars a seat—that's the reputation "Madame Sans Gene," hailed as Gloria Swanson's cinemasterpiece, made for itself at its opening performance in New York last night. Moreover, the theatre was packed to the rafters for the occasion, with hundreds of unsuccessful applicants for seats and a crowd of several thousands giving the police a tussle outside the theatre in their efforts to get into the place and also to catch a glimpse of Miss Swanson and her French nobleman-husband, the Marquis de la Falaise de la Coudraye.

The management has booked Madame Sans Gene at the Broadway theatre for next Sunday and Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Even for Gloria Swanson, whose screen efforts are always acted in elaborate settings and gowns, Madams Sans Gene is an unusually luxurious production. It was filmed in France, and the backgrounds include the palaces at Versailles, Fontainebleau and Compiegne, spots hitherto forbidden to motion picture directors. Gloria is seen sleeping in the actual golden bed of Marie Antoinette, flirting in the gardens where that unfortunate queen conducted her amorous intrigues, and coquetting with Napoleon (Emile Drain) in the actual private chamber which the real Napoleon occupied. The results are said to be startlingly realistic in the extreme.

In Madame Sans Gene (Madame Devil-May-Care) Miss Swanson has the role of the witty, flirtatious little French laundress who used to wash Napoleon's shirts for him when he was an impecunious corporal, who married one of Napoleon's sergeants, and who was swept by the French Revolution into the title of Duchess and residence in Napoleon's court, where she alternately scandalized and sent into hilarious laughter the naughty lords and ladies ending by saving the empress' honor and winning for herself Napoleon's eternal gratitude.

Charles deRoche, the Pharaoh of Cecil B. DeMille's The Ten Commandments, heads the cast playing in support of Miss Swanson. The picture was directed by Leonce Perret, from Forrest Halsey's adaptation of the stage play by Victorien Sadrou and Emile Moreau.

Capital Punishment

It was only a question of time before some motion picture producer with broad vision and humaness of soul would come forward and utilize the vast power of the motion picture on of the struggle being waged against capital punishment. That power has finally been enlisted. B. P. Schulberg, producer of Preferred Pictures will present his own dramatic version of Capital Punishment at the Breed theater today Friday and Saturday.

Here is a theme that is timely and all powerfull. The subject matter out of which Mr. Schulberg constructed this picture, although of a somber nature, strikes a chord that will send its tones to every corner of the civilized world.

In its essence it is a melodrama. Interwoven in it, however, are touches of humaness and through it all runs a beautiful love story—the love of two young people, willing to go through every anguish for each other.

In quality of entertainment Capital Punishment reaches a high standard. In the matter of education, it more than serves its purpose.

It would hardly be fair to omit mentioning the fact that the realism the depictions of truth in the scenes were, in a great measure, due to the genius of James P. Hogan, the director. Hogan made a fine job of it and the result is a wonderful picture. Capital Punishment is well worth seeing. In fact it is every one's duty to see it. It deals with a subject that no one can possibly pass by. Sooner or later, its issues pro and con will be on every one's tongue. It isn't only local, it's universal. See it at the Breed theater. It at will remain there until saturday.

Bulk Tea No Longer Popular

The passing of bulk tea, or loose tea, and the rapid progress made by package tea everywhere has evoked no end of comment among the dealers. So marked has been this revolution in Great Britain that it has brought about in the tea trade during the past ten or twelve years a situation in which fully 95 per cent of tea used is sold in registered packages, and only 5 per cent in bulk. To a lesser degree the same condition of affairs exists in this country Canada, and Australia, where the public finds that it gets better services in package teas. It is freely predicted that the time is not far distant when "loose" tea will have become a thing of the past, as the public becomes more thoroughly educated to the necessity that all tea should be packed in up-to-date containers, so as to eliminate the possibility of taint.

Hon. P. C. Larkin, president of the Salada Tea Company, who was the originator of package tea in America, and who has had more than 23 years experience in merchandising the product, speaks with authority when he says:

"As tea is such an extremely sensitive product, assimilating as it does, the flavor of any foreign matter with which it might come into contact or even proximity, it is an absolute necessity that it should be packed, from the time it is manufactured on the estates, until it reaches the consumer, in such manner that it is immune from the great possibility of contamination. It was not many years ago that all tea was sold in bulk. It was purchased by the retailer in its original chests, and weighed and wrapped by him for distribution to his customers. There is much to be said against this method; for, in the first place, the tea lying around the store in open chests is likely to become contaminated. On the other hand, once it is packed in an aluminum foil package, it is air-tight, and consequently is not as susceptible to foreign matter or to climatic conditions.

DANIELSON

In the fraternity, it has been generally agreed that trout fishermen are 100 per cent. good sports. Something has developed that challenges that theory. Someone is putting out set lines in what are regarded as the very best trout pools in this territory. Four such lines have been pulled out and destroyed by two Danielson fishermen within a very short time. Their names are available for fish and game officials if they desire them. Information also will be given as to where the lines were found—this in the interest of all the devotees of rod and reel who are willing to take their chances along brooks and streams, accepting whatever catch falls to them, or nothing at all, as is very often the case.

Men or youths who put out set lines are anathema to all real trout fishermen. They are among the despised of earth, numbered among the few who would sell honor itself to get a larger trout, by whatever means, that they may strut their boastful wistfulness before all mankind.

Large trout are too few and too hard to get to fall into the hands of these regenade fishermen by the set line route. Why should they be permitted the real catches through an illegal method while others obey the law, though they get nothing?

No suggestion is made here, nor none is intended, as to who is putting out the set lines. The fact is cited that such lines have been found in trout pools where big trout occasionally are caught and are apt to be caught and that the lines have been hauled out and destroyed. Such information as is available will be given to the proper officials, so that if any more such lines are put out and found they may be watched until those who set them are found and haul them out. Then there should be something doing, even if it does not lead to a conviction in court.

Danielson is manifesting great interest in the church parade of Columbian commandery, No. 4, Knights Templar, to be held here this (Thursday) evening incident to attending Ascension day service at St. Alban's church. Following the service supper will be served at the quarters of Moriah lodge in the Exchange block to an assemblage that it is anticipated will reach 200 in number.

Wednesday, road oil was being applied to streets in the borough and to the highway between Killingly Center, or near that point and East Killingly. The work was being done with expedition and care, with full consideration for the welfare and safety of the traveling public.

Killingly grange will be represented Saturday of this week, with other granges throughout the county, at the special meeting of Quinebaug Pomona grange to be held with Natchaug grange in Chaplin. The programme for this special meeting has been published in this column.

Good progress is being made now on the construction of a section of concrete roadway being put in through Plainfield street, and in a few weeks it will be completed. This is the town up area that has caused so much adverse comment from motorists through the winter period, as a long stretch of roadway was torn up and left in deplorable condition for months after work on the job ceased last fall. State officers are directing the one-way traffic as it moves through present area of operations.

The rum blockade must be effective. As evidence in support of thise, the news is presented of denatured alcohol providing patients for the attention of physicians in Danielson. One hears of a man so foolish as to believe that he can eliminate the deadly qualities of poisonous denatured alcohol by straining it through a loaf of white bread. Don't try it unless you want to see how pretty you look after an undertaker has finished dolling you up.

Supt. Samuel Anderson, of Norwich, representing the Connecticut company, was a visitor in Danielson Wednesday.

Wednesday afternoon, a motor truck of the Quinebaug company and a small touring car bearing a Freeport, Ill., registration ha dit out over on the West Side. The truck turned off the Danielson-Brooklyn highway just as the Illinois car came along and collided with it. The damage was small. Of interest is the fact that the Illinois car had one of those dinkey signs that some motorists affect under their registration plates, the sign reading "If you are near enough to read this you are too damn close." An average man may draw a moral lesson from this, and then again he may not, dependding on what he thinks about things in general.

Spring really seems to have arrived. Sweet peas are up from three to six inches, a few straw hats are being worn by intrepid men and there is nothing lacking but advertisements of native strawberries here and hereabouts. Women are engaged in that body-racking diversion of spring house cleaning and, if not, are talking style. The season is about the same as it has been at this period of the year in this area, for 2,000 years, more or less, though the styles have changed on numerous occasions since, several times in the last few weeks, in fact.

Francis Jaeger has been confined to the house with sciatic rhumatism for two weeks. Mrs. Emma Hutchins, Mrs. L. S. Ingalls and Miss Ella Chase of Danielson chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, have been at Westerly for inspection of the chapter at that place. The local delegation are delighted with their visit to Westerly and the hospitality shown them there.

Another evidence that summer is near at hand is the fact that there will be mid-week dancing at Wildwood park this evening, as there has been on Saturday evenings for some weeks. But tonight's is the first of the mid-week dances. A special programme for Memroial day is being arranged for the park.

Suspension of the city and rural delivery services will be one feature of the curtailed postal service in Danielson on Memorial day. And as is customary on holidays, no money order business will be transacted and the usual holiday hours of service will be enforced.

HOYLE'S STORE BURGLAR WAS NO STRANGER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, May 20—A break that occurred during the night was discovered Wednesday morning, when Walter L. Hoyle opened his place of business in Academy street, between Main and Mechanic streets. The loss through the break was estimated by Mr. Hoyle at approximately $100, and included three revolvers, a quantity of ammunition to be used in them, spotlights and a sum of money taken from the cash drawer. There is no clue to the burglar or burglars. Police were checking up the case during the day.

Entrance to the store was gained by breaking out a section of window glass near a catch at the top of the lower sash and pushing up the window. When the crook or crooks left, exit was made through the rear door. It is of interest that a police dog—Duke—owned by Frank Barber of the Casino alleys, right across the areaway from the rear of the Hoyle property, barked and growled ferociously about 11, Tuesday night. It is possible that the break was made at about that time. Mr. Hoyle closed his store for the night at about 9:30, and went to his apartments on the second floor of the building. He said Wednesday that he did not hear any commotion or disturbance to indicate that his store was being burgarized.

This particular break, while involving no huge loss, is significant in view of the nature of the things stolen—revolvers, ammunition for use in them and spotlights. Mr. Hoyle expressed his opinion that the intent of the thieves is to use the material in further robberies. Of interest is the fact that the ammunition taken is for use in the particular revolvers stolen, and so too is the fact that the ammunition was far removed in the store from where the revolvers were kept. The break was the work of someone who knew what he wanted and where to get it—or maybe of more than one such.

A Red Blood Food For Feeble Old Folks

Doctors say that one of the most frequent causes of feeble, sickly, run-down conditions in old people is thin, pale blood, lacking in strength-building power. In many cases, as people grow older, the iron in the blood is partly used up without being replaced, and even the most nourishing foods will do you little good until you get back this lost iron, without which the blood cannot be rich, red and strengthening. With plenty of iron in the blood a man or woman may be young, vigorous and healthy at 70 or 80—while at 30 or 40 with a deficient supply of iron people may look and feel 10 to 20 years older than they realy are.

For it is the iron in your blood that enables it to change food into firm, healthy tissues and promotes vigorous energy and endurance. And when this supply of iron runs low, nothing you eat does you the proper amount of good. You simply cannot get strength out of it and you grow weak, feeble and sickly, and suffer from various sorts of distressing symptoms and ailments.

In such cases all you need is more Iron—organic iron—to give you plenty of the rich red blood and energy that insure you a strong, vigorous, healthful old age. But be sure that you take only true organic iron—Nuxated Iron—and not the ordinary mineral iron that people have used in the past. Nuxated Iron is a wonderful new combination of organic iron, like the iron in your own blood. It does not injure the teeth or disturb the stomach. Try it just two weeks and you'll be amazed how much younger and better you feel, and what a marvelous new tingle of strength and vitality fills your entire being. Nuxated Iron is sold under an absolute guarantee of satisfaction or your money back. At all good druggists.

BROOKLYN TRACK MEET SHOWS INTERESTING RECORDS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, May 20—The results of the annual County Y. M. C. A. track meet held at the Brooklyn Fair Grounds Saturday, May 16, have just been made public. Oscar Speck, a student at Woodstock Academy, broke two state records. He did the 100-yard dash in 10 -5 seconds and jumped 19 ft. 9 1-2 in. in the runnig broad jump. Thirteen county records were broken.

About one hundred boys entered the meet and there were many spectators present. It may be seen by the results that the contests in the last three years have proven beneficial to the boys physically.

Some of the real spectacular events in the senior class were the 100 yard dash by Speck, with Delorme of Putnam a close second; the 220 yard low hurdles, which was won by Delorme and the 220 yard dash, in which Cartier, another Putnam boy, carried off the honors.

In the intermediate class the high jump resulted in a tie at 5 feet between Fulton of Killingly and Williams of Moosup.

Woodstock's junior relay team also ran a brilliant race.

Bowen and Caneen, both of Killingly, tied in the high jump (junior class) at 4 ft. 6 1-2 in. Phillips of Woodstock starred in the junior class sprints.

Winslow of Putnam won first place in the intermediate class (100 yard dash) doing it in 10 4-5 seconds. In the senior class William Aldrich of Putnam broke all his former records in the high jump by going over the bar at 5 ft. 4 1-8 in., with Gale of Killingly a close second.

The officials of the meet were as follows:

Referee and clerk of the course, John H. Corbett; Starters, O. F. Smith of Putnam and E. D. Brundage of Danielson; Head Timer, Henry F. Lyon of Putnam; Timer, P. H. Muers, Putnam; Timer, Ray Sherman of Putnam.

Junior Class

Score Keeper, G. Leon Wells of Moosup; Head Judge, W. E. Newton of Attawaugan; Judges, A. Hargreaves, W. C. C. Hill of Moosup.

Intermediate Class

Score Keeper, H. J. Dunleavey, North Grosvenordale; Head Judge, Joseph Elliott, Abington; Judges, F. A. Maryott and Samuel Rich of Putnam.

Senior and Open Classes

Score keeper, M. F. Childs, Woodstock; Head Judge, J. M. Byrne, Phoenixville; Judges, A. Maitland, Thompson, R. D. Brundage, Danielson and John M. Dean, Putnam.

CENTRAL VILLAGE

An airplane that landed in the Wauregan field Monday gave a crowd of two hundred a chance to see the plane at close view. Coming from Providence and bound for New York, Capt. Neugessen, the French ace, stopped to make slight repairs and take oil which he did at a local garage. After repairs were made it was of interest to see the plane hauled to the farthest corner of the lot, cranked up and after rolling 200 feet, rise quickly and sail away as swiftly as a bird.

The Girls' club members are rehearsing for a social next week at which a one-cent farce will be put on. The proceeds will be for the Village Improvement society. The club's class in basket-making numbers some 25 members; Miss Stetson, of Jewett City, is the instructor.

HUMANE SOCIETY MEDAL AWARDED JOHN WEAVER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

There is great satisfaction in the village that John Weaver is to be awarded with a Connecticut Humane society medal, for his heroic act last November, whereby he saved the lives of the two children of George Pearl, of Dayville.

The three boys of Mr. Pearl got into the stream and one was drowned, the screams of the others were heard by Mr. Weaver, a trolley track worker, who plunged into the icy water and after great effort succeeded in bringing the two boys to shore. Others including the state police were attracted to the place and assisted in carrying the boys, also in aiding Mr. Weaver himself to the police barracks in Danielson where the children were revived. The rescuer was exhausted and chilled so that it was feared pneumonia would result. A physician attended him and he was unable to work for a few days. The body of the drowned boy was recovered. A reward and award are deserving in the case of Mr. Weaver and now the Carnegie Heroism fund should apply in his case. He lives with his family, wife, son and daughter in Central Village.

BETTER MAILING PRACTICES

The postmaster general has perfected plans for an educational campaign during the first week of June. He desires to bring the attention of the people to the cooperation they can give if they will in reducing needless expenses in the department and bringing about more efficient service. It is by no means the first time such an appeal has been made, though it may be that Postmaster General New has hit upon a plan that will have a stronger appeal.

What he seeks is a general interest in the part which each one plays in connection with the postal service. There are not many but what look to this department for service in some form or other. Most everyone gets mail or sends it. It may be in large or small amount, but whichever it is there is need for overcoming the surprising amount of carelessness that prevails in spite of all urgings and all efforts to disclose just what such carelessness results in.

There is no disposition to deny the postoffice department whatever it requires in order to render service. This is the business of the people. They maintain it but they also force it to spend far more than would otherwise be required if they took just a bit more care.

It is no secret that the letter carriers cannot deliver mail if it does not have the correct address. They cannot find the right John Jones in the city of New York unless the street and number are supplied. They cannot do their work speedily if they must decipher wretched writing and the clerk cannot handle advantageously the whole day's mail if it is heaped upon them just before the closing hour when it might just as well be placed in their hands earlier in the day.

Furthermore it cannot be expected that postal employes are mindreaders. When one stops to think that the dead letter office costs the government a million dollars a year it is just one instance of what can be done by the people through the exercise of timely care to make better service possible and to aid in the reduction of needless expense. Better mailing practices are most certainly needed. You might as well decide to do your part. If everyone did the problem would be quickly solved.

CONNECTICUT TREES

When the statement is made that "More than 150,000 seedling trees, mostly pines, have been or will be planted before the last of May by the water companies of Connecticut," it cannot fail to command attention.

It attracts because it gives evidence that there is a recognized need of giving the watersheds the protection which comes through the existence of well wooded tracts for the conservation of the rainfall, and because it displays evidence of a determination to increase the wooded areas of the state.

Such an addition doesn't mean much when considered from the standpoint of increased timber resources, but the water companies are engaged in a task that means much to the communities which they serve. They are setting an example both from the standpoint of reforestation as well as protection for the water supplies. And it is just such examples that are bound to have a salutary effect upon those who note them and who are in a position to profit by doing likewise.

There is a large acreage in Connecticut which is now unproductive but it might be put to use for the growing of trees without involving any large outlay or calling for any great amount of attention. It is just such development at this that has been urged in Connecticut for a considerable time. It is a plan that is in keeping with what other states are doing and which means putting idle and waste land to some use. Likewise it will mean in time that Connecticut will come much nearer meeting its lumber requirements from its own hillsides, if sufficient interest can be awakened in such a proposition.

Covering the watersheds of reservoirs with trees to hold the water in the soil instead of sending so much of it along to run to waste and evaporate is not a new practice. Connecticut water companies are indicating that they have not done as much of this as has been needed in the past, but are committed to a policy which in time will pay large dividends in water as well as making the watersheds more valuable.

INTERSRTATE BUS LINES

When a committee of the motor bus conference at Washington makes the recommendation that the interstate commerce commission be given the authority to regulate the operation of interstate bus service, it is simply another step in the direction indicated necessary when the United States supreme court recently decided that such operation was not within the power of the state commissions.

At the present time such bus lines are without either state or federal regulation. They are competing with the railroads without meeting any similar requirements. In fact the railroads are being taxed to pay for the construction of the roads on which they operate to get such a part as they can of the business which the steam or electric lines would otherwise receive.

The bus operators are desirous according to their decision that regulation should be under federal authority. That would place the control where that of the railroads lies, but it would pile a raft of new business upon the commission. Because of this the suggestion has been offered that the regulation should be delegated by the government to the state commissions. Whether this can be done is a question but there is a strong feeling that such bus lines, many of which are bound to be short, between points each side of a state line, could be much better handled by state utility commissions. Whether the fact that at least two commissions would have to pass upon such lines would prove a serious handicap, it seems to be the belief of the bus operators that such a situation should be avoided, and yet there is to be considered the fact that it is the highways of the respective states that are to be used and no ta private right of way such as exists in the east of the railroads.

Regardless of where the authority is eventually placed, it is clearly indicated that the situation which now exists of leaving the interstate lines without regulation should be eliminated as quickly as possible.

THE SUBWAY PANIC

It makes little difference whether it is in a public hall, theatre, or a subway, let something happen to cause alarm and let someone start a stampede and there is no telling what may develop.

There is no escaping the fact that those on the New York subway train when a short circuit stopped it, burst the lights and set the insulation afire were in an unenviable position. No one would have been anxious to change places with any of them, and yet had that crowd kept its head and emerged from the cars quickly but orderly, instead of rushing like a lot of sheep in all directions there would have' been no panic and there would have been no injuries.

Experience shows that it is human nature to make a rush to escape under such circumstances. The greater part of any crowd would probably do the same thing under similar conditions, and yet those very instances where such stampedes occur and where so many are hurt stand out as the best of reasons for keeping a cool head and listening to the advice of those who know what to do.

One great protection for life under such conditions lies in the ability to shut off the current in the deadly third rail. That being done the danger that existed was almost entirely imaginary. Conditions were neither comfortable, with the fumes, nor desirable, with the darkness, but they were made much worse because of the disorder that prevailed. It is just such unfortunate situations which it is aimed to prevent by fire drills in schools or in urging people to leave a large hall quickly but orderly in case of emergency.

END OF VERMONT'S MANHUNT

Last month this and other parts of the country were much wrought up over the story which came out of Vermont to the effect that a farmhand had kidnapped the daughter of a farmer and disappeared. Today there is rejoicing, especially in Vermont over the acquittal of that same farmhand in a Vermont court. The case had been played up for what it was not. Before the circumstances were known the accused had been charged with what wasn't so. The clearing up of this situation is responsible for the marked change in sentiment.

The case was a most unusual one. With the impression given that the child had been abducted resentment naturally ran high and many were the volunteers ready to search the countryside for the apprehension of the kidnapper and the release of the child. Vermont has not had such a man hunt in a long time, if ever before. There was a determination to get the farmhand at any cost and authority was given to shoot on sight. He was going to be had dead, if not alive, so strong was the feeling.

Fortunately he was caught and the child recovered without any bloodshed. But it was not until after the capture that the true state of affairs was disclosed. Then sentiment whirled as quickly as a weathervane. That resentment which was ready to bring down a suspect quickly retreated and was replaced by admiration for the protection afforded the child and the effort to take her at her request when she would not be abused as she had been at home.

Vermont also has reason to rejoice that the authority to shoot was not exercised and an innocent man or a man who disproved a serious accusation was not killed in the heat of anger over a false belief.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: There are a few hours of the day, occasionally, when May seems to be herself.

If the idle merchant fleet is sold too quickly there'll be nothing for the shipping board members to do to command that big salary.

Mr. Ford considers Wall street has been having some fun with him and now he is laying his lines to have some fun with Wall street.

It makes little difference what Colonel Bryan gets mixed up with he can usually start a long winded controversy, or at least keep it going.

The offer for shipping board vessels by Henry Ford bids fair to produce the same kind of a controversy that his effort to get Muscle Shoals did.

As a pacemaker in the settlement of war debts France hasn't been showing any speed. And only a few have proceeded to go ahead of the pacemaker.

Busses are now being held up and the passengers robbed. Probably this is that there may be no partiality shown for the railroad patrons over the bus riders.

The proposal is made to give the crown prince of Italy 1,000,000 lire additional if he gets married. It takes a lot to get the crown prince interested in matrimony.

Even though Connecticut has spent $61,000,000 for good roads its needs are far from being met if we can judge by the demands that are yearly made for extension of the highway system.

FELICIA'S DECORATION

Nancy was sound asleep in her little bed. The dinner dishes were washed and put away. Jack and Felicia, sitting in their homey living room, were enjoying the evening calm. Jack read his paper. Felicia, before turning her attention to the mending basket on the table beside her, indulged herself with a magazine. After a few minutes Jack broke the stillness with his startling question.

"Of course I don't hate and despise my crimson coat," answered Felicia. "What made you ever ask such a ridiculous question?"

"I was just wondering, Felicia. Before we were married did you ever wear a cloak four winters?"

"Good gracious, Jack, how can I remember a thing like that?"

"I know you can't remember because you never had to do a thing like that before you were married."

"Before I was married is ancient history now, Jack dear, and to tell you the truth I'm much more interested in the present. Did you ever see anything sweeter than the way Nancy-girl goes to sleep with the doll in her arms?"

"Why didn't you get a new coat year before last, Felicia?"

"Because I didn't need it, and, besides, that would have been a silly time to buy a coat for me when we needed so many things for Nancy-girl. Nobody would expect a new coat and a new baby the same winter, Jack."

"Well then, Felicia, why didn't you get a new coat last year?" Jack looked at his wife quizzically. "You needn't go any fictionising, my dear," he continued. "I'll answer my own question. You didn't buy yourself a new coat or anything else new last year because it took all the money we could scrape together to pay my expenses in the hospital. Of all gloomy ways of—"

"But, Jack, think how well you are now since that operation. I think no money could have been invested to better advantage."

"Why didn't you buy yourself a new coat this year? I'll tell you why. It was because you knew that it was all I could do to make the payment on this house. And you had the nerve, Felicia, to ask me if I didn't think you looked nice in that old coat. That was the Sunday we took Nancy-girl to be christened. You certainly were game."

"But, Jack, didn't you think I looked nice? And can't we find a more interesting topic of conversation? Did you notice how long Nancy's hair is growing?"

"No, my dear, we aren't going to change the subject just yet. I am not oblivious to the charms of my daughter, but just at this moment I'm more interested in my wife's coat. You know that Sunday when Nancy-girl was christened when the rector was giving her her name, I did a little private naming myself. I thought as you stood there so bright and happy that there weren't many girls who would wear such a garment so gallantly and I named that coat the Red Badge of Courage."

"Oh, Jack," Felicia's eyes were full of tears, "you make too much of it. I could wear that old coat forever!"

"Well, my dear girl, you don't have to wear it much longer. There's been a deal hanging fire in the office for three months, and I was lucky enough to turn the trick today, and the old man has come across nobly. He's raised my salary and given me a bonus, and the bonus is going to be spent on a fur coat for you."

"Oh, Jack, how wonderful! But don't you think we ought to save that bonus for another payment on the house?"

"You'd better be finding somebody to park Nancy-girl with tomorrow morning, for we are going downtown to buy that fur coat," said Jack magnificently. "You're not going to wear your Red Badge of Courage another day. We'll put that little old decoration away with my war medals."

"Oh, Jack!" said Felicia.—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Striking Contrasts.

Mr. Editor: Striking contrasts are displayed on the back page of yesterday's issue of your paper. One of the accounts of the contrasts is the inspiring history of 125 years of achievement of the First Baptist church of Norwich. Farther down the page is an attractive advertisement of the Dime Savings bank of Norwich. It says the bank is ready to pay its 111th consecutive semi-annual dividend.

About all of us who have read that printed page of yours, Mr. Editor, will agree that 111 semi-annual dividends show quite a procession of years; for it would take 55 years for the procession to pass a given point, as we are accustomed to speak of processions.

The Dime Savings bank of Norwich had just about reached a good start in life when somewhere a boy baby was born to parents who cherished his advent. They cared enough for the little chap so that they gave him a name. They reared him. Some church or other gave the lad and later man religious direction for his spiritual needs. About that time the First Baptist church of Norwich was completing its first 100 years of spiritual guidance of its people. Of course the church paid its dividends more frequently than the bank paid its dividends; for the depositors at the church would likely agree that they had value received at least once a week. And looked at in that way, Mr. Editor, the procession of the church dividends is a very long one indeed.

The two things, the First Baptist church of Norwich and the Dime Savings bank of Norwich, are what we call our institutions, or good examples of our institutions, are they not, Mr. Editor? Both the church and the bank strove to fulfil its mission. The history of each shows worthy accomplishment. The light of beneficence sheds from that history of each institution. It is a white light.

Between the story of the church and the advertisement of the bank is another advertisement. It is about Chapman. Chapman is condemned to hang. He is condemned to hang because he killed the boy mentioned above. The advertisement to save Chapman the killer doesn't shed a white light of beneficence. It does shed a red light of malevolence. Chapman's pleaders want Chapman confined where he cannot do more harm; where he cannot do more killing. Where would they have Chapman confined, Mr. Editor? Was not Chapman already confined in Atlanta before he killed the New Britain policeman? Chapman escaped from the penitentiary at Atlanta. He found a safe in New Britain to loot, and because a policeman tried to arrest Chapman Chapman killed the policeman. The policeman endeavored to protect property to its rightful owners. Property is an institution just like the church and the bank. Chapman didn't dare for any of these things, no matter what kind of institutions they were.

Oh, no! Mr. Editor, Chapman should not hang. On Memorial day, for instance, let us carpet the road from Wethersfield with flowers, and let Chapman the robber and Chapman the killer march forth in triumph to unrestrained looting and unrestrained killings. But if any one mentions the continuance of the church, or the safety of the bank, or the security of the store safes, or the griefs of the home circles Chapman has created, let him be hung. Let all of his kind be hung. Let Chapman go free. And "Say it with Flowers."

G. WARREN DAVIS.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

From Small Beginnings

Charles Incledon, the Sailor Singer of "Sally in Our Alley."

"Of all the girls that are so smart
There's none like pretty Sally;
She is the darling of my heart,
And she lives in our alley."

The words of the old song rang out in a rich tenor voice from a stage in London a little more than a hundred years ago, and reached the heart of every person who heard. Charles Incledon, the singer, had not only to pleasing a voice but also so effective a manner of singing that he gave the sing new meanings.

In the audiences that filled the great halls where Incledon sang there sometimes appeared canned seamen in the naval uniform. These men always listened with the greatest of interest, spellbound. Only a few years before, Incledon had been a sailor in the British navy.

"Aye, that's the boy," said one of these seafaring men. "That's Charley Incledon. I'd know that voice anywhere in the world. He were with us in the old brig, he were. Lord! How he sang! Many's the time were we downhearted and ripe for trouble, and men getting mutinous. Then up would come the boy wi' his song."

The boy who had been a sailor in the navy had used his wonderful tenor voice to divert the sailors. On the decks of boats, with only an audience of rough sailors, he had found the means of attaining fame. The sailors had praised him so highly, they had spread the story of his wonderful singing, that he left the sea and at 20 began to sing on the stage. At first he dared appear only in small country towns, but when he found that the country people were even more delighted than the sailors had been he went to London. There he sang such songs as "Sally in Our Alley," and became for his day all that Caruso was to our day. Like Caruso, he took part in operas and visited the United States. Unlike Caruso, however, he lived to enjoy old age. He was fortunate in being able to retain both his voice and his popularity until four years before his death. Even in those four years when he was resting from his work he sang frequently in various cities. In his singing he carried something of the tang and strength and sweep of the sea.

NEW BOOKS

Ethan Quest, by Harry Hervey. Cloth, 334 pages. Published by Cosmopolitan Book corporation, New York, N. Y. Price $2.

There are many kinds of prospectors—some after gold—some after fame—some after adventure—some love. The hero of Ethan Quest is a prospector in search of beauty, and this new book by Harry Hervey gives a very peculiar charm to Ethan's childhood in Savannah, in the gloomy ancestral home where his forsaken mother keeps boarders.

By inheritance Ethan has a touch of wanderer's fever. To this is opposed his attachment to his mother and to a girl he makes his wife soon after his mother's death. Then follows wretched years before he abandons her and starts on his quest. He finds it much like chasing the end of a rainbow. He goes into the east but in his effort to escape mediocrity he sinks lower. Half aimlessly he wanders from port to port with a devoted Hawaiian boy until one night in Singapore he meets a woman who seems to embody what he has been seeking. She likewise is as elusive as the rainbow but the fact that she exists colors Ethan's faded dream anew.

Ethan Guest is an unforgotten book and Harry Hervey recites this soulepic with the imagination of a poet. The scenes of the story reflect the world in subtlest, in richest and in wildest moods. It is an interesting, well told story.

Not Under the Law, by Grace Livingston Hill. cloth, 336 pages. Published by J. B. Lippincott company, Philadelphia, Pa. Price $2.

This new book by the author of Re-Creations and Tomorrow at This Time is a romance that is lovable, human and helpful; that glows warm with the charm of sweet Joyce Radway, who can nevertheless be firm enough when occasion warrants. It tells what happened when a small boy fell in love with a princess, for to Darcy Sherwood, neglected and uncared for, exquisite little Joyce in her daintiness and refinement seems nothing less. But once grown up, Joyce loses her kingdom and her faith in Darcy as well. It means strange scenes, ugly doubts and perplexities in a totally different world, until, to right a wrong, the princess resumes her sway, only to find that Darcy justifies a new trust.

As in all Mrs. Hill's stories the characters are real and recognizable.

Stories That Recall Others

Can You Beat It?

Jim has been in another city, some distance from home. He drove his car across a street crossing, over the stop line, and blocked the progress of two men. One of them happened to be the captain of the traffic squad in civilian clothes.

"My man," said the captain, "why are you across that line?"

Jim could have easily pleaded ignorance, but he threw his chest out and slammed back:

"What the —— is it any business of yours?"

Turning the officer signalled to the officer directing traffic at the corner and said: "Take this man around to the station", directing his subordinate as the officer stepped before him with a salute.

Consternation spread over Jim's face as he looked from one to the other, declares one who was riding with Jim. As he drove off with the officer in the car, Jim was heard to ask in a somewhat subdued voice:

"Who was that man?"

Student Tours.

Student tours to Canada will be operated by the Canadian Pacific this summer in conjunction with the French summer school at McGill university. There are many student tours to Europe run year after year, but this is the only student tour to America, and the project is new. Montreal by virtue of its situation in the heart of French Canada, is regarded as an ideal center for the study of the French language. McGill university, realizing this, established a French summer school here in 1910. After a lapse of eight years, occasioned by the war, the school was resumed in 1922. In the past the students have come from all parts of Canada and the United States, but this year the course has been extended and an effort will be made to enroll students from the British Isles.

The estimates of the expenses of the city for the ensuing year, May 15, 1925 to May 15, 1926, were presented by the city's finance committee, at a meeting of the court of common council in the council chamber Wednesday evening. Both increases have been recommended by the fire and police commissioners.

The council recommends a city tax of 20 3-4 mills, which is half a mill more than was recommended, but the city meeting voted increased appropriations which made the last city tax 22 3-4 mills.

From Charles C. McNamara of No. 134 Broadway, asking that a tree in front of his property be removed on grounds that the tree is in a dangerous condition and is breaking up the sidewalk. Referred to the tree warden and public works committee with power.

From Oliver L. Johnson and a score of others, asking that Union street from its junction with Broadway to Union square be macadamized or that a cement road be laid, as this would relieve the traffic problem that already exists on Broadway Hill and would afford a safer approach to the center of the city than Broadway hill affords. Referred to the public works committee.

From Kate E. Leeney asking that the city abate a sewer assesment of $32.50 made against her property on Roath street on grounds that the sewer does not benefit her property and and that due to a mistake in the date of the hearing she did not appear before the committee at the hearing. The sewer committee to which the petition was referred, later in the meeting made a report that they had already investigated the matter and recommended that the abatement be made. Their recommendation was adopted.

The fire commissioners and police commissioners reported to the council that they had considered the request of the firemen and policemen of the city for more pay and that in their opinion the pay of the members should be increased. The reports carried with them a schedule of pay for the two departments which has already been published in The Bulletin.

The annual reports of the board of park commissioners, superintendent of cemeteries, chief of police and finance committee and the monthly report of the city treasurer were all received and accepted and ordered printed in the Journal.

Mayor Says City is "Broke"

The council received and accepted an invitation from Sedgwick Post, No. 1, G. A. R. to participate in the Memorial day parade and exercises. The invitation carried with it a request for the annual appropriation of $300 to aid in defraying the expenses of the observance. With regard to the requested $300 appropriation Mayor Waters stated that the city has no money at the present time and that the books have been closed up for the year, which ended on May 15th. The mayor said the appropriation asked for will have to go over to the June meeting of the council. On motion of Alderman Henry Gebrath the council recommended that the new council in June make the usual appropriation of $300 towards the observance.

The council received and referred to the finance committee and corporation counsel a claim of $4.85 from William J. Patridge, the expense involved by the breaking of two leaves in one of the springs on his automobile while driving through Dunham street. Claimant represented in his claim that Dunham street was being repaired and that he ran into rocks in the road, as no signal or warning had been placed in the street.

Alderman E. LaRue Bliven took occasion to call the attention of the council to the condition of the Connecticut company's trolley tracks, especially on West Thames street and on West Main street. He inquired if it wasn't the business of the trolley company to look after the tracks. Mayor Waters said he had already taken up with Mr. Anderson of the trolley company the matter of the condition of the tracks on West Thames street and that he would take up the matter of the condition of the West Main street trolley tracks.

Mayor Waters then addressed the councilmen as follows:

This is the last meeting of the current year, I wish to call your attention to some of the work that has been done during the past year and some of the problems that still confront us.

Highway Department.

During the past year particular attention has been paid to the side streets of the city. Forty-one streets have been re-surfaced with gravel or cinder and practically every street in the city was oiled or treated with chloride or tarvia. More than a thousand feet of fences and wall were erected, seventy-four trees were removed from city streets and five hundred, forty-one trees were sprayed.

The permanent improvement on Laurel Hill avenue and West Main street have been finished with the exception of a few curbs which will be completed during the coming week.

Two hundred and thirty-eight houses have been erected in the city during the last two years and our garbage and ashes appropriation must be increased.

On account of the extending of the dock of the Richmond Radiator Co., the city sewer had to be carried further out into the river and the expense was shared equally by the Radiator Co. and the city. With the increased growth of the city and the insistent demands of our residents for better streets and the increased use of oil and tarvia it is evident that the expenditure of the public works department has not yet reached their limit.

Water Department.

At the close of each of the three previous years I have called to the attention of the council the danger of a water famine in our city. Only the promptness and efficiency of this department saved us from serious trouble this winter. The Trading Cove Brook pumping station is still running, at an expense of about $100 a day and our reservoirs are not yet full. This means that the city will not receive about $25,000 from this department for taxation purposes that we have always counted on in the past. Plans are being made for a new water supply and will be presented to a city meeting at an early date.

Gas and Electrical Department.

During the past year various propositions were made to the city for the purchase of the gas and electric plant, which shows a net profit of about $150,000. It was very evident that the citizens were not in favor of such action and through proper legislative action the matter received a quietus, that it is hoped will last for many years. One good result of the agitation was suitable legislative action to enable the board of gas and electrical commissioners to turn over to the city for taxation purposes an amount not to exceed one-half of their net profits in accordance with that act the department has turned over to the city treasurer for the year ending May 1, 1926, $40,000.

Police Department.

The council is familiar with the new traffic ordinances which have gone into effect this year and they have worked out fine. It is evident that there is great need for more traffic men and the finance committee have provided in the estimates for one more man.

Members of the department have petitioned for an increase of pay and that also has been placed in the budget to be acted on at the annual city meeting.

Fire Department.

The new fire station on the Joseph Perkins road has been completed and a company is now stationed there. I think there is no more efficient or economically run fire department in New England than our own department. Members of this department have also petitioned for higher pay and the matter has been placed in the budget for action at the city meeting.

Park and Recreation Departments.

Both of these departments are continuing their work with the same small appropriation they have received in the past.

In closing I wish to express my appreciation to the council for the hearty co-operation they have given me and to call their attention to the fact that during the two years the council has consisted of six republicans and six democrats and that the council has never once split on party lines. I also wish to express my hearty thanks to the corporation counsel, the city clerk, the city engineer, the street commissioner, the heads of the various departments who have so ably co-operated with me, and also to Senator Robbins and Representatives Cassidy and Engler who helped us at Hartford this winter.

As there was no other business to be transacted the council adjourned sine die about 8.45 o'clock.

DESCRIBES CITIZENS CAMPS BEFORE ROTARY CLUB

The advantages of the Citizens Military Training Camps were explained by Major Robert Eddy of Fort Terry, a member of the New London Rotary club, in an interestine talk before the Norwich Rotary club on Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel. Major Eddy said that the training camp idea originated about ten years ago and with growing interest was becoming a popular thing. The war put a stop to the activities but after the war congress passed a bill appropriating several millions for the Citizens Military Training camps. At these camps the boys between the ages of 17 and 24 years have one month of training. The training is not only military but also in citizenship and other essentials of everyday life. The average daily programme includes about three hours of military drill, one hour of physical drill and some time is devoted to hygiene at camp and in home life and then a citizenship course. This teaches the boy his duties and his part in civic life.

There is a peculiar lack of interest in New London county for during the past four years, he said only 40 boys having attended camp while about 200 should have gone. In Massachusetts the quota is 1500 and to date there have been 1600 applications. Connecticut has a quota of 556 and there have been only 161 applications. New London county quota is 41 and so far there have been six applications. When a boy makes application for camp he agrees to nothing but to be on good behavior while in camp. Everything is paid by the government, railroad fare, food, and everything at the camp and the boy has absolutely no expense. F. Russell Smith is the local enrollment officer and applications and information can be had by communicating with him.

Major Eddy extended a hearty invitation to the Norwich Rotary club to attend the camp which will be at Fort Terry on Plum Island during August.

Another speaker at the meeting was C. Royce Boss who spoke on the Norwich Golf club, which is the third oldest in America. Mr. Boss told of the new 18 hole course that is almost ready for use and the expense and difficulty that was experienced in laying out a course that is second to none in the state. He gave a brief history of the club and its growth during the past few years.

A strong plea for the Salvation Army drive for funds was made by Captain Wilbur who urged that the club help in all ways to further this worthy campaign. Captain Wilbur spoke feelingly of the pleasant associations in Norwich and how he hoped that he had made a success of the work with the Army here.

At the business session President J. Nelson Weymouth presided and Eben Learned was song leader. A few matters of Rotary business were discussed and action deferred.

ELIZABETH STREET ATHLETES WIN BULLETIN CUP IN TRACK MEET

The Elizabeth Street grammar school succeeded in capturing the grammar school athletic championship at the Fairgrounds yesterday afternoon, when in one of the best school contests yet held, they succeeded in almost doubling the score of their closest rivals, the final scores being Elizabeth Street 30, Broadway 18, Taftville 9, Greeneville 7, West Town Street 5, and Norwich Town 4. Despite the wide margin in the final scores, each event called for considerable effort, and the young athletes became heroes as their school groups tried to cheer them to victory.

Among the spectacular events were the girls basketball throw in which Miss Virginia Young hurled the sphere a distance of 59 ft 4 in. closely followed by Ella Odgers whose record was 59 ft. 3 in. The girls honors in the running events went to Miss Nettie Santos, who seemed to have little difficulty in "flying away" from her competitors.

The boy "hero" of the day proved to be Clinton Robinson of the Elizabeth Streeters, who not only coped a substantial number of the winning points but had the privelege of being conveyed on the shoulders of his admirers about the Fairgrounds and to the street car three blocks away.

Following the contest, Secretary Hill of the T. M. C. A. presented the winning team with a handsome trophy cup contributed by the Norwich Bulletin, and commended the boys and girls on their splendid school spirit and sportsmanship.

WINDHAM LOSES PITCHING DUEL TO POMFRET PREP

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Pomfret, May 20—Windham High was beaten here by Pomfret Prep in a well played game, 4 to 0. J. Miels and R. Thayer staged a pitching duel, the latter winning because of his better support. Pomfret pushed over only one earned run, that coming in the first inning on two consecutive doubles. Pomfret scored once in the first, twice in the fourth and again in the fifth. Usher of Windham continued on his batting spree hitting two singles. The Windham third sacker has collected one or more safeties in every game this reason and is now batting around .600. R. Thayer's triple featured the game. Miels allowed but six scattered hits, while R Thayer yielded but three. The defeat was the Windham's sixth straight.

Windham will play in South Manchester to meet the Silktown high team. Coach Callahan plans to assign Haggerty to mound duty. The team as a whole is hitting well, but defense work has fallen far below expectation. The infield is noticeably weak and with a view to bolstering up the inner defense of Windham coach has made one important change which is improving the situation to a great extent, Gadarowsky has been benched and Eddie Nichols has been sent to the short field. Capt. Tommy Meikle has not played yet this season due to illness and it is not expected that he will have recovered sufficiently to return to his third base post.

REDS POUND BRAVES' HURLERS IN SIXTH

Boston, May 20—Cincinnati clouted four Boston pitchers for nine runs in the sixth inning today and eventually won the rubber game of the series with Boston 15 to 8. Burrus, Bostos first baseman, had a perfect day at bat with four singles and a home run. Thirty men took part in the game

MISS COLLETT IS BEATEN BY BRITISH CHAMPION

Troon, Scotland, May 20—In as great a golf game as two women ever played, Miss Glenna Collett, of America, was put out of the British ladies' open championship in the third round this morning by the incomparable champion of this island, Miss Joyce Wethered. The margin of Miss Wethered's victory was 4 holes up with 3 to play.

To defeat the challenging American, the British champion was compelled to play the best golf she ever accomplished in a major competition, and she did so. Her score for the fifteen holes over which the match was played was 60, an average of exactly four strokes per hole, only one stroke over par, an almost unbelievable feat for a woman on these long difficult championship links, made even longer today by the soggy condition of the fairways which permitted little run on the ball once it dropped to the ground.

Not once in the entire match did one of Miss Wethered's shots fly off the fairway into the rough She never once was in a bunker. She made not even one faulty shot in the whole round. She took three putts on the fourth hole and three on the eighth. With these two exceptions her entire game was perfection itself, and of such unfaltering consistent brilliance as few would believe even this superb queen of golf quite capable.

When she had disposed of her competent opponent, all of the older golf critics employed in British journalism united in expressing the opinion that Joyce Wethered had never been so hard pushed or played so well, and that no player on this side of the Atlantic is capable of putting such a fight against her as Miss Collett made today.

ACADEMY TEAM TAKES LISTLESS GAME FROM WORCESTER HIGH

The Academy, having found its winning stride, could not help but add another victory when they gave South High of Worcester a good drubbing on the Campus yesterday. When the clouds of battle had drifted away, the locals had sent across 8 runs to their opponents 4. The game was rather slow and uninteresting at times, both teams having occasional attacks of spring fever. South High may be a contender for a championship title in Worcester but when they traveled to Norwich, the vigorating air of this metropolis proved to strong for them.

The Academy played the contest with a make-shift lineup, as Hinrichs, one of the stars of the team was in New London participating in the track meet there. "Pheno" Tombari, who has been on the injured list all season, played the second sack for five innings. Misch another cripple, started the game, but, not having fully recovered from his injury, was forced to retire after a few plays. His place was taken by Mace Goldblatt, who played a good game for an unexperienced lad. From this, it can be seen that it was with a crippled team that the Red and White faced the Massachusetts aggregation.

The Academy started a terrific onslaught in the very first inning, sending across seven runs and giving Meden a chance to cool himself in the soothing showers of the club house. Les Carroll, lead-off man, received his walking papers. Capt. McGowan singled to left, Carroll going to third. "Lefty" Jarvis singled to the same place and Carroll crossed the platter for the first score of the game Burke, clean-up man, came through with a double, sending McGowan and Jarvis home. Cimikoski fanned, Greene, also, was walked. Pheno Tombari, up for the first time this season, scored Burke, Greene going to third. Here, Medin was served refreshments on the bench. He had had his share of the battle. Fern took Medin's place. Goldblatt filed out. Woods singled to center, Greene and Burke, who was running for Tombari, crossing the plate. Woods stole second and came home on Carroll's long single to right field.

This seven run lead, acquired at the beginning, proved sufficient to win the game, However, in the seventh, another tally was added when Burke stole second and third and came home on "Shorty" Hamel's screeching single to right. This ended the Academy's scoring for the matinee. Both of South High's pitchers were pinned for 13 hits, a bit unlucky, but only to the Worcester lads. Pay Woods was given his chance to shine in yesterday's game.

It looked rather bad for him when in the first inning South High swat him for three hits. However, Woods kept their remaining hits well scattered by the wonderful support of his teammates was able to keep South High in the rear. The Worcester lads reached him for nine hits, which netted them their six runs. They scored in the first, fourth and eighth innings, three runs crossing at the opening, one in the fourth and two in the eighth.

Uncle Billy is Perfectly Happy

Of happiness, that perfect treasure, The stomach often is the measure.
—Old Mother Nature.

Uncle Billy Possum actually was becoming excited. Yes, sir, he was. It had just popped into his funny head that the trail he was following through the grass not far from the Smiling Pool might, just might, lead to eggs. The trail had been left by Mrs. Snapper, the Snapping Turtle. Unc' Billy had started to follow it just out of idle curiosity to learn where Mrs. Snapper had been. He hadn't thought of eggs then. In fact, he had quite forgotten that Mrs. Snapper, like other members of the Turtle family, lays eggs. Then without warning it had popped into his head that Mrs. Snapper lays eggs and buries them in the earth. Could it be, could it possibly be, that that was what she had been doing and that this trail would lead to those eggs?

He scooped it out, and there it lay before him

Right away Unc' Billy began to hurry. In fact he hurried so that he lost the trail. You know, it wasn't a very plain trail. Then you should have seen Unc' Billy! The longer it took him to find the trail again the more excited he became, and of course the more excited he became the longer it took him to find that trail. Finally he went back to the tree of the bank where he had first found it and started over again.

This time he succeeded in keeping to the trail, and so at last he came to a damp place where there was no grass. Unc' Billy's eyes, his shrewd little eyes, sparkled. The earth looked as if it had recently been disturbed. It was soft and easy to dig. Unc' Billy began to dig. My how he did make those little paws fly as he got to! He dug quite a hole without finding anything.

"It can't be that Mrs. Snapper done been way over here for nothing. No, suh, it can't be that she done been walking fo' her health. Ah reckons Ah was in too much of a hurry and didn't dig in just the right place," said he.

So Unc' Billy tried again. This time he didn't dig far before he found something round. He scooped it out and there it lay before him, perfectly round, smooth and white like a good-sized white marble. How his eyes did sparkle then! He knew he had found Mrs. Snapper's nest and that if he kept on digging he would find more eggs, probably a lot of them.

Unc' Billy didn't stop to eat that egg. He rolled it aside and went to digging again. Out rolled another egg and another and another. That was a regular mine, and egg mine. Out came another and another and another. With every egg Unc' Billy felt better. At least it seemed to him that he did. When at last he couldn't find another egg he sat down for a moment to gloat over his pile of treasures. Then he began to eat.

Those eggs were fresh. They had been laid only a very little while. Unc' Billy smacked his lips over the first one and he smacked them again over the second one. The third tasted just as good. Even the last one, and that was the twenty-third, tasted good enough to make Unc' Billy wish for more, although his stomach was full. But that wish was only for a minute. He really had had plenty for once, one of the finest egg feasts he ever had known.

"Ah am perfec'ly happy. Yes, suh, Ah am perfectly happy," said Unc' Billy as he, started for home in the Green Forest. "Ah don' know of anything that could make one so perfectly happy as a stomachful of aiggs, nice fresh Turtle aiggs. And Mrs. Snapper don' know I've got them and won't know I've got them, fo' she's no kind of a mother, that Mrs. Snapper. She lays the aiggs and then never knows fo' a certainty whether the young Turtles she sees by and by are her babies or the babies of somebody else. Ah certainly do like aiggs. Yes, suh, Ah cert'nly do like nice fresh aiggs.

POETRY

Take Me Home

Take me home to the place where I first saw the light,
To the sweet sunny south take me home,
Where the mocking bird sang me to rest every night,
Ah, why was I tempted to roam?

I think with regret of the dear ones I left,
Of the warm hearts that sheltered me then,
Of the wife and the dear ones of whom I'm bereft
And I sigh for the old place again.

Take me home to the place where my little ones sleep,
Poor mama lies buried close by,
O'er the graves of the loved ones I long to weep
And among them to rest when I die.

Take me home to the place where the orange trees grow,
To my cot in the evergreen shade,
Where the flowers on the river's green margin may blow
Their sweets on the banks where we played.

The path to our cottage they say has grown green,
And the place is quite lonely around,
And I know that the smiles and the forms I have seen
Now lie deep in the soft, mossy ground.

Take me home, let me see what is left that I know,
Can it be that the old house is gone?
The dear friends of my childhood indeed must be few,
And I must lament all alone.

But yet I'll return to the place of my birth,
Where my children have played at my door.
Where they pulled the white blossoms that garnished the earth
Which will echo their footsteps no more.

"It is a Beauteous Evening, Calm and Free"

It is a beauteous evening, calm and free;
This holy time is quiet as a Nun
Breathless with adoration the broad sun
Is sinking down in his tranquility;
The gentleness of heaven broods o'er the Sea;
Listen! the mighty Being is awake,
And doth with His eternal motion make
A sound like thunder—everlastingly.
Dear Child! dear Girl! that walkest with me here,
If thou appear untouched by solemn thought
Thy nature is not therefore less divine:
Thou liest in Abraham's bosom all the year,
And worship'st at the Temple's inner shrine,
God being with thee when we know it not.
—William Wordsworth.

The late Giacomo Puccini was forever looking for his eyeglasses. His wife, that he might give free rein to his genius, therefore invested in a supply. In his study alone there were not less than five sets of glasses, one on the piano, another on his desk, a third on a little table near the fireplace, a fourth on his bookcase and a fifth on a music rack.

But the hose was run to Nepperhan river, a creek back of the house, and the hoboes pumped three days before they found they were trying to pump a river dry.

AUTO CASE, PENDING SINCE MARCH, SETTLED IN NEW LONDON COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 20—William B. Waterman was today found guilty of the reckless operation of an automobile, on Montauk avenue, last March, when his car smashed into that of Frank Bray, engineer at Lawrence hospital, and when Mr. Bray was so badly injured that he was a patient at the hospital for several weeks. It was alleged that Waterman was drunk when he drove his car into the Bray machine, just as it came from the entrance of the Thornton Lathrop house, but that complaint was not sustained. Waterman was also charged with reckless driving and for that he was fined $100. The case was begun last week, but was continued till today that the testimony of Waterman's partner, Wolfe, might be taken. That testimony came today. The case was hotly contested, Frank L. McGuire appearing for the defense and Perry J. Hollandersky prosecuting for the state. The defense was that while Mr. Waterman gave indication of having been imbibing freely in liquor, he was in reality suffering from concussion of the brain which resulted from the collision. The evidence was strong that Waterman had been drinking and he admitted that he had taken a drink of gin at his garage, where he said he went after the accident to check up a night watchman to ascertain whether he was attending to his duties. Mr. Waterman claimed that he did not realize that he had been in an accident at the point where it occurred till he was told of it. He admitted that he had friends at dinner at his home, but he said that the only liquor he had drank was a cocktail before dinner at an early hour in the evening. The crash occurred about midnight.

Floyd Mitchell, who created a breach of the peace at his boarding place some days ago, was freed from responsibility by a nolle in the case as he had agreed to quite there and observe hereafter the laws of the state and the city.

John Timmons was fined $10 for intoxication. He just escaped the forfeiture of a bond of $25 by failing to appear on time when his case was called. He said he became confused over standard and daylight time, so his bond was reopened, after it was called.

Benjamin Siosneck was charged with operating a motor truck with defective brakes. But the case went over till tomorrow to accommodate the accused.

Because of youths who do not attend sessions at the Nameaug school using the grounds of the school to play ball and because of constant danger there, the police were appealed to by school officials this afternoon to put a stop to the practice. As a result of the complaint, Captain Charles A. Pinney issued orders to the motorcycle officer to have the young men using the grounds engage in their ball playing elsewhere. The school officials have been annoyed greatly, windows of the school having been broken and because the building has been entered several times.

Edgar Sisson, of Westerly, who complained to the local police a week ago that a wallet containing $85 had been stolen at his place of business and that he suspected a New London man of having committed the theft, today informed the authorities that he had recovered the money and wallet.

Stephen Brosky, 16, of 207 North Bank street, who is alleged to have stolen $150 from an acquaintance who befriended him here, about ten days ago, is under arrest in Stamford and if the police do not prefer charges against the boy, he will be returned to New London for trial for the crime he is accused of perpetuating here. Brosky, who is a former inmate of the state reform school at Meriden, was allowed the privilege of occupying the same room as did Kurpski and while the latter slept, Brosky rifled the former's clothes, taking the money, which was in a pocket of Kurpski's trousers. When Kurpski rose he found his money and the boy missing. A search for the lad was made, but he was not located. Last night while Brosky and a companion, John Mason, 205 Arlington street, Bridgeport, were in a Stamford pool room, a patrolman observed that Brosky was spending considerable money and took the boy and his companion into custody. At the Stamford police station Brosky admitted stealing the money and when searched but $14 was found on his person. He admitted having spent $26 in the pool room. It is believed that Brosky and Mason are guilty of having committed several petty burglaries in Stamford and if they are connected with any of the breaks they will be held there for trial. If, however, there is nothing incriminating as to the acts of the boys, an officer will go from this city to Stamford and bring the youthful offender back here for trial.

Louis Marie Wuest, Emily Caroline Wuest and Elsa Frederick Wuest, all of Hartford, formerly of New London, have sold their three-fifths undivided interest in a two-family dwelling on Prest street to Samuel Miller, of Norwich.

Archibald S. MacFarlane has sold to Charles and Helen Stronski, a house and lot on Williams street.

Michael L. O'Connell has sold a house and lot on Brooks street to Patrick and Frances McCaffery.

The funeral of Peter A. Murray, a former resident of New London, whose death occurred at Hardwick, Vt., Sunday, was held this morning at 10 o'clock at 62 Washington street. The bearers were Frederick W. Keefe, Antone Enos, Everett Shirley and James P. Cleary. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, where the committal service was read by Rev. Raymond O'Callahan.

Cadet Edward Fairbanks, United States Coast Guard academy; Mrs. Lora Baxter, of Montville; William Brown, Hartford; Mrs. John Johnstone, Mystic; Mrs. C. Rudolph Bonath and infant daughter, Mystic; Cadet James Luther, United States Coast Guard academy, and Mrs. John Gula and infant daughter, Jefferson avenue, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

An automobile of the commercial type, owned by John J. Gagnon, of Ocean avenue, and a touring car, owned by Walter Burdick, 269 Hempstead street, and driven by Mrs. Burdick, were in collision late yesterday at the corner of Connecticut and Lincoln avenues. The Gagnon machine was wrecked, but the driver escaped injury. The touring car was not so badly damaged, but the occupants, all women, were more or less bruised and suffered considerably from shock.

TWO NIANTIC WOMEN INJURED BY TAXI-CAB

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 20—While crossing State street late this afternoon, Mrs. John Bowen, 81, and her sister, Miss Hannah Aldridge, both of Niantic, were struck by an automobile of the Lyceum Taxi company, operated by Harry Gridley, 813 Bank street. Both women were knocked to the pavement and injured, Mrs. Bowen seriously. She is now a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital suffering from a severely bruised shoulder and hemorrhage of the right leg, the latter injury resulting because of a varicose vein, which was injured by one of the wheels of the auto. Miss Aldridge received abrasions of the fingers of one hand and returned to her home, after the injury was dressed at the hospital.

Mrs Bowen and her sister had been to lower State street and when near the Salvation Army lodging house, corner of State and North Bank streets, she attempted to cross the street. As the two women reached the opposite curb and were about to step to the sidewalk, the machine in charge of Gridley and which had been parked alongside the curb, started to back to permit the operator to guide the car to the path of traffic. Gridley peered back through the window of the car, but because of the women being short in statue, he did not see them and as a result the car backed against the women with considerable force. Both were precipiated to the pavement and with yells from pedestrians as the heavy automobile passed over Mrs. Bowen's leg, Gridley realized that he had hit a pedestrian. He brought his machine to a stop at once and hastened to the assistance of the women. Traffic Officer John Courtney, who was on duty at the corner of State and Bank streets, rushed to where the women were being assisted to their feet and realizing that Mrs. Bowen was seriously injured, he had her and her sister enter the automobile and ordered Gridley to convey them to the institution, that they might receive treatment.

SEASIDE KIDDIES VISITED BY THREE OF CIRCUS CLOWNS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 20—Some of the vaudeville actors and actresses and three clowns appearing in the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus, that showed here this afternoon and evening, went to Niantic at the close of the afternoon performance and at Seaside sanatorium, where about 100 children are receiving treatment for tuberculosis, presented several acts for the enjoyment of the young patients. The presentation of the entertainment was made possible through the endeavors of New London lodge of Elks.

TUBERCULOSIS COMMISSION NOT BEHIND HEALY OUSTER

"The tuberculosis commission had nothing to do with it," declared Dr. Stephen J. Maher of New Haven, chairman of the state tuberculosis commission, recently in reference to the measure now pending in the general assembly which, if it passes, will take the legal proceedings in connection with the condemnation of part of the McCook property at Niantic for the Seaside sanitarium entirely out of the hands of Attorney General Frank E. Healy and give the case to some attorney to be selected by the tuberculosis commission.

The bill in question was introduced by Representative John H. Hill of Shelton, a New Haven county commissioner and a member of the Republican state central committee and who is also house chairman of the legislative committee on humane institutions.

Dr. Maher said that the commission had had no part in the move now directed from Capitol Hill which would oust the attorney general from the McCook case and his statement was also sustained by Wallace S. Allis of Norwich, a member of the commission.

"The commision was not a party to that move," said Mr. Allis, who added that he had no criticism to make of the attorney general. When asked whether the relations betwen the commission and the attorney general had been friendly, Mr. Allis replied in the affirmative.

Provides $3,000 Job.

Under the terms of the measure, which is now in the hands of the committee on appropriations, the McCook land condemnation action would be taken away from the attorney general and placed with another attorney for whom the bill provides an appropriation of $3,000.

Attorney General Healy refused of comment on the proposal to supersede him in the McCook case.

These condemnation proceedings have been carried on by Attorney General Healy for some time and it has been assumed that the case would take the usual course through the courts with whatever opposition could be raised by the McCooks through their attorney, Hugh M. Alcorn, who is contesting the case for them. The McCook family have resisted all attempts on the part of the state to take a portion of their summer place at Niantic for the use of the sanitarium for the past two years.

Attorney General Healy has had the necessary papers made out and served and stands ready to prosecute the case with vigor as he was one of the original advocates of the Seaside institution and rendered notable service in obtaining its location at Niantic in the first place. Dr. Maher paid a tribute to the attorney general in this connection, saying that his assistance had been "most valuable."

Attorney Works on Case.

Attorney Marion R. Davis of New London has been employed by Attorney General Healy to obtain witnesses and other evidence necessary in the prosecution of this case, as is done by the attorney general in nearly all involved cases, but his own services would, of course, be rendered without extra compensation. It is probable that the extra expenses for legal assistance would be less than $1,000 if the case were prosecuted in the usual manner.

The authority for the acquisition of a portion of the McCook property adjacent to Seaside is provided in an act passed by the general assembly of 1923 and appropriating $25,000 for the same. Under the terms of this act the state comptroller and the state tuberculosis commission are directed to acquire the land and it was upon their vote that Attorney General Healy began the condemnation action which it is now proposed to take away from him.

This act was approved June 2, 1923, and in November of that year the commission notified the state comptroller that 200 feet of the McCook property was needed. Efforts to purchase this land failed and in the same month the attorney general was informed of this fact and given all the papers in connection with the case.

There was some delay owing to the prosecution of the famous medical fraud case by the attorney general and he later informed the tuberculosis commission that, under the terms of the act authorizing the acquisition of the land, he thought the signature of the comptroller to the vote of the commission would be necessary. This was obtained and the signed vote presented to the attorney general in October or November of last year. The papers in the case were thereupon served by Attorney General Healy in December and the case is now in the superior court of New London county. It is understood that Attorney Alcorn intends to file a demurrer and this has occasioned further delay in the action.

Commission's Report

The report of the state tuberculosis commission contains the following remarks in reference to the acquisition of the McCook property:

"In November 1923, we handed over all the papers in the case to the attorney general of the state, together with the unanimous vote of the commission that it 'required' the above-mentioned 200-foot strip east of the present property of the state. Because of the great burden of work imposed on the office of the attorney general by the prosecution in court of the cases of cases of medical frauds unearthed last year, a serious consideration of our request was not possible until the summer. And then the attorney general decided that our unanimous vote as to our requirements of this 200-foot section of land, would better have added to it the signature of the state comptroller. We, therefore, have again passed a formal vote as to our need of the 200 feet and with the added signature of the state comptroller have handed it to the attorney general. We understand that action by the courts will soon be had."

The tuberculosis commission consists of Dr. Stephen J. Maher of New Haven, Wallace S. Allis of Norwich, Arthur B. Kimball of Waterbury and George I. Allen of Middletown, secretary.

Assistance Plea Rejected

Efforts on the part of Attorney General Healy to obtain funds for the employment of an assistant or a law providing a deputy attorney-general have met failure at the hands of the general assembly.

Concerning the general duties of the office of the attorney general, Mr. Healy says in his recent report to the governor, "The constant increase in the state's activities in new lines of endeavor, and the great expansion of its numerous departments, has added to the manifold duties of this department. While all of my time is devoted to the duties of this office, I cannot help the feeling that this department does not begin to measure up to the standard of efficiency which obtains in the public service of the state. In an effort to remedy this condition I asked the last general assembly for an appropriation sufficient to employ assistance in this office so as to expedite its business but my request was refused. Former attorney generals have called to the attention of the general assembly the need of extra assistance in this department with like result.

"As this department is practically the only one in the state without a deputy, I recommend the enactment of a law providing for such an appointment with absolute authority to act for and in behalf of the state in the absence or disability of the attorney general."

Rapped by Bingham

Criticism of the attorney general in connection with the Seaside-McCook case was implied in the inaugural address of Governor Hiram Bingham, whose nomination as United States senator was vigorously opposed by Mr. Healy at the senatorial convention in Hartford. In his address the then governor said:

"The last general assembly made an appropriation of $100,000 for the erection of a new building and of $25,000 for the purchase of land. The state tuberculosis commission and the state comptroller were directed to acquire such adjacent land as the commission requires. In order to comply with the expressed will of the general assembly the commission was obliged to call to its aid the state's right of eminent domain. In November, 1923, all the papers in the case were handed over to the attorney general together with the unanimous vote of the commission that it required a strip of land 200 feet wide and east of the present property. The property has not yet been secured. The state's plan for helping additional scores of children to attain health and happiness has not been carried out. The immediate consideration of whatever legislation is needed to enable the state to increase the facilities for caring for these little sufferers is strongly recommended."

MARKET WAS STRONG

New York, May 20—Expanding public participation was the chief characteristic of today's rising stock market. More than two score issues, including a large assortment of public utilities, mounted to new high levels for the year, net gains in several cases running as high as ten points or more. Total sales exceeded two million shares and were the largest of any session since the middle of March.

Strength of sterling exchange, which advanced to the highest price in 11 years and within one half cent of parity, received as much attention from the banking fraternity as the bullish demonstrations in stocks. International bankers were generally agreed that sterling's return to parity is only a question of hours; and that it will have an important psychologic effect in financial centers throughout the world.

High priced specialties continued to set the pace in the upward movements of stocks with new leaders brought forward when ever the old favorites showed signs of wavering on profittaking. Nash Motors jumped 19 points to 425 and then slipped back to 419 while net gains of 8 to 13 points were recorded by Havana Electric, Montana Power preferred, Utah Securities, Ward Baking and West Penn Power, all of which attained new 1925 peak prices.

The day's news was largely favorable. It included an advance of 25c a barrel in Pennsylvania Crude Oil prices, a lowering of call money rates and the publication of favorable weekly steel trade reviews with reports of another increase in scrap steel prices.

Increasing activity was noted in the standard industrials. United States Steel common closed a point higher at 119 3-4, the highest price since the March decline and more than seven points above the year's low. American Can attained new high ground at 193 1-2 and then fell back to 191, off 1 5-8. Baldwin closed fractionally lower at 114 1-4 after selling as high as 115 5-8. American Smelting was again active, closing nearly a point higher at 110 1-2 after having touched 101 3-4.

Utah Securities was the outstanding strong spot in the public utility group, touching a record figure of 157 7-8, as compared with a low of 41 1-8 only a few months ago, and then slipping back to 152 1-4 where it was up 8 1-4 on the day.

Other issues in that group to break through their previous high levels were Electric Power and Light certificates, Standard Gas and Electric, Detroit Edison, Twin City Rapid Transit, Columbia Gas, public service of New Jersey, Brooklyn Edison and Mackay Companies.

A run up of over four points in Maxwell Motors B to a new top at 94 1-8 attracted the most attention in the motor group. Strength of Pan-American B, which closed nearly 3 points higher at 81, was the feature of the oils, although good buying also was noted in Atlantic Refining, Mid-Continent, California Petroleum preferred and Tidewater.

Failure of the railroad shares to make a better response to reports of uneasiness over the interstate commerce commission's decision on the Nickel Plate merger. Special strength in the St. Paul issues was founded on reports that an early announcement of the reorganization plan was likely.

Call money opened at 3 3-4 per cent. and then dropped to 3 1-2. Time money and commercial paper rates held steady.

Demand sterling crossed $4.86 in the New York market for an overnight gain of about 3-4 of a cent. French francs held relatively steady around 5.15 cents and Italian Lire moved up four points to 4.05 cents. Other European rates moved within narrow and irregular limits.

HISTORY OF STERLING U. S. FINISHING BRANCH

An instructive historical sketch of the Sterling branch of the United States Finishing Co. is given in the current month's issue of Finishing Facts, which is the plant publication of the Finishing Co.

The following is the sketch:

One hundred and sixteen years ago, inspired by the success of the Old Pomfret Cotton Factory, a mill privilege was purphased on the Moosup River in Sterling and a building erected for the manufacture of cotton cloth. This mill was destroyed by fire but in 1811 the reorganied company, known as the Sterling Manufacturing Company, replaced the original building by a new stone building three stories high with a basement and attic, comprising a working space of 20,000 square feet. This building proved to be the foundation of the present plant, continuing in use to the present day—a noteworthy example of the building of a century ago. The mill was equipped with 1,500 spindles and several power looms and is reported to have been among the largest of Connecticut manufacturing concerns in 1818. Power was derived from the Moosup River by means of a breast wheel. The fall of water in this location was comparatively small but sufficient to install this type of water wheel. In those days the wheels were located outside of the building instead of inside as at present. There are still a few of these old wheels to be seen in operation in various parts of New England.

Boston was then the market center from which raw cotton and supplies were obtained and where the finished cloth was sold. Transportation was necessarily slow, accomplished as it was by ox team, requiring about two wekes to complete the round trip. Some years later this situation was relieved by the completion of the Hartford, Providence and Fishkill Railroad which connected the town with the outside markets.

The mill continued under various managements as a cotton mill until 1874 when the property was purchased by Elisha Anderson and transformed into a shoddy mill. The venture was doomed to failure and the mill lay idle for five years. Installation of the most modern turbines in place of the old water wheels at this time calls attention to the progress of manufacturing and marks the transaction as noteworthy.

Sterling Dyeing and Finishing Co.

Idleness came to an end in 1879 with the resale of the mill to the Sterling Dyeing and Finishing Company. Success and accompanying expansion marked the progress of the Sterling Dyeing and Finishing Company from the start. The original building had a floor space of 20,000 square feet. Within a few years it was doubled and over a period of twenty years increased to 150,000 square feet when it was taken over by The U. S. Finishing Company in 1901, under whose management it has still further increased to the 180,000 square feet in use at the present time.

The two men most closely connected with and responsible for the successful operation of the Sterling Dyeing and Finishing Company were James Pike and his son, James E. Pike. For many years James Pike had been engaged in various enterprises in and around Sterling. Among these enterprises the most extensive was the so-called "sap mill" which produced Pyroligneous Acid, which is impure acetic acid, produced as one of the volatile products in the destructive distillation of wood. The wood is slowly heated in large iron ovens so arranged that the volatile products may be condensed and gathered. The watery portion contains wood alcohol and acetic acid mixed with such impurities as creosote and the like. On redistillation the wood alcohol passes over first, leaving the impure acetic or pyroligneous acid in the retort.

James Pike Develops a "Fast Black"

This business had been declining for several years and in searching for a substitute, James Pike became interested in producing a Fast Black on cotton cloth. Before the failure of his "sap mill," his laboratory trials were finally successful but he experienced difficulty in producing practical results on a continuous run. He had attempted it several times with disastrous results in various plants among them being the old Cranston Print Works. At the time of the organization of the Sterling Dyeing and Finishing Company there was no machinery available in the market for this purpose. Practically all machinery was imported from England and the best thing available was a steam box built by Mather and Platt, one of the largest English concerns. This proved unsatisfactory but a year after the organization of the company a socalled "ageing box" was constructed which operated successfully. This box was five feet wide by fifteen feet long, having a daily capacity of about 3,000 yards. The cloth was run through a five-roll dye paddler, then into the ageing box for oxidation. It was found, however, that this was not sufficient and to complete the oxidation process the cloth was afterwards hung at full width over night in a heated room fifty feet square by twenty feet high.

The original equipment installed consisted of a two-plate singer, a one-one kier, one rope washer, a five-roll dye padder (which was also used for starching), one ageing box, a three-roll calender for finishing and a yarding frame. There was no machine shop and all repair work had to be done elsewhere excepting what the workmen themselves could do with the inadequate tools on hand.

Equipment Presents Difficulties.

Consideration of the equipment readily shows the difficulties confronting the organization and leads us to wonder how even acceptable results were obtained. For instance, from a standpoint of quantity plus quality production consider the results from a two-plate, wood heated singer, the plates being of heavy cast iron over which the cloth was drawn by means of a hand reel. Seldom were the plates uniformly heated and very often it was impossible to heat them sufficiently to make a start before noon. Frequently the cloth had to be singed three times in order to secure reasonably uniform results. The bleaching was effected by a lime boil. After running in approximately 1,800 yards, the operation was stopped and five pails of lime were handed down to the boy in the kier for even distribution. This procedure was followed until the kier had been filled. Finishing after dyeing was at this time a secondary consideration. However, smoothness of face and lustre were the requisites of good finishing and to accomplish this we find three finishes—the Dull, Bright and Very Bright, effected by one, two and three runs respectively through the three-roll calender. Due to the poor quality of the goods there was considerable trouble in even these simple finishes for the rolls soon became pitted or "bunch marked" necessitating an additional run to erase the bad results of the previous one.

From this time on development was rapid as the steadily increasing floor space has indicated. Steam power came to replace the unreliable water power and with it came vast improvements in mechanical apparatus. Processes were changed and perfected and production increased remarkably. The best illustration of progress is the Dyeing Department proper. The original Ageing Box, five feet by fifteen feet, having a daily capacity of 3,000 yards with the ozinizing process only partial, was replaced by many others of various sizes equipped with hot air blowers and ventilators. The alterations were frequent and costly and much cloth went up in flames. Up to 1900 the best results were obtained from a thirty-foot ageing box.

In 1902 an Ageing Box was built under the direction of Mr. H. C. Anderson, which was sixty-five feet long, having a daily capacity of 18,000 yards in ten hours, and completing the oxidation process within itself. Mr. Anderson had been employed in this department from its inception and was conversant with the failures and successes that had gone before but it was not until the present owners took over the plant that he was given an opportunity to exploit his own ideas.

Piece Goods Take Lead

During the early history of the mill a large business developed in hosiery but the demand for piece goods was so great that it was soon discontinued and the entire plant devoted to the various kinds of plain weaves, sateen weaves and fancies. This called for improved machinery and the great increase in floor space was almost entirely taken up with these auxiliary machines including Jigs for fancy colors and printing machines for general printing as wel as Beetles, Tenter Frames, Embossers, Friction and Rolling Calenders. The prints and colors were never very successful and were discontinued when The U. S. Finishing Company acquired the property in 1901.

U. S. Finishing Company Enters

The advent of The U. S. Finishing Company marked the beginning of a new era of prosperity for the Sterling plant. The first task of the new administration was the reorganization and development of the facilities at hand. There was a decided lack of co-ordination in the work and it required an immense amount of study and planning to evolve the present smoothly running organization from the chaotic jumble. One of the initial efforts was to utilize the embossing calenders which were practically in disuse.

How far this effort was successful is clearly shown by the acquisition of the sateen business. Until this time Sterling had had little share in the large volume of business developed on this type of cloth but after several months of energetic and determined effort there was produced a finish of such superior quality that it at once claimed the attention of the converters and has to the present time proven the backbone of the Sterling product. The installation of mercerizing equipment in 1902 proved to be an infinite assistance in this undertaking and played a prominent part in the development of new and profitable work.

New Beetle Finish

At about this same time the Pres de Sole finish was produced, being converted by the Gilbert Mfg. company. It was a combination Beetle and Rusil finish and served to further stimulate the interest of the market in Sterling developments thus pa

The Ocowasin Camp Fire Girls presented "Patsy" a two act comedy at Ponemah hall, Tuesday evening. A representative audience responded generally to the good acting of the girls The title role was acted by Miss Sadie Newton as Patricia Muldoon (Patsy), the maid. The caste of characters and players were as follows: Nita Farrell, "the blushing bride," Miss Nyra A. Yerrington; Ruth Fielding, Nita's chum, Miss Elizabeth Houston; Beatrice Edwards and Phyllis Edwards, the twins, Miss Dorothy Hunt and Miss Mildred Yerrington; the quartette, Miss Dorothy M. Linderson, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Linderson; and a piano duet by the Misses Charlotte and Mildred Pilling, young daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Pilling. The musical selections were greatly enjoyed by the audience. Home made candy was for sale during the entertainment, and a neat sum was realized from the affair. The stage furniture was supplied through the courtesy of N. S. Gilbert & Sons of Norwich. The play was given under the direction of Mrs. Edwin G. Crowdis and Mrs. John Volkman guardians of the camp.

Of Taftville interest was an article in a Middletown paper regarding the enlargement of the plant of the Frissell Fabric Co., of which Frank H. Frissell is president, because the present plant is taxed far beyond its limit by an upward climb of business. Mr. Frissell is a former Taftville resident, and is remembered by many of the local people when he resided on North Third avenue and was employed as a weaver in the Ponemah mills. He later attended a textile school in Philadelphia, and took various executive positions at various textile plants in New England. Several years ago he became identified with the Russell Manufacturing Co., and then founded the firm which bears his name and which is experiencing great prosperity at the present time. The Frissell Fabric Company manufactures cotton and silk elastic and non-elastic webbing, braids in cottons, worsted and silk, dyes yarns used in the manufacture of its own goods and does a large business with manufacturers who are not equipped for dyeing their own product. The company was incorporated in 1920, and last month its sales exceeded the sales of any other month since its incorporation.

Thomas Whitehead and Miss Lillian Snell have returned to their homes in Westerly, R. I., after spending a short time this week with Mr. and Mrs. William Whitehead of Boswell avenue.

The pedigreed shepherd dog owned by Arthur J. Roy of Merchants avenue died this week from distemper.

Miss Agnes M. Dougherty of Merchants avenue has returned from Washington, D. C., where she has been spending two weeks.

Miss Louise White presided at the meeting of St. Veronica's T. A. & B. society held Wednesday evening in the society's rooms on Providence street.

The girls of the O. J. S. held a meeting at the Taftville Congregational Church vestry, followed by a rehearsal.

A big brush fire was well under way near the roque grounds on Ponemah Heights, but was extinguished when Fire company No. 1 responded to a call for help, Wednesday afternoon.

Eloi Fregeau of Providence street has resigned his position with the No. 1 weaving department of the Ponemah company.

Desire J. Dufresne received word Wednesday, of the death of his aunt, Mrs. Deslandes in St. Pie, P. Q., Canada.

R. H. Robinson of East Greenwich, R. I., who is in the employ of the Gallaudet Aircraft Corporation, formerly of Norwich, was a caller in town this week.

CREDITOR SUES TO COLLECT FIRE INSURANCE ON GROCERY STOCK

Seven new suits for the superior court, returnable in June, were filed here Wednesday with the clerk of the court, Judge George E. Parsons, as follows:

In two suits brought by Frank Wyrod of New London, Peter Ducharme and Eugene Monast, both formerly of Norwich, now of Holyoke, Mass., are made defendants and a different fire insurance company is named in each suit as party defendant. One is the Safeguard Ins. Co., of New York, which carried a $2,000 policy, and the other the World Fire and Marine Ins. Co., of Hartford, which carried a $1,500 policy, both on the meat and grocery stock of Ducharme and Monast at 25 West Main street, who were burned out on June 10, 1924. At that time it is claimed the firm was still indebted to Wyrod for $2,200 which was the balance of the purchase price. The appraisal of the loss was $2,200, but the companies have refused to make any payment to Wyrod in whose favor the fire insurance policies were made payable, according to his interest.

Anthony Pionowski, of Lebanon, sues Mike Pionowski of that town and Alexander Pionowski of Bridgeport for a claim for $2,100 brought on the common counts.

On the ground of desertion since April 13, 1922, Maurice E. Main of Pawcatuck sues for divorce from Arline Burdick Main of the same place. They were married April 6, 1911.

Charles R. Adams of Norwich seeks divorce from Agnes Moore Adams of Waterford. They were married Nov. 20, 1916, and he alleges desertion May 1, 1922.

Grace Desario Pagano of Norwich sues for divorce from Ralph Pagano of that city, alleging intolerable cruelty since Dec. 21, 1924. They were married on that date. She asks change of name to Grace Desario.

Olga Radiciono Galli of Groton seeks divorce from Angelo Galli, of New Haven, whom she married July 29, 1917. She charges her husband with unfaithfulness since January 1, 1921 and asks alimony and the custody of two children, aged 6 and 4 years.

MERCIER ASSEMBLY HEARS TALK BY MGR. MAY

Mercier Assembly, No. 12, C. L. of C., held its semi-monthly meeting in the rooms Tuesday evening with the president, Mrs. Thomas J. McVeigh, presiding over the largely attended meeting. There was a very interesting and pleasing talk given by Monsignor M. H. May about his pilgrimage to Rome, telling of the different shrines and places he visited and the different experiences he had, which held the close attention of the members. The members of the degree team voted to give a whist to be held in the assembly rooms for which Mrs. James J. Dutton was made chairman. It was also voted by the assembly to have a dance at Hilltop Casino within the next few weeks and Miss Mary Hamil was made chairman and empowered to choose her own committee. As Trinity Sunday, June 7th is the annual communion day for the assembly, they will receive communion in a body at St. Mary's Memorial church at the 7.30 o'clock mass, after which a communion breakfast will be served at the Wauregan hotel. Any member who wishes to attend the breakfast and has not given in her name is expected to get in communication with Mrs. May Symonds whose telephone number is 2685W. The business part of the meeting then concluded. It was turned over to Miss Etta Ward, chairman of the social committee, after which refreshments were served.

OVER 23,000 CITIZEN SOLDIERS FOR SUMMER

More than 23,000 New England citizen soldiers will be in camp at various times during the summer at the several points designated within the first corps area.

Camp Devens, as in former years, will have the largest quota, though the number there this year will be smaller, due to the war department policy of decentralization of camps. There will be, however, about 10,000, with 1,400 officers and men of the regular army. The next largest camp will be Fort Ethan Allen, Vt., with about 3,000, while at Forts H. G. Wright and Terry, off New London, about 3,200 will train, a large number of them Massachusetts men.

In addition to these points, camps also will be held this year at the following places: Forts in Boston and Portland harbors, Fort Adams, Newport; Camp Keyes, Augusta, Me.; Charlestown, R. I.; Hanover, Mass.; Niantic, Quonsett Point, R. I., and Rye Beach, N. H.

F. Russell Smith is in charge of securing the quota allowed to Norwich for the Citizens Training Camp.

LEBANON PRINCIPAL IS GIVEN HARTFORD POSITION

At a special meeting of the trustees of the Watkinson School and the Handicraft Schools of Hartford, this week, Edward B. Williston of Lebanon was appointed principal of the Watkinson School, to succeed Frank L. Edwards, resigned.

Mr. Williston is principal of the Lebanon High School and has held a similar position in high schools at Colchester, Madison and Southington. He has been a successful teacher and administrator, and has had much success with boys. He is a graduate of Bates College, Maine. Mrs. Williston, who will become school mother, is a graduate of Simmons College, Boston.

The trustees also re-appointed Eugene L. Covey, who has been at the school for the past three years and will have charge of the athletics, the music and the work in the grades of the school. W. L. Davidson, a graduate of Cornell University, was reappointed teacher of agriculture.

Secretary Clement Scott was directed to write and thank Frank L. Edwards, the retiring principal of the school, and Mrs. Edwards, for the efficient services they have rendered to the Watkinson school.

Eastern Connecticut Health

Three cases of scarlet fever and one case of diphtheria were reported from Norwich last week according to the weekly morbidity report issued by the state department of health. Communicable diseases reported from towns in eastern Connecticut during the week were as follows:

Diphtheria—Groton, 1; Norwich, 2.
Scarlet fever—Groton, 2; New London, 2; Norwich, 3; Preston, 6; Voluntown, 4; Killingly, 1; Putnam, 7.
Measles—Colchester, 2.
Whooping cough—Groton, 6; Old Lyme, 1.

SUMMER WITHOUT FLIES COULD BE POSSIBLE

A flyless season is worth looking forward to! It is within the realm of possibility—if every one pulls together in a campaign to eliminate the fly, says the weekly bulletin of the state department of health.

In the first place all the breeding places must be destroyed. They are not hard to find—those manure piles reeking with filth as each new layer of moist material is added to them—those public or private dumps in the vacant lots which have some decaying vegetable or animal matter and are always damp because the sun never strikes those spots—those open privies to which flies have access because they are not properly screened—the public market where the food is exposed without screening—even those uncovered garbage cans at the back door within which food is accumulating in varying stages of decomposition. Any one of these may become a prolific breeding place for flies.

In the second place, The fly's life history and disgusting habits should be familiar to everyone. It should be recognized by all that the fly is an enemy to health. It breeds in filth and feeds on filthy material from which it may go directly to clean food (if left exposed.) On this it deposits the filth which has been clinging to its feet and hairy body.

While liquids or sweet syrup will attract flies first, solid foods, especially if sweet, are also desirable to them. Foods must be in a semi-liquid condition to be available for nourishment so the fly deposits a supply of saliva on the surface of the food in order to accomplish this purpose. At the same time it deposits excreta better known to the laymen as "fly specks." These may contain disease germs if the fly has lately visited the sick room or privy where some disease has prevailed.

Were the eye equipped with a magnifying retina or lens so that these disgusting habits could be brought into bold relief, no further argument would be needed to convince one of the dangers of house flies.

This is the season to begin by killing all the early flies and cleaning up all the filthy places. Given the right conditions of warmth, moisture, filth and food, flies multiply rapidly. One early fly allowed to live may be responsible for 7,200 flies by the end of May; 432,000 flies by the middle of June; 25,920,000 flies by the middle of July; 93,312,000,000 flies by the middle of August; 5,598,720,000,000 flies by the middle of August.

The State Departmnet of Health has fly bulletins which tell you more about flies.

There are two fly moving picture films "Fly Danger" and "The Fly as a Disease Carrier." These picture the fly at close range in all its poses.

There are fly slides which give both pictures of flies and legends about its life history.

Now is the time to use all this fly illustrative material, which is available on request, so the public may know some of the dangers that lurk in its wake.

WINNERS IN SPEAKING AND SPELLING CONTEST

Pauline Niemi of the Miner school, North Stonington, took first and Russell Murray of Lemingwell school, Bozrah, took second in the district speaking contest held Tuesday afternoon at the Uncasville school. The former recited "The Plaint of the Camel" and the latter's selection was "Respect To The Flag."

This speaking and spelling contest was for the schools in the towns of Bozrah, Preston, North Stonington, Ledyard, Montville, Waterford, Lyme, East Lyme, Old Lyme, Salem and the New London County Home, Norwich.

The contestants who took part were all the winners of first place in the contests held recently in their respective towns. The winners of this contest will go to the state contest to be held in Hartford early in June, to compete with the winners of the other districts.

Making Memorial Week Poppies

The Woman's Auxiliary of Robert O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion has practically completed the poppies which they are to sell during Memorial Day week throughout the city to raise money to carry on their work among the disabled veterans in local institutions.

Final preparations are to be made at a meeting to be held this (Thursday) evening at the Haile club rooms when it is expected that there will be a large attendance to assist in making poppies of which about 2,000 will be needed, it is believed.

Bycycle Damaged By Automobile

Wednesday evening shortly after 7 o'clock a boy on a bicycle and an automobile, number L-1096, collided at the junction of Broadway and Union street. The boy was making a wide turn and the machine was making a short turn. The boy escaped injury but the bicycle was badly damaged. The automobile register shows that registration L-1096 is owned by George Gill of Jewett City.

Reception for Dancing Class

Tuesday evening Mrs. E. A. Andrews entertained at a reception at her home on Washington street for her Tuesday evening dancing class. Lilacs and spring flowers made the attractive decorations. Following a dance programme that included the waltz, fox trot, Spanish schottische, and Argentine tango, ice cream and assorted cakes were served.

LITIGANTS SETTLE SUIT OVER PANTS MAKING

The suit of Abraham Hirsch of New London against Victor Miller, proprietor of the Canton Clothing Co., of Boston, Mass., which occupied the entire time of the superior court in Norwich Tuesday before Judge Isaac Wolfe was brought to a close Wednesday when the attorney appeared in court and announced that settlement had been reached out of court, satisfactory to both parties.

Although the terms were not made known, Attorney Thomas E. Troland, who represented Miller said that the settlement was very favorable for his client and satisfactory to both parties. It is understood that immediately after adjournment of the court Tuesday afternoon, the plaintiff and defendant got together without their attorneys and agreed upon a settlement. Wednesday morning a meeting of the parties together with their attorneys brought the case to an end. Attorney John C. Geary and Attorney Arthur T. Keefe, appeared for the plaintiff.

Hirsch in his complaint claimed damages of $450 for services rendered and of this the defendant admitted $442.50. In a cross complaint the defendant, Miller, claimed damages of $10,000 from Hirsch. This complaint came about as the result of a verbal agreement between Hirsch and Miller in which Hirsch agreed to manufacture and dispose of pants as directed by Miller, the latter to supply the material, according to the papers filed.

MACHINES ROLLED DOWN BANK NEAR ROUND HILL

(Special to The Bulletin)

Jewett City, May 20.—This afternoon a Maxwell coupe owned and driven by Maurice Shurtleff of Providence and a Ford delivery owned by Thomas K. Hamrah of New London and driven by Eugene J. Sullivan, rolled down the embankment near Round Hill, Lisbon, on the river road to Jewett City.

By the marks on the Providence car it looked as if the New London machine had crowded the other through the fence and State Policeman George L. Gardner from the Danielson barracks, who investigated the accident, arrested Sullivan for reckless driving. He will be presented before Justice of Peace Walter Drew in Lisbon.

Only the driver and a dog were in the Maxwell but three were in the seat of the Ford, the driver and a man and a woman said to be employed in the Lawton mills at Plainfield. No one was hurt.

The machines barely escaped dropping onto the railroad track below and section men were sent down to keep guard until the machines were pulled back to safety.

FINAL ARGUMENTS IN THE MACRI MURDER CASE TODAY

Each Side Will be Allowed Two and One-Half Hours—In Summing up Assistant State's Attorney Barton Insisted That Miss Macri Had Made No Attempt to Prove to Mrs. Bagnano That Her Husband Was the Father of the Child, Lucy—Quoted the Version of the Shooting as Given by John Leonard—Attorney Koletsky, For the Defense, Pictured Miss Macri as a Little, Innocent Girl Whom the Slain Man Wanted to Get Though "Good Means or Foul."

New Haven, May 21—Possibilities that the case of Olympia Macri, charged with shooting to death John Bagnano, would go to the jury this week, were eliminated late today when Judge Christopher L. Avery decided to permit each side to consume three hours in summing up the testimony and in arguments.

State's Attorney Arnon A. Alling put several rebuttal witnesses on the stand today in an attempt to refute the story told by Miss Macri yesterday. Included in the rebuttal witnesses were two cousins of the girl defendant and the widow and a brother of the slain man. Miss Macri was the last witness called before the actual taking of testimony ended. Defense Attorney Joseph Koletsky placed her on the stand a moment to deny that she had ever told her cousin, Mollis Lombardi of going on an auto ride with John Bagnano after her child, Lucy, had been born.

In the last hour of the session today assistant State's Attorney Clarence E. Barton and defence Attorney Koletsky alternated in summing up the case. Each consumed half an hour in addressing the jury.

Both sides will be allowed two and a half hours tomorrow for closing arguments. Judge Avery is expected to consume at least two hours in charging the jury and court attaches said tonight that the case could not possibly be placed in the hands of the jurors tomorrow.

Miss Macri appeared weak and dizzy when she left the court room tonight and was supported by Mrs. Frank R. Baldwin, jail matron, when she walked to the street.

Assistant State's Attorney Barton in summing up the evidence told the jurors that the murder of John Bagnano had been deliberate, wilful, premeditated and with malice aforethought. He pointed out that at least ten eye-witnesses had identified Miss Macri as the slayer. He said that there was no evidence to prove that the shooting was an accident, or by compulsion, or that the accused girl was insane. He declared it was the voluntary act, not of a girl in her teens, but of a woman almost 21 years of age as the records showed.

He called attention to the fact that although the motive given by the defense for the shooting was that Bagnano would not support the child, Miss Macri had never appealed to the courts for aid.

The state's attorney insisted that the girl had made no attempt to prove to Mrs. Carolina Bagnano that her husband was the father of the child Lucy. He repeated the version of the shooting as given by John Leonard, a witness for the state, who testified to having a bullet go through his overcoat.

In conclusion he declared: "Married or not, Olympia wanted Johnny. Such jealousy broods determination." He then told how Miss Macri is quoted as having said: "He got what he deserved. I am glad of it."

Defense Attorney Koletsky in addressing the jurors claimed that the real motive for the shooting was the habit of John Bagnano. This was "the habit to ruin good women. He wanted their little innocent good girl. By good means or foul he wanted to get her."

He characterised some of the state's evidence as "rotten and foul." He said: "We do not stand on the unwritten law. We stand on the written law—the law of self-defense." Defense Attorney Koletsky then graphically recounted what the characterised as the suffering of Miss Macri from that day she was alleged to have been assaulted by John Bagnano until after the birth of her child. As he charged that she had been repeatedly beaten by members of her family and threatened with death by the members of the Bagnano family because she sought aid for her baby, Miss Macri burst into tears.

Defense Attorney Koletsky ended his appeal by stating: "Olympia went straight through her duty as a law-abiding citizen."

When court opened today Miss Macri resumed the witness stand and was cross-examined by State's Attorney Arnon A. Alling for an hour. He asked her questions regarding her previous testimony and she answered him without apparent effort. At only one point did she contradict her statement made on the day before and that was when she said she had slapped John Bagnano's face on one occasion although yesterday she had denied doing so.

A recess was called during the morning session while a jeweler was called by the defense in an effort to have him identify Ralph Bagnano, a brother of the slain man, as the one who had pawned a revolver in March and only a few days after the shooting on February 28. It had been the contention of the defense that one of the Bagnano brothers had removed a revolver from the clothing of John Bagnano shortly after the shooting. The jeweler, however, failed to identify Ralph Barnano as the man who had pawned the gun.

The defense rested at this point and State's Attorney Alling called several rebuttal witnesses. Chief of Police Philip T. Smith and Coroner Mix were called to testify regarding the appearance of the girl when she testified in court yesterday as compared with that shortly after the shooting.

They said that she seemed to be in about the same condition on both days. Other rebuttal witnesses called by the state today included Miss F. Rachel Webster, principal of a school which Miss Macri attended; Mrs. Carolina Bagnano, John (Fats) Bagnano, Mollie Lombardi and Mrs. Marion Bagnano. They all contradicted portions of the story as told by the girl on the witness stand.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE ON COMMUNITY LIFE

Chicago, May 21—Probably no activity is of more importance today than the encouragement and development of community life, President Coolidge said in a letter to O. E. Bradfute, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, in commenting on the farm organization's plans for a country wide Fourth of July celebration among the nearly 2,000 county farm bureaus, the letter was made public here tonight.

"It was with great satisfaction," the president wrote, "that I learned of the plans of the farm bureau to take the lead stimulating organized nation wide celebration of the Fourth of July. The gathering of our farmers and our townspeople in these country-wide celebrations will give a new significance to the day.

"Probably no activity is of more importance than the encouragement and development of our community life. In the early days in this country the church was the center of community life. Times and conditions have changed. We are in need of social, moral and spiritual as well as economic community action. I truly think the Fourth of July celebration will play an important part in the encouragement of such community spirit. It is particularly fitting that the farmers, through your great organization, should take the lead in stimulating this movement.

"May I join with you in doing homage to the farmers of 1776, and may I express to the farmers of 1925 my appreciation for their part in this great country of ours."

PATRONS FIND ONTARIO BEER LACKS "THE KICK"

Windsor, Ont., May 21—"It Ain't Got No Kick." "Oh, boy, just like the old days." "I am going back to Detroit, where I can get some real beer," these were some of the conflicting remarks heard in the hotels and inns here today where Ontario's "four point four" went on sale to a mixed crowd of thirsty and curious Canadians and Americans.

In the words of one member of the drinking fraternity who had spent the day "sampling" Ontario's new brew, "The stuff ain't aged long enough. I have been drinking it all day and there ain't no kick in it."

Others were included to be more optimistic. "Give it time to age," said one Detroiter, who had just managed to empty three bottles of the brown foaming liquid.

Late this afternoon the ferries which had moved scarcely more than an average number of passengers during the day began to dump hundreds of smiling, eager Americans upon the Canadian shore. With the exception of a two hour rush around noon time, the hotels and inns were well able to supply the needs of their patrons.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

FRANCE WILL KEEP ITS FINANCIAL OBLIGATIONS

Paris, May 21.—(A. P.)—Come what may the French government will keep its financial obligations both abroad and at home, Premier Painleve declared at the formal opening of the international waterpower and touring exposition at Grenoble today. His speech was interpreted in political circles as setting forth the policies of the French government previous to the reconvening of the chamber of deputies on Monday.

The Moroccan situation was another question the premier treated, and he frankly asked the followers of ex-Premier Herriot to remain staunchly behind the present cabinet during the present critical period.

Political circles say if Painleve can line up the socialists behind him on the Moroccan question his government is safe, for the time being, but there is a well defined movement among the left guards of the chamber that heretofore have consolidated the government's majorities, to turn against the present cabinet on the question of the continuation of the Northern African campaign.

HOOVER ADDRESSED THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Washington, May 21.—(A. P.)—Elimination of waste in overlapping governmental agencies through re-organization of administrative functions was advocated by secretary Hoover in a prepared address at tonight's session of the annual convention of the chamber of commerce of the United States, at which former Representative Winslow of Massachusetts, who was chairman of the house commerce committee also was a speaker.

"What we need," said Mr. Hoover, "is three primary reforms: First, to group together all agencies having the same predominant major purpose under the same administrative supervision; second, to separate the semi-judicial and the semi-legislative and advisory functions from the administrative functions, placing the former under joint boards, the latter under single responsibility, and third, we should relieve the president of a vast amount of direct administrative labor.

"Opposition of vested officials, the disturbing of some vested habit and the offending of some organized minority, with paid propagandists aroused, the commerce secretary asserted, have thwarted such a program, although "every president from Roosevelt to Coolidge has urged upon congress a reorganization of the executive arm of the government."

"Nor will we ever attain this until congress will authorize the president or some board, or a committee of its own members, to take the time to do it," he declared.

GOLD AND SILVER COURT AT BUCKINGHAM PALACE

London, May 21.—(A. P.)—Nearly a thousand matrons and debutantes, among them numerous Americans, were presented to the king and queen at Buckingham Palace tonight at the first royal court of the season. This is already known as the "gold and silver court" from the prevailing colors of the gowns, and the beauty of the summer evening lent additional attraction for the thousands who had gathered as usual in the vicinity of the palace to watch the arrival of the guests and court officials.

That part of the park known as "The Mall" extending from the palace to the Admiralty Arch at Charing Cross, was closely packed from six o'clock onwards with a line of limousines bringing to Buckingham the favored ones bedecked and beautified for the great social event of the season—always an attractive sight to the royalty-loving Londoners.

It took close on to three hours before all had assembled within the palace, which for the occasion had been converted into a veritable bower of blue hydrangeas and pink roses, these being the flowers especially selected by the queen. Punctually at 9.30 o'clock the royal procession, headed by the king in the uniform of a colonel of the life guards and the queen in gorgeous court costume entered the throne room to the strains of the national anthem played by bands in the music gallery and the quadrangle of the palace.

The members of the royal family grouped themselves behind their majesties and the presentation began with the diplomatic circle.

TEXAN MILITIA MAY BE CALLED TO PROTECT NEGROES

Dallas, Texas., May 21—(A. P.)—State militia will be called out if necessary to maintain order at the Dallas county jail, Judge C. A. Phippin declared when reports were circulated that a second attempt would be made to reach Frank and Lorenzo Noel, negro brothers, charged with the killing of two Dallas men and attacks on their women companions.

Authorities said they were prepared for another disturbance. A large crowd gathered at the criminal courts building at noon, the scene of the riot but no offensive movements had been made.

HEAVY WIND, RAIN AND HAIL STORM IN OHIO

Lima, Ohio, May 21—A heavy wind, rain and hail storm, passed north of here shortly after noon today. Carey and Findlay were in the path of the storm and reported the heaviest hail in recent years. No damage to life or property was reported however.

Manslaughter Charge In "Baby Farm" Case

Mrs. Helen A. Geisen-Volk of New York Indicted in the First Degree.

New York, May 21—(A. P.)—Investigation into the "Baby Farm" conducted by Mrs. Helen Augusta Geisen-Volk in East 86th street led to her indictment on a charge of first degree manslaughter for the death of six-month-old William Winters, whose skull was fractured before his death. She previously had been indicted for substituting babies and also is charged with keeping more children than her permit allowed.

Mrs. Geisen-Volk was brought to the criminal courts building, where she pleaded not guilty to the substitution charges, through crowds of men and women who thronged the entrance. Police were forced to make a lane through the mass of people and to detour into a rear courtyard. Mrs. Geisen-Volk then was smuggled out of the prison van quickly to prevent the crowd seeing her.

While Mrs. Geisen-Volk was in court, one of the babies found in the "Baby Farm" was starting life again as a foundling while another was restored to its parents. Mrs. Grace Wilson Bass, who authorities say admitted that she bought a child for $75 from Mrs. Geisen-Volk and pretended to her husband that it was their own, turned the baby over to the welfare department. He was christened Stephen Andrews and will be sent to an institution, because his real parents are unknown.

Meanwhile Mr. and Mrs. Richard Webster had identified a baby sent to Bellevue hospital under the name of "Richard Burton of Philadelphia," as their child.

It was announced tonight from the offices of the district attorney and the medical examiner that the body of a child found two weeks ago in a leather bag in an ash can will be exhumed to determine if it is that of the missing Stephen Angerer who has been sought ever since the closing of Mrs. Geisen-Volk's baby farm.

The baby found in the ash can was wrapped in a German newspaper and was said to have been strikingly similar in appearance to the Angerer child. It was announced that a man who refused to reveal his identity telephoned the homicide bureau yesterday that a woman living near New York had told him that she had been asked to deposit an old leather bag in an ash can by Mrs. Geisen-Volk. The woman carried out Mrs. Geisen-Volk's instructions the informant said not suspecting that the bag might contain any unusual burden until she read of Mrs. Geisen-Volk's indictment in the paper.

DR. MAHER TO ANSWER ATTORNEY GENERAL HEALY

Hartford, May 21—Responsibility for the delay in instituting condemnation proceedings to take a strip of the McCook estate at East Lyme for an extension of the Seaside state sanatorium for bone tubercular children is being sifted by the legislative appropriations committee.

The committee has before it Representative Mary B. Weaver's bill authorising the tuberculosis commission to engage private counsel if necessary to prosecute the condemnation suit. The bill was tabled in the committee Tuesday afternoon after a vigorous attack on it by Attorney General Healy who said he saw in it a move to displace him as counsel for the state in the proceedings. The attorney general laid much of the blame for the delay in the case to the tuberculosis commission, and, as a result, the appropriations committee, has asked Dr. Stephen J. Maher, chairman of the commission, to appear before it Tuesday afternoon to state his side of the case.

Dr. Maher declined today to be drawn into a discussion of the attorney general's charges prior to Tuesday's hearing, but said he did not anticipate much difficulty in convincing the committee that the tuberculosis commission has been anxious at all times to get the additional land at the earliest possible moment. He said an appropriation made by the last session of the legislature for the erection of the addition is useless to the commission until the condemnation suit is finished.

Miss Weaver's bill was unanimously endorsed by the legislative committee on humane institutions, of which she is a member, and introduced in the house by Representative John H. Hill, of Shelton, house chairman of the committee. It was then transferred to the appropriations committee for consideration of an appropriation of $3,000 which it carries for the compensation and expenses of the lawyer proposed to be engaged.

SEES SIMPLIFICATION OF THE LIQUOR PROBLEM

Hartford, May 21—A vastly diminished liquor problem faces the United States' prohibition authorities, the state and local officials of the municipalities and towns of Connecticut since the recent coast guard blockade of rum runners, according to Federal Prohibition Enforcement Chief Frank T. Putney, in an authorized statement today. The one great difficulty confronting prohibition enforcement authorities in the state is the illicit distillation of denatured alcohol probably brought across the Connecticut borders in an illegal diversion of the denatured product, Mr. Putney said. He places the source of supply in New York, largely and said that the alleged source is under investigation which, he hopes, will soon result in the curtailment of the denatured alcohol supply of the distilleries illegally operating in Connecticut.

THREE CHINESE WERE ACQUITTED IN FRISCO

San Francisco, May 21—(A. P.)—Twain Michelson, San Francisco attorney and three Chinese who were on trial with him, were acquitted in the United States district court on a charge of conspiring to bribe a federal immigration inspector, after Grove L. Fink, the prosecutor, had charged that Secretary of the Navy Wilbur had "interfered" in the case.

Wilbur Frantzel, 23 years old, of Wallingford, was taken to New Haven hospital in an unconscious condition after the automobile which he was operating left the road on the Clinton Beach Park highway crashed through a fence and went over an embankment.

Girl Scouts Are To Plant 112,000 Trees

Reforestation Plan Announced at Annual National Convention in Boston.

Boston, May 21—(A. P.)—A reforestation plan under which Girl Scouts in all parts of the United States would plant 112,000 trees this summer was announced at the eleventh annual national convention of the Girl Scouts here by Mrs. Jane Deeter Rippin, National Director.

"We are planning to plant a tree for every Girl Scout registered in 1924," Mrs. Rippin said. "We are planning also to plant trees of remembrance to pioneer women of the United States, whose lives have been spent in unselfish service and devotion to the welfare of the country. * * * Every troop of Girl Scouts in the United States will plant and rear at least one tree and it will be a heinous offense to let that tree die. If by any chance this should happen, the Girl Scouts will replace the tree and care for it until it has come to maturity."

The reforestation programme, Mrs. Rippin announced, is under the immediate direction of Warren Luyster, the Girl Scout forester formerly connected with the United States Forest Reserve forces. Today 7,000 trees have been planted in New York state alone. Many trees have been planted along the Dixie highway but more on waste lands, dumps and devastated forest areas. Much of the reforestation will be done with conifers. On October 31, which is founder's day for the movement, every troop in the United States will plant a tree in honor of Mrs. Juliette Low, founder of the Girl Scouts of America.

NO DEVELOPMENTS IN MAINE ABDUCTION CASE

Winthrop, Me., May 21—(A. P.)—Investigation of the possibly fatal shooting of Mrs. Emma M. Towns, by a man who is believed to have abducted her niece, Miss Aida Heyward, after setting fire to their cottage here early yesterday morning, was given a setback tonight when it was learned that Deeka, the police dog that found Earl Woodward and Lucille Chatterton over a cold trail in Vermont last May 1, would not be sent here by his owner, N. G. Peabody, to run Miss Heyward and her alleged abductor to earth.

When officials here communicated with the Peabody kennels in Weston, Vt., they were told that Mr. Peabody was in New York with Deeka. Efforts were made early tonight to communicate with Mr. Peabody as it was said at his estate that no dog would be sent without the owner's permission. Later Mr. Peabody said in New York that Deeka would remain on exhibition there.

At the hospital here, physicians said that Mrs. Towns was sinking. Oxygen was being administered but she was not strong enough to make another statement in support of her first vague, amazing story of the shooting. She said a man attacked her without warning as she and her niece entered their house, talked with Miss Heyward about a long automobile trip, money and jewelry, and disappeared only to return to set fire to the house and vanish with her niece.

A cross bred German police dog and collie dog followed a trail for a mile last night but lost the scent in a barn on a neighboring estate, where the police believe their man continued his flight in an automobile. Nearby houses on Lake Maranacook were hurriedly searched without yielding further clues.

A Boston private detective questioned without avail, Harold Sprague of Oakland, son-in-law of Mrs. Towns who was arrested on suspicion, but was released when he proved he was home all Wednesday night. The authorities also went to Waterville to question Basil Larkins, whose car was seen in the vicinity Wednesday night. A woman was said to be in the machine.

GAR WOOD OFFERS TO BET $25,000 ON HIS SPEED BOATS

New York, May 21.—(A. P.)—Gar Wood, Detroit's speed boat champion, today offered a bet of $25,000 "or any other sporty amount," as an inducement to Richard E. Hoyt, owner of the speedboat Teaser, to enter his little craft in a race against the famous Wood boats on the Hudson next Monday.

Hoyt is the man who stole a march on Wood yesterday. He started his Teaser in the Hudson at Manhattan and roared his way up the river to Albany in 2 hours and 40 minutes, beating the twentieth Century Limited running time 27 minutes. Wood had previously announced that his boats, Baby Gar IV and Baby Gar V, with another of his speedsters, the Cigarette, Jr., would do that very stunt next Monday.

After announcing his $25,000 bet offer—a wager that his boats could beat anything equipped with Wright engines, with which the Teaser is equipped—Wood said he was laying plans to attempt a 48-hour trans-Atlantic crossing from Newfoundland to Cowles, England, in 1927. To do it he added, his boat would have to maintain a 60-mile-an-hour clip, refueling from a steamship stationed at sea.

Officials of the New York Central lines, operators of the Twentieth Century Limited, today declined to become a party to any race.

Arrangements were completed today for the broadcasting of the event by radio from a great winged airplane which will fly above the train, whose course parallels the Hudson all the way from Albany, the men on the boats transmitting a detailed account of the unusual affair for re-broadcasting by stations WGY, Schenectady, and WJZ, New York.

FORMER MRS. ARBUCKLE IS SUING A DETECTIVE

New York, May 21—(A. P.)—Mrs. Minta Durfee Arbuckle, divorced wife of Roscoe C. ("Fatty") Arbuckle, motion picture comedian, filed suit in the superior court against Jerome C. Baum, a private detective, to recover $2,500 which she says she paid him to arrange a divorce in a lawful manner in Rhode Island and without publicity.

The petition alleges that Baum attempted to arrange the divorce by illegal methods and not in accordance with the laws of Rhode Island, and "in a manner calculated to expose the plaintiff to public ridicule and to reflect upon her personal and professional integrity."

TWO FLYING BOATS HOP OFF FOR THE NORTH POLE

Started From Spitsbergen, an Island 200 Miles North of the Norwegian Coast, at 5.15 Yesterday Afternoon—Each Plane Carried Three Men—Captain Roald Amundsen Commands One, Lincoln Ellsworth, the American Engineer and Explorer, the Other—At Ninety Miles an Hour, the Pole, 680 Miles Distant, Should be Reached in About Eight Hours—Planes Might Not Return to Spitzbergen For Several Days.

New York, May 21—The North American Newspaper Alliance announced this evening that it had received a dispatch from Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, stating that the two flying boats of the Amundsen-Ellsworth Polar expedition hopped off there at 5:15 this afternoon for the North Pole. The dispatch says that each plane carries three men.

The Amundsen expedition's attempt for the pole is presumably being carried out according to the long-considered and carefully devised plans announced in Associated Press dispatches from Oslo, Norway, on May 5. These called for one of the seaplanes making for the pole to be commanded by Captain Roald Amundsen and the other by Lincoln Ellsworth the American engineer and explorer.

It was expected that, making more than 90 miles an hour, the pole, which lies about 680 miles away from King's Bay, should be reached in about eight hours. The airplanes were to carry gasoline in sufficient quantity for two hours more than necessary for the entire round trip from Spitzbergen to the pole.

The plans called for a landing at the pole, where it was expected observations would be attempted to locate the pole's exact position, this operation requiring several hours. It was thought possible the planes might have to land several times during the northward trip and back, and that they might not return to Spitzbergen for several days. The arrangement announced was that the pilot in one of the planes would be Lieutenant Riaser Larsen, who would be piloted by Oscar Omdal, with Lincoln Ellsworth as navigator.

It was stated in the Oslo message that if it was not found practicable to land at the pole the aviators planned to drop a Norwegian flag in the approximate vicinity.

VIRGINIUS MAYO LANDS IN SING SING PRISON

Ossining, N. Y., May 21—An aged manufacturer entered Sing Sing tonight and was introduced to prison life at a meal of tepid tea, prunes and unbuttered bread.

He is Virginius St. Julian Mayo, 60 years old, formerly of New Haven, Conn., and later of Brooklyn. He made his fortune in the manufacture of automobile radiators and got into prison because he married without a divorce from his first wife.

Mayo's induction into prison life—he has a one to three year bigamy sentence over him—marks the latest chapter in an unusual and somewhat sensational case. Three wives, various unnamed women, figured in his trial and conviction in the New York county courts in May, 1923. He spent the intervening three years in futile higher court appeals and would have had his freedom by this time had he gone to jail at the time of his conviction.

Mayo was arrested in November, 1921, on complaint of Wilhelmina Meyer Mayo, to whom he had been married in Newark, N. J., in 1904. She later learned, she said, that her manufacturer husband had another wife, Florence Weeks Mayo, of Scranton, Pa., the latter divorce him in 1915. Before he married Miss Meyer the manufacturer was alleged to have married Miss Lois Waterbury, who also divorced him.

After two unsuccessful appeals to high courts, Mayo surrendered himself to New York authorities. He will spend the first ten days in prison with the reception gang at manual labor, after which he will be given a less arduous jail job.

FIVE BUSTS UNVEILED IN THE HALL OF FAME

New York, May 21—Within the shadow of the marble colonnade of the hall of fame, that houses sculptured tribute to America's most distinguished citizens, five busts of men and women, already written into immortality there by simple bronze tablets, were unveiled today.

Gathered on the terrace of the New York University campus nearby were noted men and women, who had come to pay homage to the memory of those honored, in a simple but dignified ceremony.

The busts unveiled were those of Charlotte Cushman, famous actress, Harriet Beecher Stowe, author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin"; Asa Gray, botanist; John Marshall, fourth chief justice of the United States, and William Tecumseh Sherman, famous union general of the civil war.

These names already are numbered among the 63 now honored in the hall of fame. Today's ceremonies centered about the presentation of their busts, gifts of various organizations and patriotic societies. All of the proceedings were broadcast by radio.

50,000 FRENCH TROOPS FACE THE MOROCCAN TRIBESMEN

Paris, May 21.—(A. P.)—Abd-El-Krim's imposing force of Guerglia tribesmen, who are brigaded with experienced fighters from the Riff region, are being concentrated by experts in military strategy. This is the opinion of the military experts here.

The latest developments lead these experts to think that the pretender's next effort will be to cut the railroad from Oudja to Fez, thus making it impossible for the French to bring in any more reinforcements by that route from Algeria. The number of men in the Riffian army has only been guessed at, but their activity at numerous points over the front between Kijane and Quessan leads to the supposition that they are stronger than was previously supposed.

The French now have $50,000 picked troops on this front to meet the tribesmen. This force, however is seriously handicapped by the fact that it cannot take an earnest offensive owing to diplomatic and political reasons, and must remain on the offensive and give the Riffians, guided by skilful leaders, the advantage of being able to strike at a point where the French troops are thinnest.

The greater part of the 50,000 men General Court De Chambrun has at his disposal cover a 125 mile front.

The posts in the Bibane region were thus again surrounded, which made it necessary for the French to do over again the work of relieving them accomplished several days ago. Hardly had the Bibane posts been relieved a second time when the posts in the Taounat region, further eastward, were surrounded and cut off. This requires a relief effort by Colonel Freydenberg, and a company of French was to have begun it this morning.

Premier Painleve declares all France must support the effort of the army to reestablish order in the French zone of the African protectorate, but the orders to the forces in the field, it is said on good authority, will be to remain on the offensive until it is seen what will be the outcome of the debate in the chamber of deputies on the Moroccan question next Monday.

GERMAN STOWAWAY FAILS IN HIS 26TH ATTEMPT

New York, May 21—(A. P.)—Paul Crouppe, claimant of the trans-Atlantic stowaway record, went to Ellis Island after his twenty-fourth attempt in six years to cross the Atlantic from his home in Germany, without a ticket, had gone away. He was taken off the liner President Roosevelt when it docked here, and will be sent back to Germany.

Hunger and the aroma of freshly cooked bread caused Crouppe's latest failure. From his hiding place on a deep shelf in the liner's gallery, he thrust forth a hand to grab a loaf of bread the baker was carrying through the gallery, and teh baker saw him. He was transferred to the brig.

Crouppe took his ill luck philosophically and said he still wanted to enter the United States. He explained that he had friends in Springfield, Ohio.

WILLIMANTIC

Horace Riviere, of Manchester, N. H., launched an attack on the local newspaper attitude, at the mass meeting of the strikers of the American Thread company, held in the Gem Theatre Thursday morning. His remarks touched upon the item appearing in the Danielson correspondence of The Norwich Bulletin which told of local strikers seeking work at mills in Danielson and vicinity which were recently affected by cuts similar to that which the strikers are fighting against here. He dissected the statement issued Wednesday by the American Thread company paragraph for paragraph. Regarding the opening of the windows of the plant so that operatives on picket duty could hear the noise of moving machinery, the speaker said that the strikers had nothing to fear as their jobs were still their own. In taking up the first sentence in the statement made by the company, Mr. Riviere stated that if they were getting along as well as they pretend they would not have to bother with the strikers and go to the trouble of writing out long statements. He said that it was true that none of the local work was being done in Holyoke or Fall River, because those operatives refused to do it. If the strikers are evicted from the tenements the rent for which the company has refused to accept upon offer, he said that they can calmly set up a tent village and enjoy camping in the open.

The next sentence taken up was that the mills had opened under power May 11th. "They did," said Mr. Riviere, "but that power was under state constabulary. There was no production and without that there is nothing doing and nothing will be produced until the company sits down in conference and gives back the ten per cent. wage cut to you."

He said that the pension gag was an elastic with a string on the end of it. "You just get a grip on it when it is snapped way from you," he said. Mr. Riviere then named one man out on strike, who is 68 years old and has been in the service of the company for 55 years. "For Heaven's sake," he said, "how long must a man work to get a pension. He told of two men who were discharged without given reason from the Westerly mills, after working faithfully for the company 20 and 30 years.

In conclusion Mr. Riviere said, "Mr. Curtis or any other man or men cannot crush this organization. You have remained solid in ranks and determination. Continue to face whatever must come. It is an impossibility for the American Thread company to beat you if you hold your ranks firm. Look the situation squarely in the face. The victory is yours!"

Miss Mary Kelleher closed with remarks in which she said that the thread company was playing its last cards, after trying to discharge the strikers with detectives, state police and other methods conducted through their emissaries to break the morale which you had to win and which you of the operatives. The first battle have won beyond question was to show that you could stick together for eleven weeks," she stated. Miss Amy L. Hooker presided at the meeting. Two soprano solos, "Loves Sends a Little Gift of Roses," and "Just a Wearying for You," were sung by Miss L. Monplaisse.

TWO COUNTY CONFERENCE BY KING'S DAUGHTERS

The twenty-first annual conference of The King's Daughters of New London and Windham counties was held Thursday in the Second Congregational church, New London, ninety-five attending. The hostesses were Friendship, Mispah and St. James Circles. The platform was decorated with palms, and baskets of purple and white lilacs, iris and dogwood blossoms, the Silver Cross on a purple background occupying a prominent position in front of the pulpit. Mrs. Jane Graham Foster of Norwich, the County president presided. The devotional service was led by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, of New London, and Mrs. James Graves of New London welcomed the visiting members very graciously, giving as the thought to carry home that each one be a true King's Daughter all the year round, doing little deeds of kindness, saying little words of love. The minutes of the last conference were read by the secretary, Mrs. E. H. Hillcox of Jewett City. The president appointed Miss M. A. Burdick of Jewett City, Mrs. W. D. Manning of Norwich and Mrs. J. C. Atterbury of Greeneville as resolution committee. Mrs. Wilfred Purdy of New London sang Seek Ye the Lordas a solo. Circle reports were read in the morning and afternoon, and it was wonderfully inspiring to hear the multitudious and varied forms of helpfulness carried on during the year. This included, clothing made for needy ones and for hospitals, and homes, cheery baskets of flowers and fruit, quilts pieced and tied, church work, money contributed to all kinds of organizations and objects of need, helping tuberculosis patients, every bit of the work King's Daughters do quietly in His name. In these two counties are two King's Daughters Home, the Johnson Home in Norwich and Card home in Willimantic.

Report of President

The report of the president, Mrs. Foster was full of interest and was carefully compiled as follows:

The county president's report of the activities of the King's Daughters circles in New London and Windham counties must seem like an old story to most of you as it does not change materially from year to year. The work goes along smoothly and uneventfully, but nevertheless the reports from the individual circles show that much is accomplished. The number of circles remains the same as last year—18 seniors and 2 juniors, besides an independent list which is large enough to form another circle, except for the fact that the members are widely separated.

One of our circles celebrated its 30th birthday this month and that has brought up the question of the ages of the several circles. I have been asked frequently of late as to the respective ages of the circles and perhaps that angle of statistics might be interesting. We will consider Windham County first. The oldest circle is Burden Bearers of Putnam, organized in April, 1888. This circle has a membership of 12—3 less than last year but their report will show that they are reaching out to new fields of service. Next in age is the Earnest Workers of East Thompson organized in March, 1890 and now having a membership of 33—3 more than last year, 10 of whom are subscribers to the Silver Cross. Two years later—in 1892 the Cheerful Doers of Central Village was organized. This circle lost 3 members last year, the membership now being 15, but a most encouraging report is that they are going to hold their meetings more frequently than formerly. Mizpah of Putnam is next, having been formed in September, 1896. Their membership remains the same as last year—12—and they have taken up a new line of work as their report will show. The youngest and largest circle is Trusting circle of Willimantic, organized in 1901 and now having 34 members, a gain of one over last year. This makes a total of 106 members in Windham county, a net loss of two for the year.

New London county has the oldest circle in the conference, Charitable of Norwich, organized in February, 1888. This circle has 12 members, one less than last year. Whatsoever Circle of Jewett City is the next oldest in New London county, having been organized in July, 1890. This circle gained 3 members its membership now being 43. Euphemian Circle of Norwich, organized in 1892 now has 43 members, a gain of 4. In 1895 two circles were organized in Norwich, Grace Circle in February and Ever Ready circle in May. The membership of these circles is the same as last year—24 in the former and 21 in the latter. The largest circle in the conference, Home chapter of Norwich, was organized as a chapter in March, 1897. So far 130 members have been enrolled this year, but more are expected as this is nine less than last year and a membership campaign is to be conducted. Comfort circle of Norwich, organized in February, 1898, has 26 members, the same as last year. New London comes along next with the organization of St. James circle in November, 1902. This circle has 69 members, a gain of two over last year. Friendship circle of New London, organized in November, 1905, has the same membership as last year—49. In January, 1906, Dorcas circle of Jewett City was organized. Its membership is 58, a gain of 5 over last year. Loyal circle of Norwich, organized in October, 1906, has a limited membership, therefore their number remains unchanged, 30 members. Mispah circle of New London was organized in 1913 and now has a membership of 52, a gain of 4 over last year. The Circle of Happy Days of Colchester, organized in 1914 has 5 members as it had last year. Both of our junior circles have organized in 1921. The Pathfinders of Jewett City has lost two members, making their number 15 and the Rainbow circle of Norwich has 12, the same as last year. This completes the roll of New London county with a total membership of 598, including 11 independent members, a net gain of 11 over last year.

The total membership of the two counties is 697, a gain of 9 over last ye raand while this is not as large a gain as our International President asked for, yet it is a step in the right direction. A gross gain of 27 was made by eight circles, the greatest gain in number being made by Dorcas Circle with 7 new members. Five circles show a gross loss in membership of 18, the greatest loss in members being 9 from Home Chapter. Eight circles show the same membership, although in some cases there have been changes in members.

Sixteen circles reported the financial side of their work. Their receipts amounted to $3,030.13 and their disbursements were $2,486.93. The first three circles having high records in this respect were very close together—Euphemian circle of Norwich $465.01, Home Chapter of Norwich $462.71 and Earnest Workers of East Thompson $451.35. Then followed Dorcas circle of Jewett City and Friendship circle of New London.

In response to the call for additional dues to help carry on the work of our order, eleven circles and the dependents paid $1.00 extra and one circle paid $2.00. This brings me to the subject of membership lists. They came in very slowly this year and I noticed that the circles which sent their lists more promptly were, on the whole, the ones which either paid the extra dues or at least made some comment on the matter. I think that in the case of some circles which did not pay it was because such a long time elapsed between receiving the state president's message and filling out the lists that the matter was overlooked. Mizpah circle of Putnam had their lists in first, then Comfort circle of Norwich, Friendship circle of New London, Loyal circle of Norwich and Earnest Workers of East Thompson. It would greatly facilitate the work of the county president if these lists were returned very promptly.

Fifty-five copies of the Silver Cross are taken by the circles, which is not quite one copy for every 12 members. This does not seem quite enough. One or two circles do very well in this respect. Earnest Workers with 33 members takes 10 copies and Home Chapter with 130 members takes 15 copies. I do not want to encroach upon Mrs. Dean's field but I would like to emphasize the fact that the Silver Cross is our paper and it must depend upon the members of the order for its support.

This report would not seem complete without some reference to junior circles. It gives me great pleasure to announce that Mrs. Crawford, our State Superintendent of Junior Circles, is with us today and if there are any who think of starting such a circle or would like to hear about the work I am sure that Mrs. Crawford would glady confer with them.

Mrs. J. W. Dean of New London, chairman of literature briefly called her attention to her table of supplies. A message was read from the international president, Mrs. G. H. Prior, expressing her regret that she could not be present, as she had to fill a previous engagement in Pennsylvania. It was her first absence from her home conference in many years.

A dinner was served in the parish house, the tables being attractively arranged with runners of purple and silver with centerpieces of crosses and purple and white flowers. The blessing was asked by Miss Woodruff, the state president. After the dinner a vote of thanks was extended Mrs. Miller who planned the dinner.

The afternoon devotional service was led by Miss Elizabeth G. Day, vice president of Colchester, Rev. A. H. Abbott of the United Congregational church Norwich delivered an address. He said he would use two words to show a contrast a force known as Violence against a force known as Simplicity. He changed the meaning to Violence of Simplicity, and then most convincingly proceeded to show by illustrations drawn from past history how an idea or belief of one person has been seen so clearly that great things and events have resulted. He said the most violent and disruptive question that can be asked is the simple question Is It Right? He adjured the King's Daughter to have a clear recognition of the unseen and the continual remembrance of Is It Right, and to be simple, diregt and righteous. Miss Florence Young of New London sang Teach Us to Play. Roger M. Daboll was the accompanist during the conference, playing beautiful preludes.

State President Spoke

Miss Mary R. Woodruff, state president of New Haven gave a wonderful address taking her theme from certain signboards she has seen. It was The Flavor Lasts, saying that because of the flavor of things the effect is lasting and benefit comes back to us. Be of service, do the little things others do not think of. Everyone has a religion but every one does not practice it. Then give a word of appreciation or a word of praise. She quoted Depew who said he would have an ounce of taffy here than a ton of epitaphy after he died. Be like a postage stamp stick to one thing until you reach your destination. When you talk put it to the test of three gates—is it true, is it kind—is it necessary? She closed with the beautiful story of how Let Me Live in the House by the Side of the Road came to be written.

Mrs. Foster read a greeting from Mrs. Waters of Hartford County. She brought up the advisability of the state circles contributing towards sending the state president to the next national convention to be held in Los Angeles, California. It was voted that the leader of each circle in the two counties send in five cents per member to the president and a sum be appropriated from the county treasury to make the necessary amount asked from the counties for this purpose.

Miss Burdick read the resolution of thanks for all courtesies extended by church and pastor and to the entertaining circles and all others who contributed to the success of the conference.

The roll call was responded to by the text used by each circle and the number present were: Charitable 10, Dorcas 5, Euphemian 1, Ever Ready 2, Friendship 11, Grace 2, Happy Days 1, Home Chapter 24, Loyal 5, Mizpah of New London 13, St. James 13, Trusting 8, Independent List 1, Visitor 2, total 95.

Mrs. Frank Crawford the state superintendent of junior work was one of the guests at the conference.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

Real high class entertainment is on the Broadway theatre program the last half of this week and scored a big hit at yesterday's performances.

The musical Bernards opened the program with a musical offering away above the ordinary. They are America's premiere xylophonists, having technical ability, fire and temperament so essential for this difficult instrument.

Hughes and Montl followed with their line of comedy chatter, song and eccentric dance oddities, all of the sure-fire kind. The whole offering is one you will enjoy to the utmost.

No story teller who has ever before appeared in this city scored so many genuine laugh hits as Frank Bush. Here is a story teller with some real material who gets his stuff over for a bullseye every time. You will quake with laughter when you hear his stories.

Morris and Towns followed with some more comedy chatter and songs. Their way of telling stories is entirely different from the preceding comedy acts and also went over for many a laugh which produced the desired high compliments.

The Chandon Trio closed the program with an original oddity of song, dance and novelty that made a perfect closing number to this exceptionally fine B. F. Keith vaudeville program.

All cowards are despicable, but probably the worst kind is the one who uses a woman to protect himself. Such a cad appears in "The Old Fool," the Hodkinson picture now playing at the Broadway theatre.

Gloria Swanson at the Broadway Theatre Sunday.

Madame Sans Gene, Gloria Swanson's latest Paramount production and the one and only motion picture to play on Broadway at five dollars a seat, arrives Sunday at the Broadway theatre.

The picture, filmed in France, unfolds, against a background of the Paris of Napoleon's day, the tale of a young French laundress who by her wits and beauty rises spectacularly to become a power behind the throne.

The play is a classic of the stage having been acted by the foremost feminine starts here and abroad.

Gloria, as Catherine Hubscher, nicknamed Madame Sans Gene (Madame Devil May Care), because of her free and easy way with her customers, runs a laundry in one of the back streets of Paris. One of her customers is Napoleon, when that individual is considered a mere nobody by his associates.

Sans Gene meets and falls in love with one Sergeant Lefebvre, played by Charles de Roche. With the French Revolution come many changes. The establishment of the first Empire puts Napoleon on the throne of France, makes Lefebvre a marshal of France and finds Sans Gene, the one-time laundress, a duchess.

Her high and haughty position, however, fails to change Sans Gene, and she goes about mimicking the ivy court mannerism of the lords and ladies. She is called to account for her unbecoming conduct by the Emperor, but when Sans Gene recalls the old days to him and reminds him of her many kindnesses to him, he quickly forgives her.

Breed Theatre.

In an exhaustive treatise upon "Capital Punishment" Prof. George Le-Fevre, eminent French criminologist, voices the startling opinion that hundreds of prisoners, convicted through circumstantial evidence of crimes they did not commit, yearly meet death upon the gallows or in the electric chair.

This statement is in direct line with the theme of Capital Punishment, the B. P. Schulberg production now showing at the Breed theatre.

Facts and figures bolstered by citations of indisputable authenticity are submitted by Prof. Le Fevre, who is a recognized "anti" of the death penalty for crime, in corroboration of his statement. In Russia, Germany, France and England he computes more than seventy "legalized murders" to have been perpetrated last year upon victims of the capital punishment system.

"The enormous strides of applied science and practical philosophy through four centuries past toward the goal of humanitarianism," says the criminologist, in the course of his paper, "makes more appalling the lagging of the race for human betterment in our system of courts and jurisprudence. As regards the punishment of wrong doing, the checking of crime, we are yet in the Dark Ages."

Breed Theatre

Those who enjoyed the stage version of Ziegfeld's noted musical success, "Sally," in which Marilyn Miller made her permanent success, will find added joy in First National's screen version of the same piece starring Colleen Moore, which comes to the Breed theatre, Sunday.

Colleen Moore brings to the role of "Sally" a genius for sympathetic interpretation that unquestionably will make this role an outstanding hit of her long list of successes. "Sally" calls for much humor, interest, pathos, fire of temperament and delightful sentiment.

Miss Moore possesses all of these qualifications as she ably demonstrated in "Flaming Youth," "The Perfect Flapper," and "So Big."

June Mathis, who has transferred to the screen such successes as "The Four Horsemen" and "Blood and Sand," did the adapting of "Sally" and also was editor-in-chief of production.

The major incidents of "Sally's" obscure origin, her struggle up the ladder of life and love and fame are all there. But Miss Mathis has gone further. She has looked behind the scenes, so to speak, taken the playwright's story and, utilizing the plot thread, embroidered it in a manner that undoubtedly will win her the praise of the staunchest of the admirers of the stage version.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Alterations at Hillcrest Theatre

Jack Monty of Occum, builder, had charge of the extensive alterations which have been recently completed at the Hillcrest theatre, Taftville, presenting a very favorable appearance. The changes include the remodeling and enlarging of the stage and the decorating of the interior. The work of putting in a new office at the theatre is also being done by Mr. Monty.

Palace Theatre

Clifford Wayne and Co., will head the professional vaudeville bill at the Palace the last three days of this week presenting artistic dancing, singing.

Another headliner will be the Melody Comedy Four, a male quartette, of singers.

Jim and Bobby, a variety act. Josephine Davis, a musical comedy songster. The Faucets, music singing and dancing.

When little sixteen-year-old Patricia Collins arrived in Los Angeles four years ago, after having spent her childhood years in Nome, Alaska, where she was born—and where she had her first ride on a dog-team sled at the age of two weeks, little did she dream that her next ride in a fur-covered sled would be in a New York cafe scene. But during the filming of "The Bridge of Sighs" under the direction of Phil Rosen, her sled was drawn over a polished ballroom floor, by men in tuxedos instead of Eskimo dogs—and her gown was a far cry from the fur garments she wore in the great open spaces of Alaska.

"The Bridge of Sighs" is a Warner Bros. Classic of the Screen, from the story by Charles K. Harris, the noted song writer. The featured role is played by Dorothy Mackaill, whose supporting cast includes Creighton Hale, Alec B. Francis, Richard Tucker, Ralph Lewis, Clifford Saum, Fanny Midgley and Aileen Manning.

That directorial celebrity, Paul Rosen, is said to have outdone himself in this story of Billy Craig, who steals to pay gambling debts, and who is shipped off to sea by a disgraced father, the while the innocent father of his sweetheart is committed to jail. A beautiful romance is interwoven.

This production will be the attraction the remainder of the week at the Palace Theatre beginning today.

MRS. WHITE SPEAKER AT JUBILEE CHILDREN'S RALLY

Piles

Can't Be Cured From the Outside.

Internal treatments seldom cure Piles.

Nor do surgical operations.

The cause is inside—bad circulation.

The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through the stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method.

J. E. Leonhardt, M. D. set at work some years ago to find a real internal Pile remedy. He succeeded. He named his prescription "Hem-Roid," and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It's easy to take, and can always be found at Lee & Osgood's, who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Tomorrow (Saturday) will be Poppy day, and it will be observed in Danielson in a manner that should react to the advantage of disabled veterans of the World war. Members of the American legion auxiliary will sell poppies in Danielson, all of the profit going for the comfort and advantage of disabled veterans. The poppies that are to be sold here are the handiwork of disabled soldier boys who gave of their blood and the best of their young manhood "over there." Whatever one gives for one of the poppies that will be offered here tomorrow there is no chance that one will give too much. There is no chance that anyone will overpay in money for the benefits he or she enjoys in these United States today because of the sacrifices of the World war invalids. It may bemay be suggested that one should give until it hurts—as people were urged to do when the boys were on the firing lines.

The N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R., company is engaged in checking up the traffic that moves over the Main street crossing in Danielson between 9 p. m. and 6 a. m., a period when there is no gateman on duty. It is taken that this may forecast uninterrupted gate attendance at this crossing during every 24 hours, as is given at Dayville, where the traffic during the night is far less than over the crossing referred to in Danielson. At this time of year night traffic begins to climb towards its peak, reached usually in the early summer. It so happens that this crossing is on a part of two of Connecticut's main trunk lines and traffic passes over it at all hours of the day and night. Only a few nights ago, after the gatemen went off duty for the night, there was a hairbreadth escape for a party of motorists when a train was about to go over the crossing. There is an automatic signal bell at the crossing, but this is held to be inadequate protection in the night season.

Again the matter of a weekly half-holiday is being agitated by clerks in Danielson stores. It is not that they ask the business men to close up shop that they may have a half day each week. They suggest the possibility of arranging a schedule under which clerks could get an afternoon each week, in turn, and still have the stores doing business. That arrangement already has been put into effect in at least two stores in Danielson and other stores are considering the arrangement. The clerks hold that thousands of workers in scores of fields of endeavor now regularly have a half-holiday each week, usually Saturday afternoons. Fully sensing that it would be impractical to close stores here Saturday afternoons, the clerks would be glad of a half day each week on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday or any other day aside from Saturday. The present that the half-holiday schedule of the year will be confined to July and August, as for years past. This is appreciated, but the clerks feel that under the suggested arrangement they could have half a day off each week right through the year, with the exception of the holiday and rush seasons.

Hundreds attended the various masses at St. James' church Thursday morning in observance of the feast of the Ascension. At the 8:30 and final mass of the day a class of nearly 50 boys and girls received their first communion. Rev. Joseph Deschaux M. S. the pastor, was celebrant of the mass and made the address to the class, stressing the solemnity and significance of the event and its spiritual oneness and admonishing the children ever to remain free from sin. The members of other children received communion with the class, as many adults. The class was the largest of the parish that has been prepared for and received first communion in a year; a third class is being prepared to receive within a few weeks.

The American Legion will receive the proceeds for its Memorial building fund from the musical entertainment given at the Majestic theatre by the pupils of Miss Emma A. Burbank. The splendidly arranged and presented programme was as follows:

PUTNAM

Through arrangement with American Legion members here and for the local legion organization members of the Ladies' auxiliary of the legion post at Danielson will come here Saturday—Poppy day—and sell poppies throughout the business section. The auxiliary headquarters will be at the community room in the Putnam Savings bank building. Mrs. Sidney W. Bard of Brooklyn will be in charge of Poppy day work here. The entire proceeds of the poppy sales here will be turned over to Putnam post of the legion.

The wedding of Miss Nellie Borski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Borski of Webster, Mass., and Walter Chaffee of Putnam took place Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church, Webster. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. A. Cyran. Selections on the violin by George Borski, brother of the bride and vocal solos by Miss Carrie Andrews were given during the nuptial mass. The bride was attended by Miss Mae Levandowsky. Thaddeus Borski was the best man. Miss Borski's wedding gown was of white chiffon with full length veil of silk tulle arranged with a wreath of lilies of the valley. She carried a bridal bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid wore orchid georgette trimmed with gold lace, with hat to match. Her bouquet was of snap-dragon.

After the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents on Poinad street and a turkey dinner was served. There were guests from Putnam, Oxford, Whitinsville, Pomfret, Boston, Providence and Hartford. The decorations were roses and carnations. Mr. and Mrs. Chaffee left in the afternoon for a trip to Niagara Falls, New York city, Washington, D. C., and Wilmington, Del. The bride's going away gown was of rose duva-da-lane trimmed with monkey fur and she wore a hat to match. After their return from their honeymoon trip they will reside in a newly furnished home in Putnam.

Eugene Robitaille, who was shot by a farmer at Belchertown, Mass., ten days ago, is still in the hospital at Holyoke. His uncles, Fred Robitaille and James Robitaille, have paid him several visits. To them he told a different story of the shooting from the one first given out. He said that he had sat down in an orchard to rest and the owner came out with a shot gun and ordered him to hold up his hands while he sent his wife for an officer. After a wait of about twenty minutes his hands dropped a little and the farmer shot him, making a wound that almost proved fatal. His relatives here are making an investigation to determine the reason for what seems to be an unprovoked assault.

No steps have yet been taken for the observance of Memorial day in Putnam. There is no longer a legion post here or at least it is without officers and inactive at the present time. For the past three years the post or some of its members have taken the initiative in arranging for Memorial day plans but they will not make the attempt this year. Dr. E. F. Perry, who served overseas in the medical department, was the first commander of the local post and for several years has been the leading citizen in Memorial day observance, has written A. S. Macdonald, secretary of the chamber of commerce, saying that the post was not in a position to take charge this year and suggested that as it was a day set apart for citizens generally to honor the memory of the soldier dead, the chamber of commerce was a fitting body to assume the duty. About ten days remain to make arrangements it will be necessary for some person or persons to act quickly or the graves of soldiers will not be decorated.

A Discussion in the Old Orchard

You'll find it true almost alway,
The bravest have the least to say.
Old Mother Nature.

There was a warm discussion early one morning in the Old Orchard over Scrapper the Kingbird. It didn't take place when Scrapper was about, but when he was busy getting his breakfast. Jenny Wrep started it. Flirting her tail in that saucy way she has, she said:

"Tut, tut, tut, tut, tut! I don't see what there is about Scrapper the Kingbird to make such a fuss about.

"Excuse me, Jenny; you mean voice, not a bill"

What if he did drive Blacky the Crow yesterday? Blacky is too slow on the wing to have half a chance with any bird smaller than he who is quick on the wing. I always have thought that Scrapper has more of a reputation than he deserves."

"It is no such thing!" declared Dear Me the Phoebe, who is related to Scrapper, as, of course, you know. "It is no such thing! Cousin Scrapper is the bravest bird in the Old Orchard, and you know it, Jenny Wren! I'd like to know who it was if not you who called for him to drive Black Pussy out of the Old Orchard yesterday. And he did it, didn't he?"

Jenny Wren tossed her head. "Tut, tut, tut, tut," said she. "I wouldn't go so far as to say that he did it. It struck me that nearly every one in the Old Orchard had a bill in that affair."

"Excuse me, Jenny, you mean a voice, not a bill," interrupted Welcome Robin. "Perhaps you were not near enough to see well, but it was Scrapper who was the leader and who was the boldest and bravest. Scrapper is smaller than I, but I for one am not ashamed to admit that he is braver than I. I am always glad when Scrapper arrives in the Old Orchard, for I know that then there will be some one on guard whom we can trust."

"Pooh!" retorted Jenny Wren. "He sits up there watching for flies and you foolish birds think he is on guard."

"Didn't he discover Redtail the Hawk headed this way yesterday and go out and meet him and drive him away?" demanded modest little Dear Me the Phoebe.

Jenny Wren was forced to admit that this was true, but she pretended to think it didn't amount to much, and the way she used that sharp tongue of hers soon had all her neighbors disputing. This was all she was after, and chuckling to herself she withdrew. The fact is she had quite as high an opinion of Scrapper the Kingbird as did any of his neighbors. She liked to start a discussion just for mischief and to hear the other feathered folk and see how excited some of them got.

So all unknown to himself Scrapper the Kingbird and his boldness and bravery were much discussed, and some there were who were inclined to speak lightly of Scrapper and say that so far as they were concerned they didn't believe half the things that were told of his fearlessness.

"I don't believe Scrapper would fly from King Eagle himself," boasted Pewee, his small cousin.

But this was too much for even Scrapper's stoutest champions, and they all laughed. "I don't care if you do laugh; I believe just what I said," persisted little Pewee stoutly. "I wish King Eagle would come this way and then you would see whether or not Cousin Scrapper is afraid."

"What is all this talk about?" demanded Peter Rabbit, poking his head out of the old stone wall.

All talking at once they tried to tell Peter Rabbit what it was all about, and while they were talking who should appear high up in the blue, pale sky but King Eagle himself, and it was Scrapper who first saw him and gave warning.

THE WESTINGHOUSE AUTOMATIC ELECTRIC RANGE DEMONSTRATOIN

This is the advertised "Range with the Clock"—it cooks without watching. Electrical cookery is best, because:

It is uniform. Results once obtained can always be duplicated.

It gives abundant leisure. There is no necessity for supervising the cooking of the food.

It is economical of food. The shrinkage of meats cooked electrically is from one-third to one-half that of meats cooked in other ways.

It is economical of power. All the heat goes into the food. This means a saving in fuel—and a cool kitchen.

It is clean. There is no flame, soot, fumes, nor smoke. The work of scrubbing dirty cooking vessels and walls is eliminated.

It prepares food better. The juices of the food are retained, and the food is therefore more nourishing and more palatable.

THE ANTI POLLUTION BILL

Efforts to get through a law dealing with the pollution of streams in this state has encountered much opposition for years. Two years ago the legislature adopted a bill only to have it vetoed by the governor. This year there have been influences at work against a similar measure. When the matter came on an amendment to the bill as it passed the house it was predicted and felt that it was a move to kill it, under the belief that the senate would not accept it.

That amendment places the cities on the same basis with the industries. It makes the bill stronger than it was when it left the house. But if this move was regarded as a method of forcing the house to refuse to accept such a change it failed for with little opposition the house had accepted the change and the bill will now go to the governor for his action.

For the second time the general assembly has done its part in having a slave made for the relief of the polluted condition of the streams of the state. It is not to be expected that there will result an immediate purification of the rivers. But with the approval by the governor there will be a start made in accomplishing a much needed and long overdue change. Pollution is much worse in some industries than others, but the quicker the problem can be seriously tackled the quicker it is going to be corrected.

For a long term of years the waters of the state have been growing worse. As manufacturing towns have increased and municipalities have grown the situation has become worse. The longer it is allowed to go the worse it becomes, and the quicker there is a right about face the sooner will there be a gradual improvement. Not to be said as it long has been that such a law is far from perfect, but let it be understood that perfection isn't going to be reached without making a start. For the second time and with increased emphasis the general assembly has said that there should be no further delay. It will take long enough now before the situation can be made as desirable as it should be.

AGRICULTURAL FAIRS

Are the days of the agricultural fairs numbered? If it is a question of what ought to be the answer would be an emphatic No. If the answer received about what the indications are there may be less certainty felt.

Throughout New England the agricultural fairs have long been fixtures for the fall of the year. Their purpose is to get the people of the country together as a body for the viewing of the progress made in various lines of effort by others and for the discussion of farm problems. Likewise it is a time for much sociability and entertainment.

Fairs have undergone certain changes in response to demands and in efforts to interest just as large a number of people as possible. It has been necessary to get a sufficiently large financial return to keep the organization alive and permit it to do what is intended. Changes have succeeded in some instances, and in others the result is not so certain. And yet with the large number of automobiles the fairs of today are nearer to the people than ever before.

Trial and it not as rosy with some as might be expected is indicated by the meeting of the Washington County Agricultural society of Rhode Island, holding its fair at Kingston for action on a proposition to sell its grounds, buildings and equipment and go out of business. Further efforts to reorganize the organization are to be made, but on that depends the future of an old and popular organization, which has for two decades furnished the chief agricultural exhibition in the state. In Rhode Island going backward agriculturally, or is that business in the hands of those who are not interested in such fairs and believe they can get nothing out of them?

It is not improbable that the public, on which so much depends for the financial success of such an undertaking, has experienced a decided change in regard to its likes concerning such an attraction, and that raises the question as to whether public requirements can be met in such a direction.

FIGHTING TENT CATERPILLARS

Once more we have reached the time of the year when the caterpillars are living in their tents, which in itself furnishes a sufficient warning to the effect that unless there is as much effort put forth to eliminate them as they are doing in the way of devastation vegetation is going to suffer severely.

Fighting the tent caterpillars is nothing new. It has been found to be necessary in the past and it must continue to be done if they are not to get the upper hand. There is no more deplorable sight than to go through the countryside and note the trees and brush filled with the conspicuous tents, the occupants of which have stripped the trees of all leaves and ruined hopes with production, if they happen to be fruit trees.

One of the fondest bit of vegetation for the tent caterpillars is the wild cherry, if they could find enough of these they might be content, but they run wherever there is an opportunity and whole orchards are quickly compelled by their feedings. For the wild cherry trees there may be no concern, but such can hardly be said among the fruit trees, but unless there is a strenuous fight made to curb such activities the pest will grow worse each year.

Fighting the caterpillars is not a matter for one of two. It is a job which all should tackle with a recognition of the common good to be gained from it. They multiply rapidly and all that is needed for a neighborhood to be flooded with them is for a few of the property owners to give them free range and allow them to continue their destruction unobstructed.

Much is to be said in behalf of the work that is being done by the school children and the Scout organizations in destroying them nests. Not only does it permit of an interesting rivalry but it means doing something worthwhile, and where many undertake the task it is easily accomplished. It is work which deserves all possible encouragement, and when there is a chance it is something which ought not to be left entirely to the children. There is in fact too much at stake to think of neglecting it.

SALT IN GUTTERS

As the result of a complaint by the city forester the police of the city of Providence are directing attention to a city ordinance which prohibits the dumping of refuse in the gutters or open sewers and are to enforce the law against the practice of dumping the salt and ice packing of ice cream containers in the gutters, because it frequently results in the killing of trees.

Whether other communities have such ordinances or not, it is well that the move which is being made in Providence for the property protection of the trees and shrubs should get due attention elsewhere. The importance of this can be appreciated if there is a desire to stop the needless killing of trees which may be a big asset to a community along its highways.

Dumping the salt and brine in the gutters is the easiest method of disposing of it. Providence ice cream dealers are not the only ones who indulge in such a practice, and yet it is highly probable that there are numerous instances where it is hard to understand what has caused handsome and desirable trees to die when they seemed to be in good condition and state of health.

There is no secret that salt will kill trees and shrubs. If you don't believe it try dumping a quantity in the center of your much cherished lawn and see what happens. What it does to the grass it also does to the trees and shrubbery. But the prevention of such results when it is due to dumping salt thoughtlessly in the gutters is easy. Probably it will only require the calling of attention to the effect of the practice to put an immediate stop to it. Providence's move may well serve as a timely warning to others.

PREVENT DROWNINGS

While the bathing season hasn't really opened it will not be long before it will be here and many will be indulging in a swim in the ponds, rivers and at the beaches. And with the coming of the good old summer time it is impossible to overlook the fact that it means the exaction of a large toll from that portion of humanity which goes on or into the water.

We are appalled to think that there were 19,000 killed last year by automobiles and yet we have reason to pause and consider that there were 6500 who lost their lives by drowning last year. As in the case of auto accidents, a large percentage of the drownings could have been prevented.

Efforts to prevent such a large loss in this manner are made through teaching swimming and warning people against the well known dangers. There is no chance that too much thought can be given to the following advice:

Don't swim if you have heart trouble.

Never go in swimming alone.

Don't swim if overheated or tired.

Don't swim on a full stomach. Wait at least two hours after eating.

Dive only when you have accurate knowledge of the depth of the water.

Don't swim until exhausted. Rest on your back and then swim ashore.

Don't struggle if caught in a swift current or undertow. The force of the current will bring you to the surface, then work in toward shore.

Learn Red Cross life saving and resuscitation methods. Be capable of saving others as well as yourself.

The advice is certainly excellent, and it would do well to commit it to memory or to read it over daily or weekly during the swimming season.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Help the Traffic Officer

Mr. Editor: May I take up a little space in your paper, on auto drivers giving signals to the traffic officer at the Boston store corner. Some drivers don't give any signal, and others keep both hands on the wheel and raise one finger, which cannot be seen, or they will signal behind the windshield, and then the officer must guess at the direction they wish to go.

Just let any driver stand there with the officer for five minutes (he will welcome anyone) and see how much guesswork he has to do. There are only four movements of the hand to make any signal clear, but they must be made out side of the car. It will save the officer a lot of guess work and save his temper. And it will tell the driver in the rear just what you are going to do. Give your signal clearly, and see if there won't be a speeding up of traffic congestion at that point, in some cities the officer will not let you by until you give him the right signal. Now drivers, let's try it for two days and see what a difference it will make. It will not only help the officers but will help us all, for we have all driven in other cities, so let's go.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

"Born to the Sea" is a phrase used to describe Vice Admiral Baron Alfredo Acton, who has been appointed as head of the General Staff of the Italian navy. Though entirely Italian in his family, he gets his name from an officer of Lord Nelson's fleet who settled in Naples, married into a seafaring family and entered the service of his adopted country. Admiral Acton was born in Naples in 1867. He joined the navy when very young and at the age of seventeen was commissioned an ensign. Through the various grades of the line he rose to post captain and commanded the battleship Vittorio Emanuele in the Tripolitan war. During the World war he visited Washington as the Italian naval delegate to the Armament conference.

From Small Beginnings

Ambroise Pare, the Barber, the Father of Modern Surgery.

How would you like to have boiling oil poured into a raw and open wound? How would you like to have an amputation, without anaesthetics, followed by the placing of a red-hot bar of iron against the tender surfaces? It was that sort of surgery that Ambroise Pare, the barber, who lived in the 16th century in France, did not like. He was, as it were, the Christopher Columbus of surgery, the first man who set forward the idea of tieing up arteries instead of burning the flesh with boiling oil or red-hot iron.

Ambroise Pare was born in 1517, in an age when all men of learning must speak and read Latin, and in an age when leaders in the world came from the upper ranks of society. He had neither the advantages of education nor of rank. Although he lived to be 73 he never learned Latin, and he set out in life as a barber. He ended by being the private surgeon to four kings, the recipient of all the honors that Europe could pile upon him and a man to whom the thanks of all suffering humanity are forever due.

When Ambroise Pare lived, a barber was a kind of surgeon, as the red and white barber's poles still testify, the red standing for blood and the white for a bandage. Surgery was extremely crude and almost nothing else than torture. The world was full of quacks who were little better than witch doctors. Into this ignorant and superstitious world came young Ambroise Pare, who set out to become a barber. From ordinary barber's work and the letting of blood for medical treatment, he turned to a real study of surgery. In the great wars of the period he found opportunity to practice, and he made a study of gunshot wounds, of amputations, of tying arteries and of curing plagues. He vigorously attacked the quacks and their foolish charms. He entirely made over all the accepted ideas of treating wounds, and he saved thousands upon thousands of lives. He was a prodigious worker, supremely interested in his surgery, working long hours in operating and then writing books in which he taught others. He invented trusses and he developed the system of massage. It is pleasant to think of the barber's apprentice who so loved his surgical work that he gave his whole life to it, and made his way even into the courts of kings.

Stories That Recall Others

Her Idea of a Fairy.

When Jane was six years old and had just started to school, her music teacher asked whether any of the children knew what a fairy was. Jane, being sure that she knew, raised her hand and was called on to explain.

"Well," said Jane, "one day my daddy took me to a baseball game, and when we came to the river we drove on a ferry that had boards on it."

Too Good to Last

Just before her marriage a recent bride was proudly displaying garments of her trousseau to a group of her girl friends, explaining that the material of the wedding gown was "Honey Dew" satin.

Probably prompted by "sour grapes" one of the girls dryly cautioned: "Oh, don't talk so much about it now, for pretty soon it will be 'Honey Don't everything.'"

Henry II, king of France, was the first to wear silk stockings.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

A WAR ON PRECIOUS METALS

News of a platinum rush in Transvaal, South Africa, is virtually a war bulletin from the front in a great battle between two metals for world supremacy.

"Gold, the undisputed monarch of metals since civilization began faces the challenge of platinum in a part of its domain," says a bulletin of the National Geographic society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C.

"But platinum has not won the war of precious metals—not by a great margin. Except in the Orient, the world's monetary system is still a loyal thrall to its liege lord, gold. Twice platinum has failed in the attempt to lure gold's staunchest defender to desert. As early as 1828 Czarist Russia tried platinum coinage only to give it up in 1845. Soviet Russia announced that platinum, the pretender, would back its currency, but recently the Soviet has returned to the gold standard.

"Each contender in the battle of metals is versatile, and is outstanding in those qualities of character for which metals are admired. Not the least of their trials of strength have been held in the arenas of modern chemical laboratories. Gold proudly maintains it can spread itself out more than any other metal. An ounce of gold beaten into gold leaf will cover 180 square feet. Platinum counters with the challenge that it can stretch farther than any other metal. A cubic inch of platinum drawn into wire, practically invisible to the human eye, would make a strand of wire 50,000 miles long. In other words, one cubic inch of platinum can be stretched out to encircle the earth at the equator twice!

"Both platinum and gold resist corrosion in ordinary atmosphere. Both are malleable, but here gold has the advantage. Both are heavy metals but platinum weighs in slightly heavier. Platinum was once thought to be the only substance which could not be dissolved. Later investigations prove that aqua regia, nitric and hydrochloric acid, can conquer it, but its resistance entitles it to an important place in scientific and laboratory work. Gold melts at 1945 degrees Fahrenheit, platinum at 3191 degrees.

"Platinum is an important catalyzer, that is, a chemical middleman. This property alone probably served to prolong the World war two or three years more than it lasted. As a catalyzer, platinum helps make nitrates out of nitrogen in the air. Germany was cut off from Chilean nitrates during the war, and if it had not been for the supply she secured through the offices of electricity and platinum, she would have run out of explosives long before 1918.

"If Lydenberg in the Transvaal proves a good field, platinum will find quick use for it to fill in a big gap in her lines, for the original major source of the precious metal is running out. Before 1914, more than 90 per cent of the world's platinum came out of the Russian mines near Ekaterinburg, in the Ural mountains. But the best gravels there have been worked and now the world looks to Colombia in South America. Other deposits are known, some even in the United States, but the amounts are slim any place. Platinum, like most natural resources, is no respecter of man-made border lines and is apparently not even particular about the continent where it takes up lodging.

"Neither platinum nor gold is the most precious metal, in the estimation of the world. That honor is reserved for radium which has been recently reduced in price to $70,000 per gram, a price equivalent to $2,100,000 per ounce. Iridium, a companion of platinum, is the second most expensive metal in general use. It is selling for $375 per ounce, and the demand for it is very active because it is needed for platinum jewelry. Platinum is selling for $117 per ounce."

A project for the beginning in July, 1925, of a cross-desert air service from Ramleh, Palestine, to Basrah, Iraq, as a link in the London-to-Bombay route, is under discussion in London. The plan proposes to cover the 900 miles between the two cities in one day, with a brief halt in Bagdad. The cost for passenger transportation is estimated at L30.

A Little Talk on Thrift

The New Saving Appeal

Citing figures to show that total savings deposits in the United States increased about one and a half times in the years 1912 to 1924, W. Espey Albig, deputy manager, Savings Bank Division, American Bankers Association, declares that this improvement is due to a more enlightened thrift appeal.

"Formerly people were induced to put their savings away so that they might have decent burial," he said. "It is true that they had less money then. Though it costs more to live now, wages are higher in proportion, and so people have more to save than they used to have. Our grandmothers put away their wedding gowns to be buried in, else they might have nothing. In the same way they saved.

"But few people would ever save much now with a funeral as their only incentive. Death is too remote, but most people want some object more tangible. Tell them to save for something they particularly desire, and it is different. Hold before them an automobile or a home or some other investment, and you will find them putting more and more money aside."
—Thrift Magazine.

Onion production in Canada during 1924 is estimated to be 1,096,000 bushels, as compared with a total crop of 748,000 bushels in 1923.

MEDICAL INSPECTION FOLLOWED BY TREATMENT IN ENGLAND

Notwithstanding post-war conditions, school-health activities have been kept at relatively high efficiency in England. In 1922 out of 5,180,589 children in average attendance at the elementary schools, no less than 2,-186,750, or 45 per cent, were medically inspected. Through the efforts of school nurses and many voluntary agencies, 77.7 per cent of the children of London who were found defective during the year received medical treatment—a very high proportion. —School Life.

CITY'S EXPENSES GOING UP AS SHOWN BY COUNCIL'S ESTIMATES FOR YEAR

According to the common council estimates of the expenses of the city departments for the next fiscal year of the city, the only departments that will not want more than they had last year are the department of cemeteries, the health and park departments and the recreation commission.

The cemetery department's estimate of $11,000 is $250 less than last year. The other three stay at the same figure as formerly, $8,-200 for the health department, $7,000 for the park department and $4,000 for the recreation commission.

Excluding the gas and electric department, whose estimated receipts and expenses are made to balance in the common council's budget showing, the total estimated expenses of the other departments are $44,860.07 more than a year ago. These department expenses were estimated at $672,-556.25 a year ago. This year they are $717,416.32.

The amount to be raised by tax last year was $329,054.81. This year it is $342,887.09, an increase of $13,832.28.

The department of public works wants $138,500, where the estimate last year was $122,800. The items in which there are increases are ordinary repairs and expenses, from $68,000 to $70,000; garbage and ashes, from $23,-000 to $28,000; oiling and sprinkling, from $6,000 to $8,000; parks and trees, from $2,500 to $2,500; liability insurance, from $3,000 to $3,500; equipment and repairs, from $4,000 to $9,000. The item of macadam repairs is reduced from $9,000 to $7,000, and other items remain the same as last year.

The fire department raises its total for salaries and expenses from $76,850 to $79,850. This, however, does not include an additional $7,500 for the new salary schedule. While this has been approved by the fire commissioners, it has not been put in the regular budget by the common council but is to be voted on as an "extra."

The police department general total goes from $96,700 to $106,250. This is through a raise from $62,300 to $68,000 for salaries and general expenses, from $26,000 to $28,500 for street lighting and from $6,000 to $8,-250 for city court expenses. The police pension fund remains at $1,500, but the $6,000 needed if the new salary schedule is to be put into effect is treated in the same way as the firemen's increase was treated and goes in as an "extra" to be voted upon.

The water department is increased from $30,656.25 to $34,450 because the interest charge estimate goes $25,-656.25 to $29,450. On the opposite side of the account the receipts from the water department are estimated at $13,000 less than they were a year ago, the figures being $40,000 for this year and $53,000 a year ago.

The finance department makes its estimated expenses $333,166.32 where they were $321,100 a year ago. The increased figures include salaries and tax commission, from $7,400 to $8,900; court house expenses, from $9,000 to $9,500; interest, from $36,500 to $38,250. Election expenses are decreased from $3,800 to $2,300. New items are $9,500 for first instalment on Laurel Hill and West Main St., permanent note, and $5,000 for general sinking fund. The other items remain the same as last year.

In the gas and electric department operating expenses are estimated at $610,000 which was $627,000 last year, expansions and extensions are at $100,-000 which is double that of last year, the interest charges continue the same as a year ago, and the sinking fund charge is placed at $35,000, where it was $15,000 last year. Against this department is also made a charge of $40,000 to be turned over to the general funds of the city.

COMPLAINANT FAILS TO APPEAR IN COURT

At the Thursday morning session of the city court, Deputy Judge H. H. Pettis nolled a breach of the peace charge against a Norwich young man who got into trouble when he tried to help out Dr. Harrison Gray on Main street, Wednesday afternoon. Dr. Gray testified that Wednesday morning he stopped his machine in front of the Porteous and Mitchell store, on Main street to secure some medicine at Lee and Osgood's.

While he was in the drug store he was notified of an emergency call and hurried out to respond. His machine was wedged in between two other machines. He asked a man seated in the machine directly in front of him if the machine couldn't be moved. The man said he was not the driver. About this time the driver of the car, a salesman from Beaton, came out of the Porteous and Mitchell store and Dr. Gray explained that he was in a hurry but the salesman did not appear to be very courteous and an argument started. The Norwich man, who was present, sided with Dr. Gray and finally Dr. Gray got his car out and drove away to make the call.

The argument continued between the Norwich man and the salesman with the result that the salesman was on the receiving end of a couple of punches. Then the Boston man had the puncher arrested but the complainant failed to appear in court to prosecute the charge against the Norwich man. After hearing the testimony Judge Pettis expressed the opinion that the defendant should have been the salesman and stated that an effort should be made to learn the identity of the salesman and have him in court, where the matter can be thoroughly threshed.

MAKING PLANS FOR PLAYGROUNDS SEASON

The regular monthly meeting of the recreation commission was held on Thursday evening in the office of Judge Arthur F. Libby at the city court room. In addition to the commission members there were present, Miss Ruth Sherburne, of the Playground and Recreation association of America, and Mr. Brigham, the playground supervisor. A number of applications for positions as instructors at the local playgrounds this summer were received and placed on file.

Plan for the summer work include the securing the new apparatus for the various grounds. Mr. Brigham reported plans already made for the junior twilight baseball league that will open its schedule about June 1st. It was emphasized that the cooperation and civic interest of citizens in the localities of the grounds is needed in order to conserve the apparatus and to allow the work to increase in scope. With the assistance of Miss Sherburne it is planned to conduct an institute for the training of playgrounds instructors previous to the opening of the grounds.

The commission members present were William Fitzgerald, chairman, John M. Lee, Mrs. D. Louise Atterbury, Mrs. Fred Brewi, M. Frank Leonard and Jonathan L. Johnson.

TWO $750,000 GIFTS TO DETROIT Y. M. C. A.

The citizens of Detroit have just suscribed $6,471,371 for six new Y. M. C. A. branches and the enlargement of the present Central branch, in a ten-day campaign for which Hon. Edwin Denby was chairman.

Detroit now has a population of 1,000,000, and the "Y" central building on Grand Circus Park, considered a model at its erection twenty years ago, which houses the Detroit School of Technology under "Y" auspices with some 2,500 students, as well as the other departments of the association, is much outgrown and is to be enlarged. The rest of the big fund just subscribed is to provide six new branch buildings, in sections of the "Automobile City" which are described as equivalent to six cities of the size of Worcester, Omaha and other similar towns.

Outstanding gifts to the Detroit fund include Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford, $750,000; Mr. and Mrs. Edsel Ford, $750,000; the six brothers composing the Fisher Body Corporation, $500,000; Mrs. W. W. Hannan, $500,-000; Sebastian Kresge, $500,000; Mrs. Matilda Dodge, $100,000; C. B. Van-Dusen, the "Y" president, $100,000; Dodge Bros., $100,000; General Motors Corp., $100,000. Over 11,000 contributors took part.

This campaign sets a new record in financing of "Y" buildings, surpassing the achievement of St. Louis which raised $3,000,000 in May, 1924. The first six months of 1925 will show $20,000,000 added to capital funds of the American associations, which is as much as the total property of the "Y" in this country twenty years ago.

CITY DEPARTMENT'S HAVE $27,310.11 IN OVERDRAFTS

Department overdrafts of $27,310.11 are shown in the annual report of City Treasurer Charles S. Avery ending May 15, 1925, of which all but $714.71 is ascribable to the street department.

In the street department there has been an overdraft of $15,649.98 in ordinary repairs and expenses, $4,136.64 in collecting garbage and ashes, $417.-12 on cleaning sewers and catch basins, $3,202.57 on oiling and sprinkling, $439.51 on parks and trees, $317.71 on liability insurance and $441.87 on the Pratt street sewer construction.

Under the police department an overdraft of $407.09 is shown on street lighting, and $102.50 in city court expenses.

The water department has a $200 overdraft in its interest account, and the finance department shows an overdraft of $6.12 on election expenses.

City Treasurer Avery's annual account shows a working balance of $5,-634.89 on May 15, 1925, besides $50,-000 which is carried to the credit of the gas and electric department, but since the fiscal year closed on the date mentioned the treasury has been reinforced by a payment of $40,000 from the gas and electric department. In view of that fact, Mayor Waters did not intend to give the impression in the council meeting Wednesday evening that the city was without money when the council declined to make the appropriation for the Grand Army expenses for Memorial day. The appropriation could not be made because the request for it was presented too late for the present council to vote upon it.

The city treasurer's annual financial statement is given herewith:

HEALY DENIES HIS OFFICE HAS BEEN SLOW

Resenting what he said he regarded as a move to displace him as counsel for the state in the condemnation proceedings to take part of the McCook estate at East Lyme for the Seaside State sanitorium for bone tubercular children, Attorney General Healy appeared before the legislative appropriations committee Tuesday, it has been learned, and fought against a bill authorizing the tuberculosis commission to engage private counsel for the case.

The attorney general denied that his office had been dilatory inprosecuting the condemnation proceedings by the last session of the legislature, as charged by United States Senator Bingham in his inaugural address as governor, and said that the tuberculosis commission was to blame for much of the delay. He said he was ready to proceed at once and intended to push the case to the limit. The bill was before the appropriations committee for consideration of an appropriation of $3,000 including in it for the compensation and expenses of the lawyer to be engaged by the tuberculosis commission.

The bill had originated in the legislative committee of humane institutions and, being introduced in the house last Thursday, under a suspension of the rules, was referred to the appropriations committee.

Representative Mary B. Weaver of New Milford, a former school teacher and a present member of the committee on humane institutions, called upon Attorney General Healy and said she took full responsibility for the origin of the bill. She did so, she said, because newspaper articles that the bill is a political move intended to provide a sinecure for some one.

Miss Weaver was a member of the same legislative committee two years ago, which conceived the bill to take the strip of McCook's property by right of eminent domain, after negotiations between the McCooks and the tuberculosis commission had failed. She said she had watched the progress of the matter anxiously and was much disappointed that it had not advanced further in two years, as delay was, in her opinion, working an injustice to scores of crippled children for whom treatment was sought at the institution.

Miss Weaver said she had had talks with the attorney general on the subject previously, in the last session, and was interested merely in getting action without delay. She asked the attorney general several questions about the progress of the case, and then conferred with other members of the committee on humane institutions. It was decided to ask the appropriations committee to hold the matter in abeyance until next Tuesday.

BULKELEY TO PLAY BRIDGEPORT HIGH SATURDAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, May 21—After escaping unscathed in the diamond engagement fulfilled by Bulkeley Tuesday afternoon, the orange and black nine is sharpening its claws and anticipating the visit of the strong Hilltop nine, erstwhile known as the Bridgeport High. This game is carded for Saturday afternoon and the entire town has declared a holiday. It means that the existing record for attendance at any game will be shattered when these two teams hook up against each other in what promises to be another one of those thrilling contests. The previous record for attendance touched upwards to 8,000 Decoration day last year with the same team playing opposite the Panthers.

Saturday's game has a very important bearing on the state championship. With both teams wading through their opponents with ease and piling up an enviable record, the day is set for the Panther to come through with another victory and thus stay in the race for championship honors. Bulkeley has reached the stage where the best teams on the schedule are being opposed and consequently the state title is also pending the outcome of these games for every one of these contests are important to one team as well as to the other.

To date Bridgeport has shown no weakness in any department. Eight victories out of ten tries have been the reward of the efforts of the Hilltoppers. Only two defeats, one at the hands of Suffield Prep by a 5 to 3 score and the other at the hands of St. Thomas Seminary have been the only defeats any team holds against the Park City aggregation. On the other hand the victories overshadow the defeats by far. The record shows a 9 to 3 win over Choate Prep; a 7 to 3 victory over the famous Yale Preparatory school at Milford; a 11 to 3 win over Greenwich High; a five inning victory over Weaver High of Hartford; and the most noteworthy of all the Bridgeport nine won from by a score of 5 to 2. Victories over Wilby High of Waterbury by an 8 to 3 score and another defeat of West Haven High by a 4 to 1 count sums up the record of the Perk City gang. It is a record to be proud of and although Bulkeley has a record that is as good, one of the tightest battles in high school history is expected to be the result when these teams engage each other.

From the present rating Bulkeley is as good as the general run of college freshmen teams. To contract this statement one only has to examine the record of the Orange and Black to that of say Yale yearlings. Bulkeley defeated New Haven Hillhouse high by a 3 to 2 score. On the other hand, the Elm City nine have been cleaning up in all ranks winning over the strong Roxbury Prep nine by a 11 to 5 score, while Roxbury turned the tables on the Yale frosh by a 7 to 2 score. Some difference in scores. Other strong prep aggregations went down before the strong Hillhouse high nine among them being Choate.

PHILLIES BEAT REDS WITH MAYS PITCHING

Philadelphia, May 21—Philadelphia took the opening game of the series from Cincinnati here today, 9 to 1. # TENNIS TOURNAMENT IS PLANNED AT NORWICH GOLF CLUB FOR MEMORIAL DAY

The Norwich Golf club announces that on Memorial Day an invitation tennis tournament will be held at the club courts which will be open to all tennis players in eastern Connecticut. This tournament is the first of the season's activities in tennis and is sponsored by the Norwich Golf club which is now affiliated with the United States Lawn Tennis association and all tournaments are sanctioned by this governing body. The main event of the tennis season comes in September when the eastern Connecticut championships are played.

The Memorial Day tournament includes only the men's singles and is a in the morning with play going on practically every hour of the day. The entrance fee for the tournament is one day tourney starting at 10 o'clock very small being only fifty cents and suitable prizes of merchandise will be given. Entries should be filed with Russel A. Clapp at 93 Water street as soon as possible. The drawings will be made on Friday, May 29th.

Following the Memorial Day tournament will be the Fourth of July invitation tournament which will include competition in the men's singles and doubles. The eastern Connecticut championships include play in the mixed doubles and men's doubles and singles. The cup for this event is now held by R. A. Powers of New York who won the title last year.

There is much more interest this year in tennis than in previous years and several exceptionally good youngsters are developing in the game. To promote the interest in tennis a movement is on foot at the Norwich Golf club to establish a tennis membership at the club which entitles the holders of tennis membership clubs to play tennis even if they do not play golf. As it is now a person must take out a full membership card which entitles them to the use of the golf course as well as the tennis courts. There are many in Norwich who do not care for golf but are ardent tennis enthusiasts who would take out a tennis membership if there was one, at the club.

Russell A. Clapp who is one of the strongest tennis enthusiasts in Norwich is endeavoring to promote the game in this city and for several years has worked hard in the interests of the game. Mr. Clapp is now trying to get at least two of the first ten ranking tennis players to give an exhibition at the Golf club courts during the Fourth of July tournament. The new 18 hole golf course will also be opened on this date.

KACEYS TAKE FALL OUT OF TABS IN N. L. LEAGUE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 21—The Knights of Columbus enjoyed a slugfest in the seventh inning and easily took the strong Tabs nine into camp in a city league contest this evening winning out by a 9 to 2 score. The Kaceys scored a total of seven runs in the final frame shadowing all doubts as to whose ball game it was. For six innings it was a pitcher's battle with both Joe MacInnes and Dickson twirling fine ball. A single by Sullivan and a double along the third base line by Brennan accounted for the only scores made by the Tabs.

The Knights scored twice in the fifth on a pass to Barry and singles by John MacInnes and Coyle. The big blowup came in the final frame and the Tabs went completely to pieces. Hits and errors were sandwiched for runs and the ball game which had been a tight affair up until this frame turned into a farce. Dickson was routed and his curves held no terrors for the Kacey batters.

Friday night the Standard Oil nine opposes the Section Base and another tight game is expected. At present the Submarine Base is in the lead with two victories and no defeats. The other teams are close behind the league leaders, with the Tabs losing both games in as many tries. Score:

CHAPMAN TECH TO PLAY STONINGTON HIGH TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 21—If the goddess of fortune smiles upon Chapman Tech, the Red and Black nine will repose in the top position of the standing of the eastern Connecticut interscholastic league. But in order that this prediction may result it means that Nolwich Free Academy, present leaders in the league will have to drop their game to Westerly and that Chapman Tech will have to win from the ever dangerous Stonington nine. All four teams in the league will be seen in action Friday afternoon, and providing that the Academy is given its first defeat in league competition, the Chapman Tech nine will once again lead the circuit.

By reversing the tables on Westerly High, Stonington is the dark horse of the entire four entered in the league. So the Red and Black will have to be on the alert if it is to come out the victor. A good deal of the preparation for this contest and for any other game in fact has been omitted due to the intensive work out in track which the track squad has been daily preparing for in anticipation for the eastern Connecticut interscholastic meet which was held on Wednesday. A good deal of the players on the nine are track inclined and this made it impossible to hold the daily workouts.

This afternoon was the first time the nine had a chance to work out. Morris Brown is most likely to receive the assignment against Stonington while the selection of the mound artist for the latter nine is undetermined as yet. If Brown shows signs of faltering, Zip Gero will be on hand to take his place. The game will get underway at 3 sharp.

LINDLEY WINS SCULLING TITLE IN YALE CLASS RACE

New Haven, May 21—A. D. Lindley of Minneapolis, Minn., stroke of the Yale Olympic crew, won the sculling championship of Yale and the Geoghegan sculling cup on the Housatonic river at Derby today. He defeated W. A. Burke, of New York City in the finals by a margin of three lengths over a half mile course. No time was taken.

In the preliminaries, Lindley defeated Frissell and Burke defeated Davidson, who had held the cup for the past two years. Spock, who rows number seven in Yale varsity crew and a former holder of the cup, did not take part in today's race because of an injury to his back.

M'INNIS IS GOING TO JOIN CINCINNATI TEAM

Boston, May 21.—John (Stuffy) McInnis of Manchester, former first baseman of the Boston Braves, said today he would join the Cincinnati club next Tuesday. McInnis was given his unconditional release by the Boston club this spring when he refused to sign up at a reduced salary.

The former Braves player had several interviews with Jack Hendricks, manager of the Cincinnati club while the recent Braves-Cincinnati series was in progress here. Hendricks announced as the club left that he had wanted "Stuffy" but that McInnis had asked for delay, which he had refused.

PANTHERS GIVE HILLIES A TERRIFIC DRUBBING

Worcester, May 21—Worcester hit freely today, defeating Pittsfield 22 to 4. Parkes pitched to four batters, a pass, a late throw by Gouger and two hits bringing his retirement. A double off Olsen finished the inning with four runs for Worcester. Manager Hayrs, who has played only three games, got four hits, including two doubles, every one in a pinch. Starr and Phillips hit over the fences. Score:

Pittsfield ..... 0 0 0 0 2 1 0 0 1—4
Worcester .... 4 4 1 0 3 1 2 6 x—22

Two base hits, Smith, Thrasher, Hayrs, 2; Bell 3; Cronin, Bosse, Stapleton. Home runs, Phillips, Starr.

Short Romances of Every Day Life

The Gates of Memory

By Clyde Weldon

In almost every little village there is a mystery. Sometimes it's a person, sometimes a house. Safety Harbor was no exception. It had Mrs. Semple.

After ten months of Mrs. Semple's living in Safety Harbor, the townspeople knew just as much about her as when she first came, and they didn't know anything about her then.

Bill Crosby, who had the building contract for Mrs. Semple's house, didn't even know what she looked like. His orders came from her lawyers. The house was a smallish one, but cosy and pretty; away from any neighbors, though. Everyone remarked at the time the lumber was hauled to the spot, what a far away place she had taken. But it was a pretty location; close to the beach, and nestling in a grove of young pines that overlooked the harbor and the sound.

The day the house was finished Mrs. Semple came. Jim DeCosta drove her up, and he told all about her; said she was a mighty nice looking woman, but she had sad eyes. That was the most he had noticed about her—the sad eyes part.

The Sunday after she arrived she appeared in church. She was dressed in quiet, dark clothes, but they were nice things. She evidently had money. Everyone welcomed her, and she seemed a friendly kind; but the funny part about her was that although she smiled with her mouth, her eyes were not smiling a bit. They were sad, just as Jim DeCosta had said.

Of course, that started folks talking, and wondering why her eyes were sad, but no one had the courage to pry into her affairs.

As Winter came on the women's clubs and societies began to have their meetings. Then there was the hospital work and the church work. Mrs. Semple was invited to everything. She was a willing worker, and a generous contributor to the funds. But somehow she didn't seem to enter heart and soul into things. She seemed to be trying to forget something—no one could find out what. She never spoke of her personal affairs. After quite a bit of hinting, they did find out that her husband had died a few years back, of tropical fever in South America. He had been in some kind of government work there. Outside of that, they found out nothing.

Then Christmas week came. All the societies were busy with baskets for the new little hospital, and for the Mariners' Hospital, and with comfort bags for the Seamen's Bethel, Safety Harbor being quite a place for ships to come in out of the storms that rampage outside. Safety Harbor, in its younger days, was quite a whaling port, anyway, but now most of the old houses of the whaling skippers belong to Summer people.

Mrs. Semple contributed a lot of money toward the work the societies were doing, but she seemed to do more for the Mariners' Hospital and the Seamen's Bethel than anything else. The funny part of it was that she would never go near either place.

Sometimes the clubwomen would go over to the Bethel, when there were some boats in, and would give little entertainments for the boys. Mrs. Semple would never do anything like that.

Cristmas Eve the Patriotic Club had planned to go to the Bethel. There were a lot of boats in that had been held up by the storms. The club women all debated whether they should ask Mrs. Semple to go or not.

"Well," said Martha Greene, "she never goes when we ask her, and I don't believe in wasting my breath." Then someone said she might feel hurt if she didn't get asked.

"I think we should ask her," spoke up May Allen. May was the youngest member of the club, and there wasn't a sweeter, nicer girl in the village. Mrs. Semple liked May, too, and they knew that if May couldn't get her to go, no one could. So May went over to ask Mrs. Semple. When she came back she seemed quieter than usual, but she said Mrs. Semple would go, and would be glad to play her 'cello for the boys.

Everyone was surprised, of course, but glad she would help out. No one knew she could play a 'cello.

At the door of the Bethel, a little, vine-covered cottage, down by the wharf, Mr. Ward, the chaplain, was welcoming everyone. Inside everything was all trimmed with greens and crepe paper and holly. Over in the corner was the Christmas tree, loaded with the comfort bags and candy. There were about 45 men there—a good many young fellows. All the chairs were filled and some of the fellows were sitting on the magazine tables that were pushed back against the wall.

There was a little cleared space around the piano, and that was where all the entertainers sat. Mrs. Ward said a few words to the men, asking them to help out in the singing when they were asked, and then the program began. There was a piano solo first, by Mrs. Randal. She played nicely, too. Then Rose Preston sang a solo; she has a lovely voice.

Mrs. Semple was to play her 'cello next. She seemed nervous at first, but after she began to play she got over it. The 'cello made quite a hit among the men, so she played again. It was that piece, "Absent," that she played; it's beautiful, but it's sad, too. Everything was as quiet as a tomb when she played. It was enough to bring tears to anyone's eyes, the way she played it.

Right in the middle of it, the door opened ever so quietly, and a young man came in. He stood there for a moment, listening. His face was as white as a sheet, and his big, black eyes were staring at Mrs. Semple as if he saw a ghost. Just then Mrs. Semple looked up from her 'cello, and caught sight of the boy—he wasn't any more than that. She stopped playing as quickly as if she had been suddenly changed into a wooden figure, and her face got white, too, and her big, black eyes stared back at that boy.

"Dick!" she whispered, with tears in her voice.

"Mother!" said the boy, holding out his arms and stumbling forward.

Then everyone began to talk at once, and laugh, to hide their tears. Mrs. Semple stopped the noise herself. With her arm around the boy, she told what it all meant. Tears glistened on her cheeks, but her voice was as happy as any mortal's could ever be.

"Oh, everyone! I want you to know how happy Dick and I are tonight!" she began. Then she told how her son had gone to sea on a freight boat; there had been a collision one day night, with many of the crew lost. Her son had been among those who were missing. Then her son took up the story. He was a dark-haired boy, who looked just like his mother. Big, black eyes, fine cut features, and the same low voice.

He had drifted for days in a lifeboat. When he was picked up his memory had died in that terrible experience and since dead men tell no tales, there was no one to identify the lifeboat and its one living seaman.

In hope of meeting someone who knew him, or of going some place he would recognize, he went tow-boating. That was the first time he had ever been into Safety Harbor. He was on his way to the news store to get a newspaper when he had heard the 'cello playing, and it somehow stirred up his memory.

When he heard that favorite piece of his, "Absent," his memory began to return, and he came into the Bethel, where he found his mother.

She said afterward that she never had believed her son was dead, even after she had looked for him everywhere and never found him. That was why she wanted to be where she could watch the ships come in. She said she felt that he would come back to her.

Faith does a lot sometimes.

Returned With Interest

By Phil Moore

DR. JEREMIAH JUDSON was a most obstinate man. He stuck to his opinions, though the skies fell. It must be conceded that he was rarely wrong; and when he maintained that natural aptitude was not a deciding factor in success, he had countless examples to prove his contention. He himself was one. For his father had insisted that he study medicine, which he hated, yet he was most successful as a country practitioner.

"I wanted to be a lawyer," he told his friend. "Yet, here I am successful in a life I hate."

"True," assented the friend, "but had you studied law you might have gained national, instead of local, success."

The doctor shook his head. "Doubted. Only a few can strike a chord that echoes across a continent. 'Train up a child,' you know," he quoted.

"There's another version, you remember," warned the friend.

But the doctor only sniffed.

The doctor had two sons, Jeremiah, Jr., and George. Jeremiah, the doctor decided, should be a lawyer, and George a doctor.

Jerry selected trains for his favorite toys. He played, lived, drew, talked trains. A busy doctor has no time for supervision, so Jerry haunted the station learning telegraphy, way-billing and routine from the old agent; building and surfacing tracks from the section crew. Where Jerry led, George followed, content to be with the idolized elder brother.

The quarrel between Jerry and his father, when that young man had reached the age of deciding a career, was inevitable. No amount of argument could alter Jerry's determination to be a railroad man.

"A brakeman or a fireman," stormed the doctor. "I won't hear of it!"

"You needn't," said Jerry, stubbornly. "Nobody'll mention it to you."

This made the doctor angrier. He ordered Jerry to get out and not come back unless he made something of himself, which he could never do on a railroad.

"At least," he ended, "I have one son who will do as I wish."

But George, the mild, stated flatly that he would study law. No medicine chest for him. This should have placated the doctor. But no, indeed! George should and must obey. Expostulations were useless. "As pigheaded and stubborn as your fool brother," characterized the doctor, heatedly.

Jerry wrote to George: "Stick! If the old man won't help you, I will!" And George stuck.

Regularly Jerry wrote to Mother and to George. His letters were highly elating, though they sounded flat, as the doctor heard bits carelessly let out, for he made it known that he never wanted to hear anything about his "fool son" of his. Jerry drifted around. Now a fireman, now a brakeman, now on construction work, and so on. The doctor raged. His judgment was being confirmed every day. A good-for-nothing son who couldn't even stick to one thing long enough to become a petty boss. And George would never be anything but a fuddy-duddy, running around collecting bills.

But George said nothing. Was he spineless? the doctor wondered. Mother interceded for her sons. She reminded the doctor of a time when patients were "scarce as hens' teeth."

"Times change," the doctor said testily. "Nowadays any young man with an ounce of gumption can be successful from the start."

"Even so," returned Mother, "there can be but one president to a railroad, and only so many Supreme Court judges.

"I won't argue with you," he snapped, picking up his case. "I have calls to make," and he jammed on his hat and slammed the door behind him like an unruly youngster.

There came a letter that filled Mother and George with glee; as the reading progressed they grew uncomfortable. "But do you suppose father will lend Jerry $25?" asked George.

"You don't know your father as I do," said Mother. "He will rave terribly for awhile, and then he'll send a hundred if Jerry wants it." She repressed a smile.

Mother was right. The doctor did "rave." Wasn't he the same as supporting one worthless son now? And Jerry had married and got a baby besides a wife. Of all the idiotic things to do. But he sent the money.

George began to gain a reputation. He was winning his cases, and before the doctor realized it, George's name began to be mentioned as a rising young lawyer.

Jerry wrote: "Are you digging into railroad law, as I suggested?" And George replied: "Everything I can get my hands on."

Then Jerry wired from the West "Have a new job on thd L. T. Riding a good deal. Business calls me East. Bringing family to see you. Arrive Tuesday, 3:30 p. m."

Fireworks followed. What did Jerry want to send expensive telegrams for? Here he had been away from home ten years, and hadn't got to amount to anything. Well, let him come! He (the doctor) was too busy to go to the station. Notwithstanding these preliminaries, he went with Mother and George to meet the 3:30. There was no Jerry. A private car from some distant road was on the sidetrack, causing a stir among the folks who always met the trains. Then the doctor found his hand clasped firmly and a voice strangely familiar, greeting him. Could this be Jerry, so well-dressed, and looking so prosperous?

With an arm around his mother and another about his father, Jerry said: "Come, Dad, your grandson, Jerry, 3d, and daughter are waiting."

The doctor found himself impelled towards the private car by all his family, where a smiling young woman with a cooing baby was watching for them.

The doctor was dazed. How happened Jerry in all this style?

"This is the car I have on my new job." Jerry explained.

"But what is your new job?" the doctor asked—stupidly, he thought, afterwards.

"'There's only one president to a railroad,'" quoted Jerry, twinkling at Mother. The doctor glanced at her. She appeared to be enjoying a secret. So did George, and Jerry's wife.

The doctor drew out his spectacles and polished them in his most professional manner.

"If I have diagnosed correctly," he said with dignity, "I have been honored by my entire family."

Everybody laughed.

"Right, father," said Jerry. At this juncture a shiny new limousine appeared, driven by a smart chauffeur. "And this," Jerry continued, "is your car, father. Interest on the money you loaned me a while ago. Another thing. There's a chance for an ambitious young attorney on the L. T., and as George has been digging for just such a place ever since he left college, I think he had better have it."

Emotion momentarily overmastered the doctor. "Sons," he said, tremulously, when he could speak, forgive an old crank, will you?" He bent over Jerry, 3rd, who was softly cooing to his grandmother. "Old fellow," said he, "be a hod carrier if you like, and if your father tries any of this 'training up a child' business on you, just let me know."

PAYING THE PIPER

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

"He who would dance must pay the piper." Either in siller or scones or usquebaugh.

For a simple reel or contra-dance the piper's fee may often be small and easily paid.

The more complicated the figure and the more involved and difficult the music, the more it costs. There are dances so tangled and technical that the music for them seems to some of us to cost more than the dance itself is worth.

When we farmers go to market we have to dance the figure which the mysterious and elusive Market-Master sets for us, to the tune he plays.

When the young man sets out in so-called business for himself, he speedily finds that he must keep in step with other business or lose his place in the parade.

When the newly married couple attempt to make for themselves that most wonderful and Edenic refuge called "a home," they learn that they can't even buy the front-door knob without paying from six to sixteen fees to from six to sixteen pipers who have played the tunes to which that simple piece of hardware was wrought. When it comes to carpets and chairs and curtains and groceries and gimcracks they soon discover that they've got to "scratch gravel" as they never did before, just to pay the pipers who seem to surround them on all sides as well as above and below.

There was once a generation which was likened to "children sitting in the market-place and calling to their fellows and saying 'We have piped unto you and ye have not danced?'" This present generation might be more accurately likened to an array of greedy-eyed and harpy-handed hurdy-gurdyists sitting all over the market-place and saying: "Want to dance, do ye? Then pay up or never a note shall you get out of us!"

The more complicated our civilization becomes, the bigger the swarm of would-be pipers it develops, and the higher grow their rates for music. Solomon's famous horse-leech had two daughters, crying: "Give, give." Our modern civilization is the mother of uncounted and uncountable horse-leeches, who seldom waste breath in asking you to give, since they find it simpler and more satisfying to fasten on every exposed surface without so much as saying "By your leave."

The economists,—that is, the professionals and highbrows,—tell us that our whole business fabric is built on credit. The idea of a "cash" world where people bought what they could afford and paid money down for it, has been "outgrown," we are taught. Certainly most people appear to find it easier to say "Charge it," than they do to ask "How much?" and pay on the spot.

There is also no doubt that this system tends to ultimate profit of sellers. Else they would not follow it.

Did you ever stop to think, Mr. and Mrs. Buyer, how much you were paying this particular credit piper for his tunes? Did you ever reflect upon the relation your own pecuniary interest bears to his piping?

Certain recently reported findings of the state housing commission of New York give an extraordinary vivid illumination upon this question. That commission is interested solely in the housing problem. That means to three-quarters of the city and perhaps half the rural population the rent question.

It is evident, at the outset, that the cost of housing, i. e. of rent, is fundamental in modern life. We simply must have houses to live in. They are the first essentials. Only a minority can afford to buy or build their own. The majority must rent. This rent charge has a first claim on all earnings. According to figures which I can't find at this moment, but which I remember reading not long since, the average family's rent charge takes a bigger percentage of the family's income than any other single item. It is, therefore, not only important in itself but serviceable as a sort of yardstick wherewith to measure other outgoes.

I've been glancing over the advertisements of New York city apartments in the New York papers for quite a while, just to get a line on rentals in that village. The very lowest I recall seeing was $1,200 a year for a three-room apartment with "kitchenette." I suppose the other rooms were "parlorettes" and diningettes" and "bed-roomettes." It may also, I infer, be assured that there was a "bath-roomette" and a "closette" or two; perhaps also a "hallette" both doors of which you had to open before you could stand, edgewise, in it.

Well, assuming that Mr. and Mrs. New Yorker had to be content with this cubby-hole existence, they paid $100 a month rent for it. Just where does that $100 go? Probably nine out of ten renters assume that it goes to the landlord in full. So it does, as far as they are concerned. But where does it go, eventually? How much of it does the said landlord keep for his very 'own' as Betty would say, and how much does he have to pass on to somebody else? That's what the state housing commission has been investigating.

They find that, on the average, taking the state as a whole, $20 of that month's $100 go to janitors and water boards and carpenters and paperers, etc., for maintenance; $10 go for taxes, state, school and so on; $16 for "amortization," and $54 for interest on the money the landlord has borrowed to build the house.

That last item is the significant one. Out of the $100 a month which the tenant pays, and the ratio is the same whether he pays more or less, only $46 go for real rent. The other $54 go for interest on the owner's mortgages. Ever the $16 which is set down to "amortization" doesn't all go into the ostensible landlord's pocket. In order to maintain his credit and insure his continued ability to borrow, he must use a considerable part of it towards paying off the principal of his debt.

Now, I recognize just as clearly as you do the utter futility of critising the credit system. Common sense doesn't enter into the question. There is no "rule of reason" irrevocable which is capable of governing the situation. But you and I being fairly intelligent beings, after all, it won't do us any hurt to brush away the smoke of camouflage behind which the credit system works and see just what it is, what it does and,—more to the point,—what it costs.

This matter of rents is only one of the phases of its action. The same principle works in all. The exact proportion which we pay to the credit piper for his music may vary somewhat, may be a little more or a little less. The fact remains that practically all business as at present conducted is based on credit, not on cash. Its foundation is the ability to borrow, not the ability to pay money down.

And interest must be paid on every borrowed dollar. Does the borrower life. He passes the charge right on to his customers, whether he be landlord or manufacturer or dealer or producer. Mr. and Mrs. Consumer not only pay the full legitimate price for their housing and their food and their clothing and their tobacco and their chewing gum, they also pay every last red cent of the interest which the landlord and the grocer and the clothier and the tobacconist and the gum-maker have to find for the people they have borrowed their "capital" from.

Now, don't understand me as startling any attempted crusade against this costly credit system. I not only recognize, as I have already said, the utter futility of such a crusade, I also recognize the many conveniences of credit. If it hadn't met and, after some fashion, satisfied a popular call, it would never have attained the sovereignty it now wields. It tides over many emergencies. It smooths a good many rough spots in the hard road of life. It unquestionably gives many of us more time and opportunity to dance than we should otherwise have.

The only questions are whether we're really willing to pay the piper. Whether we can actually afford it. Whether, after mature and intelligent reflection, we prefer the broad and easy highway to the steep and rugged trail.

If that is our determination and the result of our best judgment, there's nothing more to be said.

Except this:

That, having so chosen, it is simply babyish and contemptible evasion of responsibility to whimper over the piper's fee.

My own belief is that nine tenths of the people who kick and squall over the "high cost of living" never give, never have given, and never will give ten minutes' sober thought as to the real underlying causes of that high cost. They simply know that, if they're able to get $100 together, it has to go right out for rent or sugar or shoes or the like. That's as far as they follow it, just to the next fellow's hand. They assume that he pockets or banks it for his own, never realizing that he has to split it at least 54 to 46 with the men higher up or farther back, from whom he has borrowed his so-called "capital."

Now I'll leave it to you if that slap-dash, hit-or-miss, take-it-easy way of doing things is creditable to being having brains and, presumably, the capacity to use them?

While we must admit that those who want to dance should have liberty to do so,—always provided they pay the piper without grouching,—doesn't it seem as if the minority who would rather work an pay as they go ought to have equal liberty, without being fined a considerable part of their earnings to help pay a piper whose services they have not sought?

We farmers complain because we have to sell our products for half or a quarter of what Mr. and Mrs. Consumer finally pay for them. But the whole array of middlemen in between us have to pay big interest on their borrowed working capital. How can we expect them to pay us big prices, too? No man's money can be in two places at the same time, or go in opposite directions at the same instant. It isn't they, individually, who are responsible, but the system.

All this sort of talk may be "academic," to use a word often employed as meaning "of no practical effect."

Nevertheless, it is imperative with some of us to get down to fundamentals, now and then, even if they don't have any bearing on today's dinner or tonight's lodging.

Even if we don't ourselves dance, our curiosity might lead us to ask why we should be compelled to help pay the other fellows' piper.

THE FARMER.

RED POPPIES

Though violets grow in every glade
And fair and tall the lily stands,
Come, buy our martial poppies, made
By trembling, war-enfeebled hands!
Though sweet the golden cups that spill
The morning dew and call the bees,
What flower of garden, field or hill,
Can show as dear a hue as these?

Theirs is the hue that stained the snow
of Valley Forge and Brandywine,
That tinged Catawba's turbid flow
And Saratoga's hills of pine.
That plashed the trail where Morgan led,
The path of those who charged with Wayne,
The dauntless wreck of Flamborough Head,
The sun-dried grass of Monmouth Plain;
It dyed the spot where Lawrence fell,
Where Perry held the shattered deck,
The Alamo's white citadel
And glory-crowned Chapultepec.
That hue has hallowed lowland fen
And southland moss and norland ice—
The hue of riven hearts of men
The hue of gallant sacrifice.

You boast of them that faced our foes
Long since—and shall you grudge to pay
Your tithe of what we owe to those
Who faced our foes but yesterday?
The blood they gave has equal claims
Or when or where they stanchly stood—
By Marne, or Aisne, or Charles or James,
At Lexington, or Belleau Wood.
The toil, the grief, the pain were theirs.
The ease, the joy, the gain are ours.
Who stints and hoards? Who gladly shares?
Come, buy our poppies, buy our flowers!

SHOWING PARKING FACILITIES ADJACENT TO NORWICH BUSINESS CENTER

NORWICH CAN PARK ABOUT 1,000 CARS ADJACENT TO FRANKLIN SQ.

In making a study of the parking situation in Norwich by the Chamber of Commerce through its parking committee, and in order to show the buying public at home and abroad that Norwich has good parking facilities, a map has been prepared of the business section taking Franklin Square as the center and indicating the streets within half a mile of the square showing the parking regulations.

The accompanying map shows the parking time limits on the various streets. Wherever the figure 40 appears, the parking limit is 40 minutes; "No" means that parking is prohibited and "5 hrs." indicates that time as the parking limit. It is figured that there are parking accommodations for close to 1,000 cars within half a mile of Franklin Square, this including the battle ground on the East Side which has been offered by Postmaster C. K. Bailey.

The map plainly indicates that Norwich has far better parking facilities than the average city. It is commonly known that no city today can give parking accommodations to any considerable number of cars in the business section, and what is true of other cities, is true of Norwich, but the fact remains that there are a number of streets within a half mile of Franklin Square where five hour parking is permissible. In fact but a comparatively small area has 40 minute parking and a still smaller area for no parking.

One has but to stand on Main street on a Saturday evening to realize the thousands of cars that come and go in the course of a few hours, often causing a line of waiting automobiles which are held up for several minutes. One can further realize that it is an impossible thing to accommodate so many cars in a given restricted area and so it has occurred to the Chamber of Commerce that a map should be prepared that would indicate the streets surrounding the business section where five hour parking is permissible.

In addition to this, Postmaster Casper K. Bailey, has offered the free use of the battle-grounds for parking purposes for one year which will be a tremendous asset in taking care of from 300 to 500 cars. This action on the part of the postmaster is most commendable and will provide a large parking space within a half mile of Franklin Square.

The committee has also given consideration to the question of the development of Hollyhock Island, otherwise known as the city dump, near the Central Vermont Railroad station and which contains approximately eight acres. It is suggested that this area be fitted up for a large athletic field for the young men who work in the factories and stores for having baseball, football and other sports. Around the outskirts of this athletic field, it is estimated that between 600 and 800 cars could be parked. Some expense would be attached to the development of Hollyhock Island for this purpose, and also for rebuilding Falls avenue and the installation of electric lights. There is also every reason to hope that the New Haven railroad will soon take action on again opening the space at the station for parking purposes. The railroad will either have charge of this space through some employees, or lease it to some private individual and a nominal charge for parking, the same as exists in Hartford and other cities, will be made for the privilege. The map clearly indicates that there is a great deal of available parking space adjacent to the business center and the car owners will gradually have to accustom themselves, the same as in other cities, to parking their cars at some distance from the business center. This distance in Norwich is comparatively short compared with that in other cities.

The chamber is indebted to its parking committee for the preparation of this map and the study made of the parking situation. The chairman of the committee is Roy D. Judd, who was ably assisted by Lewis M. Young in the preparation of the map. The other members are: A. Agranovitch, William A. Anderson, George Brenn, F. S. Crowell, J. A. Desmond, L. Hawkins, R. Henschel, H. Robinson, J. H. Shannon, N. E. Smith, W. L. Stearns, P. F. Sweeney, W. S. Williams. It is clearly evident that Norwich, the trading and business center of eastern Connecticut, has good ample parking areas convenient to its business center. In addition to this there are commercial garages in the central part of the city which are capable of taking care of several hundred cars at a nominal cost.

Madame Le Brun

Mme. Le Brun was a French painter who gained considerable reputation in Paris. Her paintings, historical pieces as well as portraits, were exhibited in the Louvre. Mme. de Genlis speaks of the talents of Mme. Le Brun with much warmth of praise, and complains that the men "sought to depreciate her paintings because she was a woman."—Chicago Journal.

The Earnest Man

The earnest men are so few in the world that their very earnestness becomes at once the badge of their nobility; and, as men in a crowd instinctively make room for one who seems eager to force his way through it, so mankind everywhere open their ranks to one who pushes zealously toward some object lying beyond them.—Dwight.

Carbonated Drinks Popular

Carbonated drinks, which were originated in 1807, in this country, have attained immense popularity here. More than 8,000,000,000 bottles are consumed yearly, according to the United States Department of Commerce figures.

Keep Goal in Sight

Let a man but have an aim, a purpose, and opportunities to attain his end shall start forth like buds at the kiss of spring.—Bishop Spalding.

Caledonian Art

At pottery the Caledonians could not compare with the Romans, since the potter's wheel seems to have been unknown amongst them. But they almost excelled the "masters of the world" in their ornaments. The mountains yielded their craftsmen gold, silver, bronze, amber, rubies and rock crystals such as agate, jasper and cairngorms and jet. From these they made ornaments and weapons.

Whippers Rout Hoppers

The grasshopper pest became so serious in parts of Arkansas at one time that negro laborers with whips were hired to whip out the grasshoppers in the cotton fields. H. K. Thatcher of the State Agricultural college says the plan was an astonishing success, as the hoppers beat a hasty retreat before the whippers.

Determination Wins

Success has no secrets. Her voice is forever ringing through the market place and crying in the wilderness, and the burden of her cry is the one word—Will. This is the declaration of every man and woman who has succeeded.—Grit.

Has Powerful "Drill"

The pholad, a small sea animal kin to the oyster, can bore holes through stone.

Originally "Jaws' Harp"

The name, Jew's harp, is probably a corruption of the original name of this simple musical instrument, jaws' harp, so called because when in use it is held between the jaws. A musician named Charles Eulenstein produced remarkable effects with Jews' harps at the Royal institute, London, on February 15, 1828.

Let Steam Escape

After filling a rubber water bottle with hot water always press the sides before putting in the stopper. This expels the steam, and there is little danger of the seams coming undone, no matter how hot the water may be.

No Real Itch for Office

If we studied our own feelings about holding office, most of us would have a deep sympathy for those who capably serve us in that way. The majority of men wouldn't have an office, under any circumstances.—Exchange.

Force, force, everywhere force! We ourselves a mysterious force in the center of that. There is not a leaf rotting in the highway but has force in it; how else could it rot?—Thomas Carlyle.

Buy Coffins in Advance

United States authorities recently admitted into the country as personal property a very handsome coffin brought here by a woman from Europe who, fearing death while here, wanted to be buried in a casket of her own choosing. This fact caused undertakers to reveal the fact that hundreds of eccentric persons, mostly women, had picked out their coffins in advance and they were stored awaiting call. Some are of ivory, some of cast iron and others of rarest timbers.

As the Boy Saw It

Little Carl was asked if he would rather have a little sister or a little brother. He asked for a dog. "You can't have one," said his father. "Dogs cost money, and the money must go for the baby." A few days later a little brother was presented to Carl. "Look at him," he said to his grandmother, "all our money wasted on that!"

CURRENT BRINGS FRIGID WATRS TO TROPIC COAST

The Humboldt, or Peruvian, Current which has bathed the tropical desert coast of Peru with icy waters and so has given rise to numerous climatic paradoxes, is reported to be changing its course, working havoc to animal life. A steamer captain recently passing up the coast reports that he encountered thousands of dead birds and fish in the sea. Other reports state that regions ruinless for years are having heavy rains and that rivers have formed almost over night in the one-time parched desert.

A bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society quotes a communication to The Society from R. E. Coker telling how Peru's cold current has shaped conditions along the coast.

"The Humboldt Current, supplanted no doubt by the upturning of cold bottom waters, maintains its steady course for thousands of miles, from icy Antarctic latitudes to the Equator," says the bulletin. "Thus it is that tropical shores are bathed by cold ocean waters, and, with this fundamental contrast, the stage is set for an array of phenomena not fully paralleled in any other part of the world.

"Only two events in that interesting series command our present attention. These are the absence of rainfall and the consequent accumulation, through centuries untold, of a mine of wealth which might have been dissipated by a few seasons of rain.

"Guano, it will be understood, is primarily the deposit of fish-eating birds, into which may be mixed and incorporated—in greater or less proportion—a variety of other substances, such as the eggs and bodies of birds and the deposits and the bodies of seallons. It may be found mixed with gravel and sand in very small proportion or sometimes to an extent rendering it unprofitable to extract.

"'Peruvian guano' is practically synonymous with nitrogenous guano and has long been recognized as the best nitrogenous fertilizer—that is, as a fertilizer of generally high nitrogen value in which the nitrogen compounds are found in a condition most readily assimilable by our plants.

"Consequently a peculiar interest attaches to birds of the Peruvian islands, which have long served to aid the world's agriculture. They are the numerous sea-fowl of the coast, which find their abundant food in the ocean and make their nests upon the islands or points of shore.

"The peculiar climatic conditions previously mentioned offer the proper environmental conditions for the preservation of the product. The primary requisite for abundant bird life is the existence of a plentiful food supply, and this is found in the schools of small fish, called anchobetas, that swarm in the Peruvian Current. These 'shoals' of fish, acres in extent, are often pursued in the water by bonitoes and other large fish, while meset from the air by thousands of birds.

"Billions of pounds of fish must be consumed each year by the birds, besides the incalculable quantity devoured by other fishes; but the fecundity of the anchobetas is such that their numbers are still maintained. At times great areas of the sea are made red by myriads of small, brightly colored shrimplike crustacea; and these, too, play a part of importance as food for the fishes and birds.

"Not all of the birds are of equal importance from the commercial point of view. Indeed, three species virtually support the guano industry at the present time—the white-breast cormorant (guanay), the big gray pelican, and the white-head gannet."

Record for Bad English

The record for bad English is still held by a man who was not long ago a governor of one of our large states. He performed the unusual feat of making three grammatical errors in a sentence composed of two words: "Them's them."—Scribner's Magazine.

Limburger Cheese

The unpleasant odor of Limburger cheese is due to specific fermentations induced during ripening. This cheese is made from sweet milk, the curd being formed into cakes about five inches square and two inches thick and not pressed. The main cause of the putrefactive fermentation is the extremely moist condition in which it is kept.

Work That Counts

My friend, all speech and humor are short-lived, foolish, untrue. Genuine work done, what thou workest faithfully, that is eternal! Take courage, then; raise the arm, strike home, and, that right lustily; the citadel of hope must yield to noble desire, this second by noble effort.—Thomas Carlyle.

Liberty

The liberty of a people consists in being governed by laws which they have made themselves, under whatsoever form it be of government; the liberty of a private man is being master of his own time and actions, as far as may consist with the laws of God, and of his country.—Cowley.

Care of Metal Utensils

In order to save constantly using polishers on metals to keep them bright and spotless it is a good idea to wipe the metals with a flannel containing vaseline after the first polishing treatment, after which they can be gone over again frequently in the same way.

Apples Oddly Colored

Apple trees planted near a perpendicular rock cliff at Cashmere, Wash., produced apples that were colored on one side only because the sun and light could not reach the side next to the cliff. The location was chosen so that the roots might find perpetual moisture at the foot of the cliff.

OILS FEATURED MARKET

New York, May 21—(A. P.)—Stock prices were carried to higher ground in another two million share session. Switching of chief speculative interest from the public utilities, several of which broke sharply on profit taking, to othe oils, was one of the outstanding features of the day's trading. Two score issues mounted to new 1925 high levels.

Heavy accumulation of the oil shares was based on a further extention of crude oil price advances, reports of heavily increased gasoline consumption and rumors of increased dividends, one of which materialized after the market closed when directors of the Pacific Oil company increased the annual rate from $2 to $3. Sinclair preferred advanced 3 1-2 points to 88; California Petroleum preferred moved up 2 3-8 to 119 7-8 and Texas company climbed 2 to 47 3-8, while net gains of a point or two were recorded by Pacific, Pan-American, Sinclair common, Barnsdall A, Atlantic Refining, Mid-Continent, Skelly and Tidewater.

Utah securities broke from 153 to 144 on profit taking and then rallied to 146 where it was off 6 1-4 points on the day. Virginia Railway and Power slumped 5 1-2 points to 109 1-2. Losses of a point or two were recorded by Electric Power and Light certificates, Federal Light and Traction (new stock) and General Electric. Steady accumulation took place, however, in West Penn Power, which was run up to a record top at 145 and then sagged to 141 for a net gain of 5 1-2 points on the day.

Local gas stocks showed independent strength. Brooklyn Union Gas jumped more than 3 points to 91 3-8; Consolidated Gas moved up 2 points to 86 and Public Service of New Jersey touched 74, all new peak prices for the year.

Standard Industrials were again in good demand. United States Steel common crossed 120 to a new high on the curent movement and then fell back to 119 3-8, off 3-8 on the day. American Can closed fractionally higher at 191 1-8 and Baldwin showed a net gain of 1 1-2 at 115 3-4 after selling as high as 117 1-4.

International Paper crossed 63 to the highest price in about three years on the announcement that a subsidiary company had been formed to develop the water power properties. National distillers products was in brisk demand on reports that current business was running substantially ahead of last year, the stock advancing 2 3-4 points to a new 1925 top at 35 5-8. Ward Baking A jumped 11 1-2 points to ona new maximum at 152 and then eased to 150.

Tobaccos, coppers and chemicals ruled moderately higher. Davison Chemical climbing more than 3 points to 39.

Good buying also was noted in Associated Dry Goods, May Department stores and United Drug.

Rails continued comparatively quiet with the so-called "merger issues" making the best showing, particularly Pittsburgh and West Virginia and Wheeling and Lake Erie. Frisco common fell back more than two points to 80 3-4 in reflection of speculative disappointment over the failure of the directors to increase the dividend.

Call money ruled at 3 3-4 per cent. all day. Time money and Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Profit taking by speculators brought about a moderate reaction in sterling, but other foreign exchange rates held firm.

BUSINESS FORCES THREE STORES IN NEW LONDON TO CLOSE THURSDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, May 21.—Three New London stores were forced out of business today because of financial difficulties. Following the failure of creditors to collect their bills, a deputy sheriff placed attachments on the trio of stores. The places to suspend business are the Brooks flower store, 34 Main street, in business but a few months; the New London Candy company, Blinman street, and the Army & Navy Store, Bank street.

Stephen Bosky, 16, formerly residing at 210 North Bank street, who was arrested early yesterday morning by the police of Stamford and who, it was believed, was implicated in the commission of several petty burglaries in in that city, was turned over to Sergeant Patrick Murphy of the New London department this morning, as nothing criminal could be attached to the boy's acts in Stamford. Bosky was brought back to New London this noon and will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning charged with theft. Two weeks ago, Bosky, a former inmate of the state reform school at Meriden, was allowed to share the room of Walter Kurpski, of North Bank street, and while the latter slept Bosky arose and stealing $154, which he found in Kurpski's clothes, made good his escape.

The condition of Mrs. John Bowen, 81, of East Lyme, who was knocked down and run over by an automobile of the Lyceum Taxi service operated by Harry Gridley, 313 Bank street, late yesterday, is reported as resting comfortably at Lawrence-Memorial hospital today. It will be some time, however, before Mrs. Bowen's condition will permit her being transferred to her home.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today caused the operator's license of Louis Ramistella, 703 Bank street, to be suspended. The operator was recently fined $25 and costs in the police court of the charge of reckless driving.

Two automobile law violators were before Judge Prince in the police court this morning and each were punished for recklessness with a fine. James O'Conner, a youth of 19, was fined $50 for running a car about the city so recklessly that Policeman Michael Dorsey who arrested him, had an idea that the fellow was intoxicated. O'Conner apparently unconcerned about the predicament in which he found himself, but he realizes now that he was in good luck when he escaped as he did. Benjamin Stoineck, a young man from Brooklyn paid a fine of $10 for operating a car upon which the brakes were defective. He was with his mother when his car hit another machine and damaged a mudguard because the brakes on the Stoineck car did not hold. Stoineck declared that he had examined the brakes before he started on his journey and found them to be in good condition. His fine was lightened because of the statements he made.

James McArdle, a stranger in the city was called to answer for being intoxicated. He was on North Bank street and there was so dizzy that he fell down a stairway. He was seen by Policeman Riordan and was locked up. McArdle claimed he was on the way to Fort Wright, where he was to work. He was allowed to get out of town on the boat that left for the island at 10.30 mighty glad to have that chance.

Members of the Hagenbeck and Wallace circus company were entertained at the Elks club, Wednesday evening, after the performance.

An automobile, owned and driven by Floyd E. Whipple, of Millstone and one of the trucks of the White Rose Bread company, operated by Leroy Getchell, 361 Broad street, were in collision this afternoon at the corner of Garfield and Jefferson avenues. Both cars were damaged.

A woman, whose identity has not been established, appeared at a Williams street residence last night and requested lodging. Because of the peculiar acts of the woman, the request was refused and the police were notified. Patrolman Patrick Sheehan located the womap on Bayonet street and escorted her to the police station, where she was turned over to Policewoman Jane Cassidy. The woman was given sleeping accommodations for the night at the Y. W. C. A., but during the night and this morning her actions were such as to indicate strongly that she is of unsound mentality. The stranger was attended by the city physician who ordered her committed to the Norwich state hospital for observation.

An automobile owned by Julian Burke, 44 Connecticut avenue, was stolen from the yard of the owner late last night or early this morning, but was later recovered. Burke drove the machine to the yard about 11 o'clock and when he arose this forenoon about 7.30 he discovered the machine missing. A report of the theft of the car was made to the police and this afternoon the motorcycle officer received information that a Hudson touring car had been parked in a vacant lot on Bank street, close to the city line. Going to the lot the officer identified the machine as that of Burke's and operated it to the police station, where it was later turned over to Burke.

Three places received the attention of thieves last night and because of the location of the places entered, together with the hour which admission was gained and the fact that the Hagenback-Wallace circus was exhibiting in this city, it is believed that the crooks were a gang that is following the show from city to city and attempting burglary while residents are at the circus grounds. The thieves obtained little loot, for only in one house were they successful in obtaining plunder. All three places are located within a comparatively short distance from where the circus exhibited.

The breaks were perpetrated during the absence of members of the household. At the home of William Savard, 373 Ocean avenue, entrance was gained by forcing a rear window. The thieves made a hasty search of the house and were rewarded by finding $7 in a dresser. Nothing but the money was taken.

The second house to receive the attention of the thieves was the residence of Howard L. Hetherington, 47 Perry street, and but a short distance from the Savard house. The crooks found a rear window open, they climbed through and instituted a search for plunder, but did not find it.

The third place to be entered was the residence of Dr. J. Otis Miner, 108 Ocean avenue. Entrance to this place also gained by means of an open window. The crooks did not find any one there and it is believed that were at work searching for valuables for when Dr. Miner and his family entered the house shortly after 10 o'clock they heard a strange noise as though some one was leaving the place.

Announcement is made of the wedding on the 12th inst. of George Findley and Mrs. Isabel Dickinson, both of this city. The marriage was performed by Rev. Chester H. Howe, pastor of the First Baptist church.

Mrs. Russell Putnam and infant daughter, of 67 Squire street, were patients dismissed at Home Memorial hospital today.

Mrs. Reubin Austin and infant son, of Waterford; Mrs. John W. Marts and infant son, 90 Thames street, and Patsy Volpe, Groton, patients at Lawrence hospital were discharged today.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Frances Worthing Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Thompson, of Morristown, N. J., to William H. Douglas, of this city. Mr. Douglas is a son of Mrs. Myra F. Douglass, Fair Harbor place, and at present is pursuing studies at the American academy, Rome.

Michael Scira, of 655 Bank street, complained to the police late this afternoon that his automobile had been taken without his permission and requested that he be given aid in locating the car. Scira stated that he left the machine parked on Blinman street, between Colt and Brewer streets and when he returned for it he discovered the car gone. The machine is a Hudson touring type.

Another section of the municipal wharf was discovered to be in a dangerous condition today when some of the planks were detected having decayed. The danger spot was reported to the highway department.

Residents of New London, two women, who have interested themselves in the case of the Hartford young woman, colored, who claims to be the mother of a white baby of which a New London man is the father, have visited the alleged father within a day or two and have attempted to induce the man to do something for the support of the child, which is now being cared for by the Children's Aid society, Hartford. The women are of the opinion that the man will contribute, if, indeed he does not agree to pay for the entire support of the infant, rather than bring about an exposure of the case by his failing to provide support for the child. This, the women claim, will be what is sure to happen in the event of the man not agreeing to furnish funds for the keep of the child.

City Manager William A. Holt has not prepared such recommendations that he will submit to the city council for approval in connection with the report of the special committee of the city council that conducted the long-drawn-out investigation to determine the efficiency of the police department, but is still giving the matter consideration. It is highly possible that the recommendations will be made next Monday night and it is hinted that these recommendations will embody simply a more modern set of rules and regulations for the members of the department to be governed by than those at present in force. The present regulations were prepared and put into use about a score of years ago, so that it is only natural that some of the rules and regulations are obsolete and can well be improved upon. It is stated that the city manager has no intention of recommending the dismissal, demotion or transfer to the veteran reserve of any member of the department. Of course, there may be an appointment to the office of lieutenant, a vacancy that has existed since last October, and which office Sergeant James D. Gaffney has been filling with ability since. It is anticipated that that officer will receive the appointment and with the appointment being made it will necessarily become mandatory for the appointment of another sergeant. What officer will receive that second appointment is at this time not known.

An ordinance provides that there shall be a supernumerary list of police officers to the number of 12, but since the ordinance was created there has never been more than six such officers. That City Manager Holt intends to have the necessary number of emergency officers, as called for by the charter, appears to be certain, for it has become known that within a few weeks seventeen applicants for appointment have presented themselves before City Physician George P. Cheney and have taken physical examinations. When the applicants will be called upon to take the mental examination it has not been determined but it is believed that such a procedure will follow within a comparatively short time. At present there are four supernumerary officers and they are all performing regular duty, and will continue to do so indefinitely. There is one vacancy to the regular list, that resulting from the retirement Monday of Patrolman Timothy T. Sullivan, whose health has been impaired many months. The first officer in rank of seniority is Supernumerary Officer Dennis Murphy.

The two and one-half story wooden structure, 202-206 Bank street, owned by the F. H. & A. H. Chappell company, was sold yesterday to Daniel E. and James P. Moran. The price paid was $15,000. The property consists of two stores on the ground floor, with living apartments on the upper floors. The new owners of the building do not plan making any alterations to the structure at present and will continue to rent the place for commercial and residential purposes.

The deed transferring the vacant lot next north of the police station, North Bank street, from the estate of Walter R. Perry to the Savings Bank of New London, was received for record at the office of the city clerk yesterday. The price paid was $7,000.

A still alarm was received at fire headquarters early last evening for a supposed blaze at the corner of Water and Atlantic street, but when Chief Rose and the Nameaug Engine company arrived there no fire was found nor no one was located who could give any information as to the person who sent in the alarm.

MEANT TO SMASH WINDOW TO GET SHELTER AND FOOD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 21—Claiming that he was hungry and out of work, Karl Winter, who stated that his home is in Texas, was arrested this afternoon by Patrolman Edward Daniels when Winter threatened to smash a plate glass window in order to be sent to jail and there obtain a place to sleep and three meals a day. Winter was in the vicinity of Bank street and Montauk avenue about 4 o'clock and his actions attracted the attention of Patrolman Daniels. Finally Winter was observed to hunt about the gutter of Montauk avenue and seen to pick up a fair-sized stone. He then approached one of the stores in that vicinity and to a bystander Winter declared his intension of smashing one of the windows. This information was given to Patrolman Daniels and the latter questioned Winter. The latter admitted his intention and declared he was being driven to desperation because of hunger and that he had no funds with which to purchase food. Winter was taken into custody and turned over to Sergeant Samuel Hick, who locked Winter up and a short time afterwards he was furnished with a substantial meal. This evening Richard W. Mansfield, superintendent of the B. P. Learned mission took charge of Winter and will provide him with a place to sleep and see to it that he obtains plenty to eat, until such time as the unfortunate man obtains employment.

HARTFORD DRIVER ARRESTED—SPEEDED 55 MILES AN HOUR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 21—Joseph Bernstein, 48, Loomis street, Hartford, was taken into custody tonight charged with reckless driving and upon complaint of Chief Petty Officer Holden, stationed at the submarine base. He was released upon providing a surety on his bond of $50 for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning.

Bernstein and three companions were en route from Hartford to New London and when on the state highway but a few miles from the city, Holden claims that Bernstein's car overtook him and was traveling at an estimated rate of speed of 55 miles an hour. Bernstein's car, according to Holden, nearly precipitated a collision between Holden's car and a machine traveling in the opposite direction by Bernstein's car cutting in on Holden's machine in the latter's endeavor to pass. Holden followed the Bernstein car into the city and claims that even when the latter's machine was being driven through Broad and State streets it was being operated at a speed of 35 miles an hour. When Bernstein reached Green street, the car was guided through that thoroughfare and when it came to a stop near Golden street, Holden operated his car in such a manner as to block the former car leaving the curb. Holden then sought Patrolman David Nagle, who was nearby and lodging complaint against Bernstein, the latter was arrested. Bernstein denied that he was driving at a rate of speed in excess of 25 miles an hour.

OF YESTERDAY IN LEGISLATURE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, May 21—A calendar of 34 matters was ready for action by the house today. A large number of bills has been introduced during the session providing for the purchase of lands for state parks, among them being that at Fort Shantoc on the Thames. This with all the others has been rejected and the selection of sites has been placed in the hands of the State Park and Forest Commission as provided in the act passed today. The act reads:

The sum of one hundred thousand dollars is appropriated for the acquisition of land for state parks by the state park and forest commission for the fiscal period ending June 30, 1927.

In the bill making appropriations for additions to, alterations and repairs of State Armories, $5,000.00 is allotted to the armory at Norwich, $6,000.00 for Willimantic, and $6,000.00 for Danielson.

The law concerning the taking of smelt provided in the codification of 1923 that a stretched mesh of not less than one and one half inches should be used. In the bill passed today this measurement has been reduced to one and one quarter inches. Other changes are made in the bill.

The bill does not become effective till January 1, 1926.

The act amending the charter of the City of Putnam provides that the salary of the mayor shall be two hundred dollars per annum. The alderman-at-large and each alderman shall receive five dollars for each of the twelve regular meetings of the common council he shall attend each year. The salaries of the city clerk and the treasurer shall be such as may be designated by the common council by ordinance.

The statutes, concerning the military forces of the state are changed in many particulars. It provides for the appointment of an adjutant general with the rank of brigadier general who shall be chief of staff and who shall be a practical military man and at the time of his appointment, shall have had at least five years commissioned service in the Connecticut national guard or the armies of the United States; a quartermaster general with rank of colonel; a surgeon-general, who shall be the senior medical officer of the national guard; an assistant adjutant-general with the rank of colonel, who shall be a practical military man and who, at the time of his appointment, shall have had at least five years' service in the Connecticut national guard or the armies of the United States.

When the House adjourned today, House Leader Alling said that it might be necessary to hold a Friday session next and a Monday session in the closing week. The statuary provision makes the final adjournment obligatory on Wednesday, June 3rd.

The House

The house was called to order at 10:30 by Speaker Darbie and prayer was made by Rev. Edward P. Ayer, the senate chaplain.

A favorable report was made authorizing the town of Windham to issue bonds to the amount of $100,000 for school building purposes. This is to enable the town to meet the requirements of the bill making appropriation for the rebuilding the Model school, that was destroyed by fire recently.

The stream pollution bill came back from the senate with an amendment. Judge Alling moved that the house reconsider and then Mr. Wheeler, the father of the bill, moved that the house concur with the senate and pass the bill as amended. While he did not consider it wise to include the municipalities until the economic waste of the manufacturers had been taken care of he was willing to accept the amendment. Hill, of Shelton, was opposed to the amendment as it made possible the imposition of large expense upon the towns and municipalities of the state. Johnson, of Kent, said it would impose a great expense upon his town as the sewerage of that place emptied into the Housatonic River. He did not think it right to impose this hardship in order to prevent a little pollution.

Sturgess, of Woodbury, spoke in favor of the bill as amended. No one claimed that the bill was perfect, but it was a step in the right direction. The rights of all parties were amply protected. Changes could be made in the future for faults that may develop. Judge Peck, of Bristol, said that if this bill was to be so injurious to the manufacturers of the state it was strange that they had endorsed it instead of bucking it. Lone, of Rocky Hill, moved the previous question and the debate was cleared by Judge Alling. The bill was passed with only four rejective votes.

The house concurred with the senate in approving or rejecting of all matters received from that body.

Norwich Zoning Bill Reported

A favorable report was received from the committee on cities and boroughs on the Norwich zoning bill. It was tabled for calendar and printing.

The manufacturers committee reported favorably on the bill that will allow the town of Manchester to call itself a city and still continue its town form of government.

Mr. Bugbee, of Old Lyme, opposed the bill that provides that a person, hunting or angling shall wear in a prominent place on his person, an identification button. It was as foolish a piece of legislation that he had ever heard of. He did not want to be tagged like a dog. It is an insult to the citizens of the state to pass such a bill. Chairman Wheeler, of the fish and game commitee, said that this measure had the endorsement of the State Association of Fish and Game Clubs. Burrows, of Groton, said that no true sportsman would object wearing the button as he would consider it an honor to show that he had complied with the requirements of the law. Discussion of the bill was largely of a humorous character. To stop it Thornhill, of Brookfield, moved the previous question and the bill was passed.

All matters on the house calendar that were ready for action, thirty in all, were passed.

Lincoln Rape Machine

Representative Allen B. Lincoln of Ashford, a republican, got before the house of representatives a plea for "constructive, not destructive legislation," and in the resolution which he presented severely rebuked the republican state organization for seeking "control of local governments without the consent of such communities."

His resolution read:

Subject: Constructive, not destructive, legislation.

Resolved by This Assembly:

Whereas, the action of the house in passing house bill No. 170, concerning the control of the New Haven board of education by the New Haven board of finance, was in effect a blow at the efficiency of the public school system of New Haven, and subversive of the statutory rights of over thirty thousand school children; and

Whereas, a certain tendency of state political organizations to seek control of local governments without the consent of such communities, is against sound public policy of home rule in local affairs; and

Whereas, the action of this house in passing house bill No. 814 concerning the observance of Sunday, was a blow at the normal and historic use of Sunday, and in effect a blow at religion; and

Whereas, the rejection by this house of senate bill No. 433, an act to strengthen the enforcement of law was a blow at good government in Connecticut, and in effect a refusal to stand by the eighteenth amendment to the federal constitution; and that in the debate on said bill there were expressed attacks on the supreme court of this state which were wholly unwarranted, untrue, and tending to undermine respect for all law;

Therefore be it resolved by this house, That the members of this house should carefully reflect upon the tendency of such legislation as is outlined in the foregoing preamble, to the end that the honor of the state, and the laws of the state and the federal government, shall be duly respected and observed.

The need is for constructive legislation to protect and promote the welfare of Connecticut.

The resolution was ruled out of order as not germaine to any matter before the house and a criticism of legislation passed by the house, after it had been read to the house by Clerk Hickey.

The announcement by Speaker Darbie that the resolution was out of order was applauded. Mr. Lincoln tried to speak on the resolution but was stopped by the speaker, who told him he could appeal from the chair and nothing else at the present moment. Mr. Lincoln appealed and his appeal was seconded by Mr. Russell of Middletown. Mr. Lincoln then made an appeal for personal privilege to address the house. Objection was offered by two members and Mr. Lincoln was not allowed to proceed. The ruling of the speaker was sustained by an almost unanimous vote.

HELP FOR NERVOUS WOMEN

It has often been said that only a woman can understand what nervous women endure. Most cases of nervousness, sleeplessness, mental depression, headaches, backache, fretting and worrying have their origin in some feminine ailment that will readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is a simple remedy made from roots and herbs, which for over forty years has been restoring women of America to health and strength. Merit alone could have stood such a test.

MYSTIC

A special meeting of Mystic fire district was held Monday evening. The recommendations of the public utilities commission giving the Mystic Valley Water company the right to raise the rates was explained and thoroughly discussed. Some expressed their opinions in emphatic language against the exorbitant raise to the consumers when one considers the very poor service given, especially to those living on the hills on either side of the river. Attorney B. H. Hewitt represented Mystic and Judge C. B. Walter of New London, Stonington borough at the Public Utilities hearing sometime ago.

The hydrant service under the new ruling will be $3,600 per year. The decision by the voters was to the district committee to examine the hydrants and that those not really needed be removed and the others tested to see if they are in actual condition to be used in case of fire.

The consumers are hit hard, for the new rates are $10 first faucet, $6 for toilet, $6 for bath or $10 for both, $8 for hose cock, $5 for garage. One thing in the consumers' favor is the recommendation that meters be installed when requested between the present seems much less in proportion than time and 1928. The price for hose cock for a faucet for a hose allowed to run for hours will consume more than a small family would use in days. Some new fire apparatus is to be bought. It was voted to increase the saaaries of all the officers, as follows: Executive committee $100 per year, each clerk $100, chief engineer $75, assitant chief $35, treasurer $50. Salaries formerly paid, executive committee $30, clerks $42, treasurer $30, chief engineer $50, assistant chief $15. It was also voted not to allow the use of the rooms of the B. F. Hoxie Engine company as a voting place or office for the assesors or tax collector of the town of Stonington.

SPEAKS TO LIONS ON ASSETS OF CITY

With President C. Edward Carpenter presiding the weekly meeting of The Norwich Lions club was held Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel. The meeting opened with the singing of America and grace was said by Edwin Hill after which the luncheon was served. Tyler Stanton was song leader for the day and there were group and club songs. Commandant E. W. Wilbur, of the local Salvation Army, was a guest at the meeting and spoke briefly of the loyal and cordial support always given him in his work by the Lions club and similar organizations. He requested the continued cooperation of the club in the Salvation Army drive which is to be held next week.

A talk relative to the Salvation Army financial campaign was given by Max Hanover, in part Mr. Hanover said:

"We are living in a highly organized and ordered society. We have highly organized churches for our religious and spiritual edification. We belong to various clubs and civic bodies which function for the civic betterment of our community. As citizens we obey the laws safeguarding the welfare of society and of every citizen. By guarding, assisting and propagating these modern blessings we are enjoying the happiness of civilized life. But we must not forget that there are those who, owing to outward circumstances, to the misfortune of poverty, or a bad bringing up, over which they had no control, or owing to physical and spiritual incapacity of battling against the evil of drink, fall foul of the laws of God and man.

"For those unfortunates we feel, sometimes justly, contempt and abhorence and we don't care how quickly they go on the road to perdition. Should we not curb our indignation by remembering that our religious, moral and civic beliefs teach us charity and forebearance? What would become of our civilization if we would go on in unselfish indulgence, entirely neglecting the unfortunate sinner and human derelict?

"Our brave Lion, Earl Taggart, will lead the Salvation Army to victory in the coming campaign and by giving our whole hearted and unstinted support to this religious and humanitarian organization, we will prove that we have not entirely forgotten the weak and the unfortunate. We all know the noble work performed by the Salvation Army and we shall feel much better, more content and more secure in helping the Salvation Army in carrying out its unselfish work of human charity and reclamation.

"Just a few days of strenuous effort on our parts will net us a whole year of satisfaction of a noble deed well performed and a great need in our community well provided."

Following Mr. Hanover's talk the entertainment committee took charge of the meeting, Chairman Rudolph Henschel announced that the five minute speaker would be Edward Rich. Mr. Rich told of the experiences of three local Lions on a recent fishing trip to Vermont. William Mitchell, accompanied by "Pete" Ethier on the piano, sang two solos and David Trachtenberg played several violin selections.

An interesting address on The Assets of Norwich was given by Edwin Hill, general secretary of the local Y. M. C. A. Mr. Hill spoke of the natural protection of the city from cyclonic storms, etc., by the surrounding hills, beautiful scenery in and about the city, the attractive factory buildings, the many fine residences, stores, banks, churches and above everything else he emphasized as the greatest asset the human asset of the city of Norwich. In closing Mr. Hill said that notwithstanding the many assets mentioned, after all the greatest satisfaction was found in the sprinkling of sunshine by the human assets of the city among the less fortunate and in endeavoring to convert all human liabilities into assets.

The speakers and entertainers were given rising votes of thanks and the meeting closed in the usual manner, with the singing of The Star Spangled Banner and with the salute to the flag.

TAFTVILLE

The May meeting of the Ladies Benevolent society of the Taftville Congregational church was held in the church parlors Wednesday afternoon. This being the last meeting of the season, it was "guest" day and a special program was enjoyed by about 50 ladies. Miss Boutillier of Occum, pianiste and Miss Underwood of Norwich Town, sopprano, furnished the musical part of the program which was most enjoyable. The speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. Beveridge Lee of New London, who gave a most interesting and enlightening talk on missionary work at home and in foreign lands. She emphasized the fact that the Christian church is essentially a missionary church, else it does not fulfill the law of Christ. After Mrs. Beveridge had concluded, there was a social hour and refreshments were served.

Thursday being Ascension Day, a holy day of obligation in the Roman Catholic church throughout the world, there were special masses at the Sacred Heart church.

Master Newell Beardew who has been ill at his home on Providence street for the past four weeks after an operation for the removal of his tonsils, was shown that his little friends had not forgotten him, as he received two immense May baskets this past week. His school mates in the third grade of the Wequonnoc school surprised him Thursday afternoon after the school sessions, bringing along many good things, and holding a "regular" party in his honor.

Mr. and Mrs. Arcarde Plante of North A street have vacated their house and have left town.

Ulric Gaudette of South A street has resigned his position with the Ponemah company.

The Thursday evening basketry class held its regular weekly meeting Thursday evening in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building.

Taftville members of Columbian Commandery, No. 34, K. T., of Norwich, were in Danielson Thursday evening attending the Ascension day services at St. Alban's church.

A threatening brush fire broke out again Thursday in the woods just west of North Third avenue in the vicinity of the roque grounds. A high and changeable wind drove the blaze eastward until it came very close to the Ponemah mills houses on North Third avenue. Residents of the vicinity with brooms, rakes and shovels fought the fire until members of the mill fire company could arrive. By that time the blaze had spread considerably, and although the flames near the houses had been extinguished, the fire ran northward through the woods for some distance, and because of the thick undergrowth, it was some time before the conflagration was under control. This is the second fire that has broken out in this locality within two days, each time necessitating the calling out of the fire company. Boys playing with matches are said to be the cause of the blaze.

The members of Castle Perilous K. O. K. A., met Thursday evening at Ponemah hall to complete their plans for the Feast of Pentecost services which are to be observed this year on June 1st. The services this year are to be held in Ponemah hall, as the ceremonies will include the ancient knighting ceremony where plenty of floor space is required. The castle is to be assisted by the Ocowasin and the O. J. S. and members of Troop 2 Boy Scouts. Castle Devonshire of Groton will send some councillors to the conclave, and it is expected that some merlins of castles in Massachusetts will attend to take part in the ceremonies. There is to be special music and singing and it is expected that the conclave will be presided over by Howell E. Estey of Lynn, Mass., Grand Seneschal of the order and ex-regent of the Province of Massachusetts. Mr. Estey is able to attend, he will confer the order of knighthood on all entitled to receive it.

Wire Work at Night

Employes of the trolley company are at work each night on Main street on the job of shifting the electric wires of the trolley system from the old wooden poles to the new White Way poles. The night hours are selected as the time for work as the electric current can be turned off then and there is practically no interference from automobile traffic in the street.

The tsay fruit fly is only one of [illegible] species, thirty, of which are known in this country.

REPRESENTATIVES FROM COUNTY LAY COUNTY TAX ON TOWNS OF $110,000

(Special to The Bulletin

Hartford, May 21.—The meeting of the New London county representatives was held today immediately after adjournment of the house and senate. Senator F. A. Beckwith of the 20th district presided and Representative Burrows of Groton was clerk. Resolutions were passed appointing J. Lawrence Raymond of Lyme, the county member of the state board of agriculture.

Appropriations for two years from July 1, 1925 were voted as follows:

Resolved that the sum of one hundred and ten thousand ($110,000) dollars be and hereby is imposed upon the towns of New London county, for county expenses, the same to be apportioned to said towns as provided by law, the same to be paid as follows:

Fifty-five thousand ($55,000) dollars on or before the first day of September, 1925, and fifty-five thousand ($55,000) dollars on or before the first day of September, 1926.

Resolved that the sum of eight thousand ($8,000) dollars be and is hereby appropriated for agricultural purposes within said county, and in pursuance of this appropriation, the county commissioners are hereby authorized and directed to draw their orders on the county treasurer for the sum of eight thousand ($8,000) dollars, to wit, four ($4,000) dollars as of September 1, 1925, and four thousand ($4,000) as of September 1, 1926, which orders are payable to the treasurer of the farm bureau.

County Commissioner Smith gave an interesting review of the past and present financial condition of the county which is without debt. This had been cleared off in 1922 and he hoped there would never be another one, he said, and that the county would continue the policy of "pay as you go." He called attention to the fact that an $50,000 borrowed fifty years ago the county had paid $125,000 in interest before it was cleared up.

A vote of thanks was given Commissioner Smith for the interesting information that he had given the meeting.

His present work consists of commanding all spiritual activities in all the Salvation corps in southern New England. ### MISS ROSALIE RAUNER AGAIN A MEDAL WINNER

A New York paper has the following of Norwich interest, since Miss Rosalie Rauner, referred to, is the niece of Miss Rosa Plaut, of New York, formerly of 34 Washington street, Norwich.

Miss Rauner has frequently visited in Norwich, with her cousin, Rutherford C. Plaut, of 43 Cliff street:

Anna Storch, young violinist and Rosalie Rauner, her accompanist, have not only repeated their success in the music contests held last year, but this year they also carried away gold medals in the inter-borough music contest.

Last year Miss Storch, who is 17 years old nad lives at 601 W. 141st St., won three medals in the music contest held under the auspices of the Musical Week movement. At that time she represeated the 15th school district as a student of Hunter High school. She received a bronze and silver medal for violin playing, a bronze medal for her ability as a pianist and a silver medal for chamber music.

Miss Rauner, who lives at 3160 Broadway and is a student at the Teachers' Training School, also received the same medals with Miss Storch.

This year the two girls were again entered in the same contests. They received the same medals and were found eligible for the interborough contest. This contest, which was held in Town Hall several weeks ago, was for young musicians who had attained an average of at least 90 per cent. in their school music rating.

The contest was judged by many musicians including Max Bendix, internationally known concert violinist and Harry Burck. The various groups representing different school districts of the city played for them and they decided that the gold medals should go to Miss Storch and Miss Rauner.

The two girls have been playing together for some years. They met when Miss Rauner became a student of Miss Storch's father, Alexander Storch, violinist with the Metropolitan Opera House for 16 years. They played together and were entered together in the contest.

Miss Storch who will be graduated from Hunter High school this term, intends to devote her time to musical study with a view to making the concert stage her ultimate goal.

She is fond of sports and has taken several prizes in swimming meets. Miss Rauner, while intending to keep to her music, wishes to become a teacher in the public schools. She is also about to graduate.

WINNERS IN SPRAGUE SPEAKING AND SPELLING

The speaking and spelling contests for the town of Sprague were held in Sprague Hall Tuesday evening. Hilda Robidoux from Miss Rebecca L. Hollowell's room, Versailles school, grade 5, won highest honors in the speaking contest and James Hallas from Miss Florence M. Jones' room, Baltic school, grade 6, received second honors. Allen LeBourveau from Mrs. Irene M. Mann's room, Hanover school, grade 7, won in the spelling contest.

The judges were Mrs. Case, Mr. Conklin and Allison Ladd of Baltic.

Wrens Not Shy.

A Norwich resident on his farm in the suburbs has bird boxes to which the house wrens have come. They are not all shy. One wren alights on a post near its nest and as the owner points his finger at it, the bird runs up and down on his arm. It is never lonely about homes after these birds arrive. One hears their notes from early morning till nearly dusk. Many local people are studying birds, taking more interest in finding their names and learning of their habits by questioning those who by long observation are authorities on ornithology.

Fool questions Exact fool answers.

Ascension Day morning, three large congregations assembled in St. Patrick's church for masses which recalled the various Scriptural records of the Ascension of Our Lord. At 5 o'clock, the low mass read for the accommodation of those obliged to go to their work early, was offered by Rev. Myles P. Galvin. At 7, another low mass was read by the rector, Rt. Rev. Mgr. M. H. May. Rev. John J. Reilly sang the high mass at 8 o'clock, in all the services throughout the world the introit was Acts 1, beginning, "Ye men of Galilee, why wonder you, looking up to Heaven?" The epistle for the feast was Acts I. I-II, while the gospel was Mark 16, 14-20, narrating the fact of the Ascension. The offertory was Psalm 46, "God is ascended in jubilee; and the Lord with the sound of trumpet." the communion was Psalm 67, "Sing ye unto the Lord, who ascendeth above the heaven of heavens to the east, Alleluia."

Organist Frank L. Farrell directed the music at the high mass, Mrs. Farrell having a number of especially beautiful solos, notably "Et Incarnatus" in the Creed and later, "Sanctus." Many hundreds received holy communion, following confession the previous afternoon and evening. In giving the Eucharist at the high mass, Father Reilly had the assistance of Monsignor May.

If everything goes as expected the citizens of Norwich and hundreds of others to be in town for Suburban Day, are to enjoy a treat Saturday evening when Voiture Locale No. 743, La Societe des 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux, stages a street parade previous to the promenade at the state armory on McKinley avenue.

At a meeting of the "Wrecking Crew" held this week at the American Legion rooms it was announced that a band or drum corps would be secured for the parade, that many novel stunts had been arranged and that the famous French engine and box car was complete.

The box car and engine was made entirely by Norwich members of the Voiture and is equal to that owned by any Voiture in the state of Connecticut, and will attract great attention during the parade.

Novel stunts for "P. G.'s" have been arranged and the wrecking crew in costumes will make a hit.

Voyageurs from other Voitures of the state are expected to arrive in Norwich during the afternoon and early evening to participate in the parade and promenade and the Norwich members are planning to give them a royal welcome and good time during their stay in The Rose of New England.

BOYS' SOCIAL EVENING AT Y. M. C. A. BUILDING

Immediately after the contests the boys all prepared for the swimming pool where a lively time was enjoyed in the scramble for fifty pennies on the bottom of the pool. After the swimming three large reels of moving pictures were shown in the boy's lobby, showing Charles Ray in "The Finch Hitter."

This is the first of a number of lively social times that will be held in the boys' lobby on each Thursday evening from now on.

Announcement was made of plans for a hike for all of the members of the boys' division to be held on Saturday morning at 9.30. Boys will bring their lunches and enjoy a fine trip into the woods and fields if the weather permits.

TITLE OF GUNGERWAMP FARM IN DISPUTE

Judge Isaac Wolfe in the superior court here Thursday heard the suit over the title to the so-called Gungerwamp farm of about 100 acres, part in Groton and part in Ledyard, in which Marcus L. Trail of Groton is the plaintiff against J. Edmund Norman and Phoebe Norman, both of Ledyard, and Perry Palmer of Norwich. At the conclusion fo the trial, Judge Wolfe took the papers and reserved decision.

The plaintiff asks $2,000 damages, and that the defendants give him a good title free from all incumbrances or return the $600.

In November, 1923, the defendant Norman, sold the farm to Trail for $600. Norman told Trail there was a clear title to the land when it was bought.

It turned out however, that in February, 1924, the plaintiff learned that others were making claim to own the farm.

Phoebe Norman and Perry Palmer are the heirs of the said George W. Palmer, deceased, who died intestate, and to them as such heris the plaintiff's money paid for the land has been distributed as part of the estate.

The dispute in ownership came about when the property was owned by the late Charles F. Thayer. He sold the property to one party, and his administrators, through some mixup, sold the property a second time.

Marcus L. Trail of Poquonoc Bridge, who is in the trucking business, besides selling sand and fravel, stated to the court that he had made the deal with Norman whereby he bought the land for $600. At that time Norman told him that he wanted to sell the land to close up the estate of George W. Palmer, of which he was administrator. The deed was recorded with the town clerk at Ledyard and with the town clerk at Groton.

The first Trail knew of the dispute over the premises was when he received a letter from Attorney Jeremiah J. Desmond of Norwich that the farm belonged to Miss Rita Brown and that he had better stop cutting wood from the premises.

Mr. Trail told the court that he had gone to Norman's place and told Norman that Miss Brown had a clear title to the place. Norman seemed surprised about this. Trail gave Norman at his request, a copy of the deed of the deeds of the property dating back for some time, which Norman took to his lawyer and that was the last heard of the matter.

Attorney Desmond on cross-examining Trail asked hom many cords of wood he had cut. The witness replied about 100. The land at present was worth about $1,000, according to Mr. Trail's testimony.

George E. Pitcher, civil engineer and surveyor, testified as t othe locality of the land, etc. Other witnesses testifying were Andrew Main, realtor, of Groton, Justin Peckham of Groton, James Edmund Norman, who runs a grocery store in Ledyard and Fred Richards.

MACRI MURDER CASE WILL GO TO JURY THIS MORNING

Girl Defendant Glad That the Jury Might Decide Her Fate Today—State's Attorney Alling Asked That the Jury Bring in a Verdict of First Degree Murder—Defense Attorney Koletsky Maintained That "This Shrinking Violet" Had Only Defended Herself From a "Monster of the Street."

New Haven, May 22.—(A. P.)—With the completion of the closing argument by State's Attorney Arnon A. Alling late this afternoon, the case of Olympia Macri who is charged with shooting to death John Bagnano on last February 26 will be placed in the hands of the jury before noon tomorrow.

Judge Christopher L. Avery ruled that rather than prolong the session today by charging the jury or adjourn court until next Tuesday, he would call a special session for tomorrow. This decision was made after State's Attorney Alling had consumed almost the entire afternoon with his argument in which he asked that the jury bring in a verdict of first degree murder which in Connecticut carries with it the penalty of hanging.

Defense Attorney Joseph Koletsky did not conclude his plea in which he asked that Miss Macri be acquitted, until the noon recess.

The largest crowd since the trial commenced fought to get into the court room and police were called this afternoon to aid deputy sheriffs in keeping order.

During the entire day Miss Macri sat at the counsel table facing the jurors who sat only a few feet in front of her. At intervals she lowered her head and sobbed.

The girl defendant said that she was glad that the jury would in all probability decide her fate tomorrow and was glad that it would not be delayed until Tuesday. "I could not live if I had to wait much longer," she declared. Miss Macri sat with bowed head this afternoon while State's Attorney Alling assailed her and at intervals pointed at her. She did not show signs of breaking down under the strain, however, and when court adjourned for the day was able to walk from her chair without aid.

She was comforted by her mother and by Mrs. Josepha Whitney, New Haven society leader, who has offered to adopt both the girl and her baby, Rocky, if she is acquitted, or to care for the baby if Miss Macri is found guilty. Early this afternoon, Mrs. Whitney, who is the widow of a former New York state supreme court justice, fainted while she was in the court room. She was revived after first aid treatment had been administered and returned to take her place near the accused girl.

In concluding his argument this afternoon State's Attorney Alling characterized the self-defense plea of Defense Attorney Koletsky as a "plan born within prison walls to get Miss Macri out of prison." He told the jurors that there were two Judas in the case one of whom was John Bagnano, the slain man, and the other was Miss Macri. He declared that the two had conspired together to break up the home of Mrs. Catofina Bagnano, widow of the man whom Miss Macri named as the father of her child Lucy.

State's Attorney Alling scoffed at the claim that Miss Macri had been drugged and assaulted by Bagnano and asked why the jury should be convinced that such was the case if the girl had not been able to convince her own family.

The girl defendant was pictured as seeking Bagnano although she knew that he was married. "Stand Mrs. Carolina Bagnano and Olympia Macri side by side and in your consciences see which has been most wronged in the case." State's Attorney Alling told the jurors.

In his argument the state's attorney treated the testimony chronologically and continually called attention to evidence presented by the state which contradicted story Miss Macri had told the witness stand. He said that instead of being a girl of 18 years, as she claimed, the accused was a woman almost at the end of her 21st year. He said that the Bagnano family was not on trial and that John Bagnano, the man who could challenge the statements of the girl defendant about the relations existing between them was dead.

Defense Attorney Koletsky in his closing argument declared: "Olympia did not realize she was, in killing that wretched rat, rendering a tremendous service to our own women relations who may be subjected to similar attacks. Sheik after sheik, loafers, butchers, tramps had to admit this shrinking violet had never been known in their wild escapades."

In assailing the claim of the state that the shooting had been premeditated, Defense Attorney Koletsky said: "If she had wanted to kill Bagnano she could have asked him to go for a ride and then, in the country, made sure of his death. He called upon the Connecticut jury to send out a new "shot around the world" indicating that it stands behind its "womankind—"when women defend themselves against the monsters of the streets, the sheiks."

He said: "It is up to you to say to Olympia: 'Go out into the open air; go to an American home; don't go back to that old order.' Bagnano had a revolver. It was taken away. That is our claim. Go home and say: 'I've saved the soul of an innocent girl. She can now live and bring up her little baby in quiet and peace."

BRILLIANT ASSEMBLAGE IN BUCKINGHAM PALACE

London, May 22.—(A. P.)—Another brilliant assemblage gathered in Buckingham Palace tonight for the second royal court of the season. The weather, like that of last night, when the first royal court was held, was ideal, and again large crowds of the pageant-loving gathered in the environs of the palace to catch a glimpse of the guests as they arrived.

In its main features tonight's court was the same as that of last night. The number of guests was approximately one thousand, but the official circle was smaller than that attending the first court, and the general circle was correspondingly larger.

King George attired in the uniform of a colonel of the Scots guards, which regiment supplied the bands and guard of honor, and the queen gowned in a pale gold lame dress embroidered with crystals and diamonds, led the royal procession into the throne room. Then the Duke and Duchess of York and Princess Mary and other members of the royal family and royal court grouped themselves behind the king and queen and the presentations began.

This had been a busy week for royal functions. The king and queen drove in state last Tuesday to open the big new power station in a London suburb. Then came the first important social events of the season, the royal courts of last night and night. Tomorrow they will drive through the city to lay the foundation for a new home to be built for Lloyds of shipping fame.

The temperature climbed 44 degrees since midnight to make the record.

Discovering and marking places of historical interest is a feature of history instruction in Taylor (Tex.) high school. A 15 mile tour was made under the guidance of the instructor and much local history was uncovered and many pictures made. Already plans are practically completed for placing suitable markers at appropriate sites in Connecticut.

P.)—Police investigation of operations at the Square Deal garage here, today spread to other sections of the city as authorities traced automobile which they suspect as having gone through an alleged process of alteration before they were sold by the garage, an alleged clearing house for stolen machines.

After a thorough probe of the last two days police positively identified six of the 18 machines found at the garage with engine numbers in an alleged mutilated condition.

Original numbers of nine machines have been discovered. Police today stated that if they are able to find owners for the other 13 machines at the Square Deal garage, theft of all but four automobiles stolen here in 1924 would be cleared up. Au thorities announced they would continue their probe until the activities at the Square Deal garage had been solved.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Reception to Prince of Wales

Umtata, Union of South Africa, May 22.—(A. P.)—Forty thousand natives gathered on the open veldt here to witness the reception given by the native chiefs to the Prince of Wales. It was a unique, impressive ceremony and the prince was attired for the occasion in one of his most imposing uniforms, the full dress of a colonel of the Welsh guards. The red tunic and white helmet with flashing gold spike, greatly impressed the native assembly.

ARMS CONFERENCE MAY EXEMPT RUSSIA'S NEIGHBORS

Geneva, May 22.—The Russian menace hanging over the arms conference probably will be met by exempting Russia's neighbors from the main obligations of the proposed convention for a two year period, if by that time Russia has not adhered to the convention, the conference can be reconvoked to examine into the situation created by this fact. This solution, emanating from the French delegation, was favorably received today by the jurists.

The fears of states like Poland and Rumania are not soothed by the decision of the conference today to eliminate Russia from the countries which must ratify the convention before it can be effective. They again declared it impossible to reveal the quality of their own armament importations while nothing was known of Russia's purchase abroad. M. Comnene, Rumania, summarized the situation by remarking that Rumania was reproached for over-emphasizing the spectre of war but that it was difficult to forget that her territories had been the theatre of invasions for centuries.

Theodore E. Burton, United States was applauded today when he joined the delegates of other big countries in sympathy for Russia's neighbors.

"We must provide for this situation," said Mr. Burton. "The fear of the powerful neighbor nation, the Pacific sentiments of which one cannot be sure, will exist until that faraway golden age, when the expression, weak and strong nations will be banished and when universal law shall reign on earth. There is not a single country in America or Europe which does not fully recognize the dangers expounded today."

Baron Baston Clausel, France, declared it was only right that Russia should realize her position and understand that the "bugaboo role" she now fills is not fitting for a country pretending to base its policy on noble ideals.

SEIZURE OF LIQUOR ON THE STEAMSHIP BOSTON

New York, May 22—(A. P.)—Vigilance of the country's land dry forces working in co-operation with the coast guard blockade of the sea resulted in seizures of liquors from two vessels in the coastwise trade.

The government's prize consisted of 1,500 gallons of whiskey and more than 57,000 bottles of imported ale seized by raiding United States customs officials aboard the steamship Boston and the steam freighter Herman Winter, both owned by the Eastern Steamship company. Customs officers said the seizure, with a boozing value of between $300,000 and $400,000 was the largest ever made from vessels in coastwise commerce.

No arrests were made and little information was given out concerning the captures which were made by 37 members of the special searching squad of the customs service. The contraband was found in cases labelled "lobster" and "herring."

It was said that the government men had established the fact that the shipment had been made from Boston for New York by an American representative of an English liquor firm. The New York consignee, the federal men said, was not known.

In addition to confiscation of the contraband liquor, it was announced, the ships' owners are liable to fines ranging from $90,000 to $100,000.

NO CLUE TO MISSING AIDA HAYWARD AND ABDUCTOR

Winthrop, Maine, May 22—(A. P.)—Authorities of state, county and town spent the day in another fruitless pursuit of clues to the missing Aida Hayward and her supposed abductor, who wounded her aunt, Mrs. Emma M. Towns, in their Lake Maranacook cottage here on Tuesday night. State officers on motor-cycles shot out of town a dozen times during the day on reports that the couple had been seen; two dogs at different spots failed to uncover warm trails; an airplane circled the lake and surrounding forests but the aviators located nothing; the ashes of the cottage were painstakingly sifted and one door key was the only nugget.

The one ray of hope which the officers held out tonight was the continued improvement of Mrs. Towns. Her life was despaired of early this morning, but she gained strength all during the day, taking some nourishment and remaining conscious for longer periods than she has since she was found in the woods near her blazing cottage bleeding from wounds in her arm and neck.

However, Dr. F. H. Badger, her physician, said she was still too weak for questioning and that he would prefer that at least two days elapse before she is subjected to examination.

"ASH-CAN BABY" EXHUMED BY POLICE FROM GRAVE

New York, May 22—(A. P.)—The body of the "ash can-baby" found two weeks ago in an old leather bag thrown into an ash can was dug up by police from its grave in Potters Field on Harts Island.

The body was taken to the morgue where an autopsy will be performed and an effort made to identify it as a former inmate of the baby farm of Mrs. Gelsen-Volk, who is under indictment for baby substitution and manslaughter.

Mr. and Mrs. William Angerer will view the body tomorrow to determine whether it is that of their son, Stephen, whose whereabouts since being left at the Gelsen-Volk baby farm remain a mystery.

The "ash-can" baby died of malnutrition, according to an examination made when its body was found. The examination will be extended to determine whether there were any contributing causes.

The exhumation was made without any court order, police saying that the body was "public property," having been buried in Potters Field.

Public-school attendance in San Diego has increased more rapidly than the population, due largely to the fact that pupils remain longer in school. This is ascribed in great measure to opportunities offered by the vocational schools.

Business Retarded By High Taxation

Given by Elbert H. Gary as Principal Cause of Present Unsatisfactory Conditions.

New York, May 22—Elbert H. Gary, president of the American Iron and Steel Institute, today told more than a thousand leaders in that industry at their annual meeting, that while business conditions in the United States are good they are not entirely satisfactory.

Discussing the "diseases of business," Mr. Gary listed as most serious impediments, high taxation of manufacturers and selfishness.

"Possibly the worst disease that afflicts the business structure, of the United States at least," he said, "is the abnormal, unnecessary, timid and ill poised mental attitude of the managers themselves including ourselves.

"High taxes have become a terribly heavy burden in the United States. Business generally sorely needs and therefore respectfully demands lower rates of taxation."

The steel business in the future should be good, and reasonably profitable, he said, adding that the industry is not receiving as much return on capital investment as before the war.

Industrial awakening of China was predicted by Dr. Cheng Ting Wang, high commissioner to Russia in the present Chinese government, who said that the China of the future would be industrial rather than agricultural as at present.

While expressing gratitude to the various powers at the disarmament conference for adopting a policy of assistance to China, Dr. Wang said, "It is regrettable that the Washington disarmament conference did not do more for the Chinese people. If the maximum amount of cooperation had been rendered there cannot be the slightest question of China forging ahead in every line of national development in what would be acclaimed as record time."

Mr. Gary who has been president of the institute since its formation in 1910, was re-elected. Others re-elected were Charles M. Schwab, John A. Topping and William L. King, vice presidents; W. J. Filbert, treasurer and E. A. S. Clarke, secretary.

Technical problems of the steel industry were discussed at an afternoon session in which many leading manufacturers took part.

VIOLENT FLUCTUATIONS FEATURED COFFEE MARKET

New York, May 22—Violent fluctuations in coffee prices featured today's market, transactions in the May delivery ending at a maximum advance of two cents a pound above the early low figure, the late sale being at 20 cents. Late months were weak, closing with net losses of 1 1-4 to 1 1-2 cents. Liquidation was induced when it became evident that buyers of spot coffee would not follow the advance further.

July deliveries closed at 14.05 and December at 14.20 cents a pound.

DIED WHILE PREPARING FEAST FOR BIRTHDAY

New York, May 22—(A. P.)—Mrs. Theodora Sands, 46, died of burns received while she was preparing a birthday feast for her 32-year-old husband, to whom she had been married 41 years.

All yesterday Mrs. Sands bustled about her kitchen cooking delicacies for the birthday dinner which was to have been eaten today. She told her husband that he must keep out of the kitchen lest he see any of the good things being prepared for him and so lose any of the joy of anticipation.

The old man sat in the living room until suddenly he heard screams from the kitchen. Rushing in he found his wife enveloped in flame. Her clothing had ignited from a gas stove on which she was cooking.

By the time he succeeded in beating out the fire Mrs. Sands was unconscious and he himself was badly burned.

Chemistry Panacea For All Human Ills

Dr. E. W. Slosson Believes It Might Eventually Gain Control of Life Itself.

New Haven, May 22.—(A. P.)—The chemist may eventually gain control of life itself, Dr. Edwin E. Slosson, scientist of note, told several hundred Yale students tonight, lecturing here under the auspices of the Yale chapter of the chemical fraternity, Alpha Chi Sigma.

"Neither time nor space can curtail the scope of chemistry," he said. "Some day the chemist will turn his attention to the preparation of compounds that will contribute to human welfare instead of woe, and will stimulate virtues instead of vice.

"Diabetic patients taking insulin tell me the first effect of an overdose is a feeling of formless fear, a vague apprehension, a sense of futility, and a shiver of anxiety. The courage can be restored at once by sucking a lollypop. A variation of a few hundredths of one per cent. in the glucous of the blood may make the difference between cowardice and courage, may determine whether a man shall be shot as a slacker or medaled as a hero. Courage is not a matter of 'sand' but of 'sugar.'

"Sugar fed to plant lice will so sweeten their disposition that they will grow wings, while the administration of alcohol has the opposite effect, and prevents any approach to the angelic state.

"Scents, savors and colors are silent and subtle in their sway over emotions, and emotions move the world. When the mother advises her daughter that 'the way to a man's heart is through his stomach;' when the florist advertises 'say it with flowers;' when the confectioner suggests 'take a box of candy with you when you call on her,' they are recommending chemical courtship—the oldest way in the world, the method that prevails all through the animal kingdom from the insect to mankind."

COLUMBIA FARM HOUSE DESTROYED BY FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, May 21.—Fire broke out in a twotenement house at Card's Mills in the town of Columbia a short distance over the city line on what is known as the old Green place about 6.15 o'clock Friday night and the building was totally destrowed with its contents and two adjoining sheds. The property is owned and occupied by Isadore Bernstein and family. Mr. Bernstein was in New York Friday. His wife built a fire in the kitchen stove in the afternoon and the house caught fire while it was unoccupied and she was out visiting a neighbor.

The cause was attributed to an overheated chimney. The loss is estimated at $9,000, covered with insurance up to $4,000. Engine Co. No. 1 responded to a telephone summons but upon arrival the firemen found that they could do nothing to save the house and devoted their attention to saving two sheds and two large barns.

Bass Lake in Minnesota is mysteriously disappearing, and scientists can find no cause for it. The lake suddenly started to drain and has now almost completely disappeared. There are hundreds of fish which have been left in the muck as a result of the decrease of the water. At first it was thought that the lake was draining into another nearby lake, but the water level in the other lake has not raised notably in the last few days. Bass lake has always been a favorite lake in Minnesota for fishing.

FORMER FIELD MARSHAL FRENCH DEAD IN DEAL, ENG.

Had Been Ill Since March 19, When He Underwent An Operation For Appendicitis—Was in Command of British Forces in Their Victorious Engagement at Ypres, the Battle Which Saved England From Probable Invasion by the Germans—Had Won Distinction in the Boer War.

Deal, England, May 22—The death here today of the Earl of Ypres, who as Field Marshal French was a British world war figure, came at a time when his great reputation was somewhat under a cloud and while controversy raged over his military strategy in France. The earl, who was 73 years old, had been ill since March 19, when he underwent an operation for appendicitis in a private hospital in London.

The controversy concerning the earl of Ypres has been before the British public particularly since he published his book on the war entitled "1914", which contained much outspoken and adverse criticism of his subordinates and some French generals, and which did not except Lord Kitchener. The argument has been bitter concerning the battle of Le Cateau and General Smith-Dorrien's part in that battle.

Just at the time of the operation on the earl, Smith-Dorien had published a book making a spirited defense against of Earl of Ypres' attacks on him in connection with the battle.

It is considered a coincidence that only a week ago in a public speech Lord Oxford, formerly Herbert H. Asquith, paid tribute to the five great men of the war, Lords Haig, Jellicoe, Kitchener, General Sir John Cowans and ex-Prime Minister David Lloyd George, but made no mention of the Earl of Ypres. This significant omission was much commented upon at the time.

The Earl of Ypres' command of the "Old Contemptibles" as Great Britain's first small expeditionary force to France became known, will, however, always be remembered with gratitude by his countrymen who will desire to honor him in his death. There is also the memory of his service as Lord Lieutenant of Ireland during the troublesome times after the end of the war until the creation of the Irish Free State. It was during this period that an attempt was made to assassinate him. His death will be recurred very soon after that of another British world war figure, Lord Rawlinson, who died while serving as commander-in-chief of the British forces in India.

The Earl of Ypres never fully recovered from the operation for appendicitis he underwent in a London nursing home in March. His condition fluctuated, but there was universal hope that he would regain his usual health and by the end of April his condition was so good it was expected he might leave the nursing home within a few days.

About a fortnight ago, however, the Earl of Ypres had another relapse, and last Sunday he was removed by motor ambulance to his home in Deal. He was said to have stood the journey well, and this gave rise to renewed hope of recovery, but as it now appears, the doctors concealed his real condition and he was only taken home to die.

Sketch of His Career

Rising to the highest places and honors in British military circles, the Earl of Ypres often was characterized as "the luckiest man in the army," and French luck became almost proverbial among the British soldiers. Later events, however, caused a difference of opinion as to whether the luck had been on the soldier's side or on that of the British army and the British empire.

Perhaps the most important event of his career which had to do with these two ideas was the historic battle of Ypres in the world war, the winning of which barred the channel ports from the Germans and saved England from probable invasion. It was at Ypres that the Germans, first resorted to their dealy gas attacks, a form of warfare that impelled the British commander to deplore the fact that an army would stoop so low.

The Boer war was to French only another opportunity to show the ability which the British military authorities had shelved seven years before. He was given the chief cavalry command and in numerous operations he proved himself both a great strategist and a superior tactician. He was mentioned in many dispatches and went back to England at the close of the war to be knited and given the command of all the troops at Aldershot with the rank of lieutenant general.

In 1907 French was appointed inspector general of the forces and five years later he was made chief of the imperial general staff. He was made a field marshl in 1913 and as such went to France at the beginning of the world was as commander in chief of the expeditionary forces.

In the early engagements in France, French's army was outnumbered by the enemy and short of high explosives to halt the German advance. To the latter was attributed the necessity for the strategic retreat from Mons, in which he handled the sorely tried British army in masterly fashion. Later with 1,000,000 men under his command he scored his great victory at Ypres.

Reporting on his operations the field marshal wrote: "The glorious troops under my command had gone valiantly to their death when a few more guns and a few more shells would have many times saved their sacrifice. And still no sufficient supplies came." Criticized at home for permitting the Germans almost impregnably to entrench themselves, French became involved in a controversy with Lord Kitchener, his former South African, commander, then secretary of state for war.

The late Lord Northcliffe made a visit to the British front and upon his return bluntly told the facts of the shell shortage. It was then that he change in he cabinet was made with the result that the factories speeded up and turned out an immense amount of shells and other war implements.

After 14 months of intensive war-fare in France, French relinquished command of the British forces to Field Marshal Haig and returned to England. He was created a viscount and made commander in chief of the troops in the United Kingdom, a post he held until 1918. Then he was made lord lieutenant of Ireland, and served until April 30, 1921, when the home rule partition act took effect and Viscount Fitzalan became viceroy. On December 19, 1919, while motoring through Ireland an attempt was made to assassinate the lord lieutenant. His party was fired upon from ambush, but French escaped injury.

The Earl of Ypres, John Denton Pinkstone French, was the son of a captain of the royal navy and was born Sept. 28, 1856, at Ripple, Kent. He joined H. M. S. Britannia in 1866 and was a naval cadet and midshipman four years. He entered the army in 1874.

The earl was an ardent admirer and student of Napoleon whom he regarded as the greatest strategist the world has ever known. In following closely Napoleon's campaigns he had covered much of the very ground in Belgium, where years later he was called upon to combat as formidable a foe as the Little Corporal ever faced. French's knowledge of Belgian soil was said to have been an enormous help to him. And this, some insisted, was another bit of French luck.

In 1880 the earl married Eleandra, daughter of R. W. Selby-Lowndes.

FOUR JURORS SWORN IN FOR TRIAL OF SHEPHERD

Chicago, May 22—Indications are youth will be asked to judge age for the alleged slaying of youth in the Shepherd trial. The first panel of four jurors was sworn in late today, five days being necessary for the examination of 85 veniremen which produced the four men acceptable to both prosecution and defence.

The three youths classed as jurors received the approval of 50 year old William Darling Shepherd who is accused of feeding typhoid germs and subtle poisons to his 21 year old foster son, William Nelson McClintock, the "millionaire orphan" as readily as he nodded assent to the section of one mass of approximately his age.

The four sworn in were: Fletcher C. James, Despiaines, Ill., florist, about 45 years old; Harold R. Pillar, motor truck chauffeur, 22; Rose Hoyt, former county school teacher, now a Chicago real-estate agent, 35; and Ralph F. Sedgwick, chief purchasing clerk for the American Can Company, 34 years old.

POLITICAL PROBLEMS FOR KING ALBERT OF BELGIUM

Brussels, May 22—(A. P.)—Dissolution of parliament, new elections, a cabinet formed outside the political parties or a ministry recruited from the Catholics, Liberals and Socialists were the alternatives facing King Albert this evening after his acceptance of the resignation of Premier Aloys Van de Vyvere whose ministry was overthrown in the chamber of deputies on a vote of lack of confidence.

King Albert is reported, in view of the difficulties that have been encountered in the formation of a stable cabinet, as favoring dissolution of parliament. Burgomaster Max of Brussels, leader of the Liberals, is being severely criticized in certain nationalist quarters for his failure to support M. Van de Vyvere. In these quarters tonight it was said that the popularity of the burgomaster, which he achieved during the world war was through his stubborn resistance to the Germans and his subsequent exile, is waning.

JUDGE DECLARES CASE A BAREFACED BLACKMAIL

Bridgeport, May 22—"This is the most bare-faced attempt at blackmail I ever saw. That's the way it looks to me. Your whole outfit is lucky if it escapes a suit for false imprisonment."

WILLIMANTIC

A half dozen labor leaders occupied the speaking platform at the mass meeting of the striking operatives of the American Thread company Friday morning. They were: John J. Eagan, of Bridgeport, secretary of the Connecticut Federation of Labor; Edward Morris, of Providence, president of the Rhode Island Federation of Labor and Organizers Horace Riviere, of Manchester, N. H., Frank Gorman, of Pawtucket, R. I., and Miss Mary Kelleher, of Scranton, Pa. The main topic of discussion was the criticism of an editorial which appeared in a local publication and which told the strikers in plain words that they were fighting for a lost cause and that it was high time that they should break confidence in their highly paid union leaders and figure their problems out for themselves, with a view of returning to their work. The strike leaders spoke in bitter words of the editorial and stated that it was a weapon being used so that attorneys for the State Manufacturers' association could carry out their proceedings to secure an injunction against the strikers in the present situation. Miss Amy L. Hooker, local leader, opened the meeting with a pledge that the strikers had explicit faith in the leaders of their own textile association and the American Federation of Labor. "We have every reason to know their honesty of word and purpose," she said, "and anything said or printed cannot break this confidence." Horace Riviere spoke first. The editorial in question was mentioned in the first few words of his remarks. Mrs. Sarah A. Conboy, of New York, said that the article was entirely uncalled for and she said that it must have been written by someone who did not reside here and did not have the interest of the community, its people, or business at heart. She complimented the strikers on the wonderful fight they were making and urged them on to victory.

Other speakers declared that the editorial bore the earmarks of manufacturers' propaganda and Horace Riviere said that he believed that it had been written outside of the newspaper office, if not in the office of the American Thread company. John J. Eagan declared that every labor organization in the state was backing the local cause and he warned against an injunction being brought against the local strikers by the representatives of the Connecticut Manufacturers' association. He asked that no violence, even of the most trivial nature, be reported to, to prevent any cause or excuse for such an injunction. Referring again to the editorial, he said that the strikers themselves were finding no fault with the situation and he could see no reason why writers and manufacturers should do so.

Frank Gorman said that the editorial added insult to injury, and brought nobody any good. Regarding the lost cause of the strike, Mr. Gorman said that the Rhode Island delegation of labor leaders present at the mass meeting had conducted operatives in that state in a fight which lasted many months, until the manufacturers quit and restored a cut in wages of ten per cent. "Everyone knows of your high spirit," he said. "The object now is for you to let your leaders direct will do the most good." Edward Mor- that spirit in the channels where it is, of Providence, gave encouragement to the strikers relative to the receipt of funds from labor organizations and told of the success with which local collectors were meeting in Rhode Island. "The strike has been a severe blow to this city," he said. "Nobody likes it. Business men certainly don't. But the time had come for definite action on behalf of the operatives to secure a living wage. The fight will benefit the business man as well as the striker when it is won. You should not pay any attention to editorials; just continue in your fight and in the end a moral and material victory will be yours."

Miss Mary Kelleher, organizer, took up the question of the fat salaries being received by labor leaders. In the first place, she said, the leaders higher up were entitled to fitting renumeration for the effort and brain which they put into their work. "I have been accused of receiving a high salary," she stated. "The fact is that I get less out of which I have to pay all my traveling and living expenses." Miss Kelleher allayed the fears of any of the strikers who believed that they would be ejected from the company tenements which they are occupying. She said that if they were receiving what they should have been earning they could have built themselves little homes like the "kings on the hill section of the city."

Clerks, tradesmen, other business people and manufacturers have taken it upon themselves to conduct the business life of Willimantic on a daylight saving time schedule, it was made known Friday. The working hours for these people will begin one hour earlier, starting Monday morning next and will close one hour earlier in the evening, with reference to the time now in use in the city. A campaign backed by the Clerks' Protective association and circulated about town is carried one hundred and twenty-five signatures out of one hundred and thirty-two people approached, a difference of seven, has brought about this movement. This overrides the vote taken against daylight time at the city meeting, when James Haggerty said that the horny-fisted clerks were looking for an excuse to don their sawed-off trousers and play golf before dark. The plan virtually established all of the city on Daylight time although no time-piece of any kind will be changed. Signers of the petition represent every kind of establishment in the city.

Miss Anais Clifford, charged with operating a motor vehicle without a driver's license gave one of the most original excuses for her violation ever heard in the local court when, Friday morning, she said that after trying a couple of times, unsuccessfully, to get a driver's license she thought that it was all right to operate her car on a road other than a state highway. Other things being equal, the woman showed that she needed to scan the good book of rules before applying again for a license. She pleaded guilty and Judge Foss imposed a fine of $17.15 which was paid. Miss Clifford was arrested in South Windham by Constable Alfred Abbe.

Fifty-five couples attended a May Day party at the Al-Pierre Tabarin Thursday night given by the French-American Social club. Square and round dances were enjoyed. Mr. and Mrs. Aime J. ### L. J. FLYNN'S RATIFICATION GOES OVER TO WEDNESDAY NEXT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, May 23—The board of aldermen held a special meeting, Friday night, in answer to a notice issued by Mayor George W. Hickey, to have the office of alderman-at-large declared officially vacant. The vacancy is caused by an act of the legislature which made Acting Mayor Hickey the Mayor, to succeed to the unexpired term of the late Mayor Hermisdas Dion. It was generally expected that the name of Ex-Alderman Louis J. Flynn would be recommended by Mayor Hickey for ratification as alderman-at-large by the board, but due to a technical omission on the notice calling the meeting it was ruled that the selective candidate for the office could not be ratified at this time. Another special meeting has been called for next Wednesday evening for that purpose.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

PROTECT TREES FROM ROUND HEADED BORER

The most serious borer attacking apple, quince, and sometimes pear trees, is known as the round-headed apple tree borer. Its life cycle, spent mostly in the trunk of young apple trees, covers a period of about three years. The beetle deposits its eggs under the bark of the tree during May and June, and in three or four weeks the grub hatches and begins its destruction. For three years it lives in the wood of the trees when it pupates and the beetle emerges, usually in the month of April.

Destruction of the borers can be accomplished by digging them out when their presence is known or suspected, or by injecting carbon disulphide into the channel where the borer is working and then plugging the opening. But prevention is easier than destruction. The beetles deposit their eggs on the trunk at or near the surface of the ground. Protecting the lower part of the trunk with tarred paper, roofing paper or a fine-wire mosquito netting will prevent the beetle from depositing these eggs.

The paper on wire should be wrapped loosely about the tree trunk with the lower end a few inches below the surface of the ground and the upper end a foot and a half up the trunk tied tightly about the tree. These protectors should be left on for at least four months.

The flat-headed apple-tree borer is less destructive in that it seldom attacks vigorous healthy trees. The best protection from the ravages of this insect is supplied by properly fertilizing and cultivating the orchard. The same measures used against the round-headed borer will suffice to control the flat-headed borer.

WOOD ASHES ARE WORTH THEIR WEIGHT

It is throwing away money to throw away wood ashes, for it is throwing away fertiliser that can be replaced only at considerable expense. Wood ashes vary in effective fertilising material, hardwood ashes being richest and soft wood least rich. Ashes of vegetable refuse are valuable also, being a good fertiliser, although not of the strength of the hardwood ashes. When you burn leaves or old vegetable vines or flower stems, spread the ashes over the garden.

Wood ashes are chiefly valuable as a fertilizer which furnishes potash, a necessary element in ripening of fruit and in forming roots. It is ordinarily furnished by chemical salts such as sulphate or muriate of potash or by a mineral fertiliser known as kainit. Our chief supply of potash fertilizers came from Germany before the war and there was a potash famine when they were out of commerce and potash fertilizers went sky high in price. Now they are again within reason.

Wood ashes are an old standby and more appreciated now than at any previous time, so much so that they are sold commercially by seed houses. Wood ashes are now known to be a dual-purpose fertilizer. Where formerly they were used merely for their known potash content, now they are known to be an effective means of furnishing lime to the soil and an aid in sweetening the ground and liberating other fertilizing element. These ashes contain 50 to 70 per cent of lime, so when you are both liming the soil and helping to correct any acidity or sourness that may exist and furnishing potash fertilizer as well.

The lime is as essential as other fertilizers to keep the soil up to the requisite growing quality although its application is not needed as frequently as other fertilizers. Without lime the efficiency of fertilizers is greatly lessened. It is needed in the soil to liberate other plant food elements. Save all wood ashes or ashes from bonfires. Spread them on the garden.

SWEET CLOVER FOR PASTURE OR HAY CROP

Sweet clover is being grown by a few Connecticut farmers and has been compared with other forage plants in certain experiments at the Storrs experiment station.

Sweet clover is a legume plant as high in protein as alfalfa. When cut before becoming woody it makes a splendid hay. It is probable that its greater usefulness in this section is as a pasture plant.

While sweet clover has not been tried under our conditions sufficiently to justify a complete statement as to what is necessary for its culture here, the plant is so well known that the following is offered as a reasonably safe guide for a trial:

1. Select tillable, perfectly well drained pasture land, or fields not especially profitable for common hay or pasture grasses. Sweet clover will grow on soils too dry for grass pasture.

2. Lime as for alfalfa. Apply two or three tons or better to meet the requirements of acidity test, and mix with the soil to plow depth. Two applications are desirable, one the year previous to sowing.

3. Secure scarificed seed which will germinate at least 75 per cent. Sow about 20 pounds per acre and cover by shallow harrowing and rolling.

4. Prepare the seedbed thoroughly. Plowing in advance to make a firm soil beneath the seedbed and a loose, smooth surface are as essential as for alfalfa.

5. Harrow into the seedbed, five hundred pounds acid phosphate and one hundred pounds muriate of potash per acre. On very poor soils a light application of manure reinforced with acid phosphate will be better than fertilizers alone.

6. Inoculate the seed by using soil from about roots of alfalfa or sweet clover plants or by using a commercial culture.

7. Sow in early spring with a half bushel or a bushel of oats or barley as a nurse crop. Seedings may be made later without a nurse crop, or even in corn, but part of the crop is really lost as the plant lives only two seasons whether seeded in April or July. Do not seed later than July as there will not be sufficient growth for wintering.

8. Pasture as soon as knee high and controls pasturing throughout the summer, but do not pasture during the fall the first season. A growth of about a foot is needed to reduce winterkilling.

9. If cut for hay, mow before the buds form—usually when about thirty inches high—and before the stems become woody. Stems must be left with two or three branches remaining to allow another growth. This means cutting about ten inches high. There are no basal shoots as with grass plants.—J. S. Owens, crops specialist, extension service.

TO KILL WEEDS: ONLY OBJECT OF CORN CULTIVATION

The ka-lick, ka-lick, of the corn planter has ceased its musical tattoo for the season in most parts of the corn belt and has backed into the shed. If there were no weed seeds just under the surface of the soil lying in wait for favorable germinating conditions, the farmer's work in the cornfield would be done for the summer. If there were no weeds there would be no need to tune up the old cultivator or cut a forked stick. The crop would not again need his attention until corn picking time in the fall. He could turn his attention to other work about the farm, or he could cut himself a pole and go fishin', whichever was according to his individual bent—and his corn held would still yield as many bushels of corn as it would have had he given it the traditional three times over with the corn plow.

At least some such conclusion might be arrived at from a study of the results of various tests by corn culturists to determine the real reason for cultivating corn. Cultivation, they agree, is chiefly for the purpose of controlling the weeds. In fact, weed eradication may be the only beneficial result from cultivation after planting.

Nevertheless, there is that big little word "if" to reckon with. We do have weed seeds and we will have weeds. Soon the broad clean spaces between the rows of young corn will be covered with a mass of green weeds of every description. The cultivators will be unlimbered in feverish haste to attack the weeds and hold them in check while king corn gets the jump on them.

But that is where the similarity of the operation ceases. One farmer will set his shovels to plow as deeply as possible. He will hurry across the field so that he can start his plow on the cross rows—the main idea apparently being simply to get over the field three times before the corn is knee high and ready to lay by. He believes that the formation of a dust mulch to retain moisture is also a thing to accomplish.

Another farmer who understands that the killing of weeds is the principal reason for cultivation will adopt different methods. He will use a weeder or a spike tooth harrow for the first time over the field after the corn is up. Each succeeding cultivation is as shallow as possible, done perhaps with a surface cultivator which shaves off the weeds and does not penetrate the soil deeply enough to disturb the rapidly expanding corn roots.

As long as there are weeds, some sort of method will have to be used to keep them down. Rotating crops, preventing weeds going to seed, and sowing seed that is free from weed seed, are some of the other principles that will help to keep down weeds. An understanding of the fact that cultivation is principally for the purpose of killing the weeds and not to stir the soil or provide a dust mulch, however, will modify the methods of cultivation.

Thirty six years ago the Illinois experiment station made some tests in which it was shown that if weeds were kept down by scraping with a hoe without any attempt at forming a dirt mulch, the yield was the same as with ordinary deep cultivation, and slightly less than with ordinary shallow cultivation.

MUCH GRAIN DESTROYED BY FOREST AND GRASS FIRES

The spring fire season, which begins practically with the beginning of spring all through the Atlantic coast region and the Mississippi Valley, is a time of hardship and disaster for early nesting birds of all kinds. Such birds depend upon the accumulation of natural growth for cover and for their feed during early spring before insect life develops.

It therefore can be seen, says Dr. E. W. Nelson, chief of the biological survey of the United States department of agriculture, that to allow ranges to be swept by fire is injurious to both birds and small wild animals. As the litter and growth of the previous years become sufficiently dry to burn, it is the practice of many to set fire to it with the hope of improving the ranges, and in many cases of ridding the lands of ticks. The department of agriculture has repeatedly stated that it is impossible to rid lands of ticks in this way, and it also has been shown that instead of improving ranges by burning the dry grass and leaves, such lands become gradually poorer each year, so that the growth which they can support is less and less vigorous and extensive. Many state foresters are practically active at this time as such fires are destructive to forest growth as well as to wild life.

Everyone who is interested in the protection of wild life, says Doctor Nelson, should join in an effort to point out the loss from such fires, and to cooperate in every way to prevent them. Such effort is better based upon human contacts of a friendly sort, personal conversation, and informal visits to schools and talks to the pupils than on anything in the way of formal meetings and addresses. Visits to schools should have in view the enlisting of the aid and sympathy of the pupils in protecting not only the forests but the animals and birds as well. Fire fighting forces which have been developed through many of the states, and posters warning of forest fires, give salient facts as to purposes and results.

The fire prevention forces in the eastern Atlantic states, particularly of the southern region, can realize what they will be forced to face during the next few weeks from experiences of the last spring fire season. In one state from the period of January 1 to June 30, 1924, there were 760 fires which burned over a total of nearly 135,000 acres and did damage to the forests estimated at more than $585,000—the figures being based upon the forest condition only, without reference to the damage to wild life. In many instances such birds are ducks, geese, turkeys, and grouse have been burned on their nests, with the destruction not only the incubating birds, but of the clutches of eggs with all their prospects. Where fires occur before the nests have been located they often decrease the number of young in any one section. Every effort should be made to prevent the occurance of fires in such places.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Rehearsals for the musical extravaganza Bimbo to be staged by the Danielson American Legion at the Orpheum theater on May 25 and 26 have been progressing nicely and it is the opinion of Jack W. Briggs the director representing the John B. Rogers Producing Co., who staged the musical comedy Kathleen in Danielson last March, that the present production will rank among the best performers that have come to the town.

Bimbo is the name of an Island in the Southern Pacific wherein the scenes of the show are enacted. The entire production is surrounded with a typical South Sea atmosphere, with its dusky Hula Maidens and South Sea Island Belles. There will be twelve different and distinct groups ranging in age from six to twenty six, that will sing and do steps to the numerous catchy and melodious song numbers that have been especially written for the show. These groups, are the American and English Tourists, Hula Maids, South Sea Belles, Boy Blue Dancers, Models of Fashion, Bandit Girls, Toddie Dancers, Cave Dwarfs, Moth and Flames, The Bimbo Army, and a specialty Jazzing the Nursery Rhyme group.

Aside from the various dancers who will be costumed in garments of the latest designs and color schemes, to be furnished by the Rogers Company, there will be a principal cast of nine characters who will enact the plot of the play. These characters are, Mr. Henry Dodo as Hiram Budd of Oakoah, Wisconsin, Mrs. Lucien Lambert as Hiram's fiancee, Georgianna Tibbs Miss Lillie Caron as Sally McNally also in love with Hiram, Mrs. J. Dyer Potter as Princess Lillikoza, a native princess with designs on Hiram, Mrs. Albert Bernier as Sylvia Vandeveer an American heiress, Mr. J. K. Hargraves as Jack Damon, Sylvia's fiancee, Miss Wanda Nieadjelika as Sylvia's Aunt Portia, Mr. Arthur DeForrest as General Cadenza the Governor's right hand man, and Mr. F. C. Littleworth as Algy Somerset, and English nobleman. All of these characters are experienced home talent performers, many of them making a name for themselves in the Kathleen show, and they assure the public of an A 1 entertainment on the nights of performance.

The songs which are especially written for Bimbo are Travellers Blues, Bimbo Land, Bungalow for Two, My Ladys Dress, Here Comes the Governor, I'm the Governor of Bimbo, Little Boy Blue, Jingle Jungle Melody, Romance Land, Dwarf Dance, Where Were You Hiding Toddie Town, Jazzing the Nursery Rhyme, Same Sort of Love, Specialty Drill. The music is a combination of tuneful melody, catchy words and syncopated rhythm, that will be hard to beat even by professional performers.

The curtain will rise on the first performance at 8:15 on Monday, May 25th and again at the same hour on Tuesday, May 26th. Tickets for this musical revualical are now on sale and can be procured from members of the legion or from persons in the cast. It is advised that persons wishing to see the show should get their tickets at the earliest possible time as a record house is expected on both nights of performance. The proceeds of the show will go toward Legion Memorial Fund, and it is hoped that the show will net a sizeable sum. Don't forget. Get your tickets now.

Lyceum Theatre

Closely following her very successful New York and Chicago seasons in the same play, Arthur Hopkins will present Ethel Barrymore at the Lyceum Theatre, New London in Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," Friday evening, May 29.

Miss Barrymore's devoted following there will be keenly interested to learn that, in adding the unhappy Paula to her constantly growing gallery of stage portraits, this most popular of our actresses is reported to have one of the best roles she has ever essayed, one in which her recognized emotional gifts may have full play.

Pinero's intensely interesting study of an unfortunate woman who seeks happiness in a marriage that is not the conventional sort to satisfy society, has for more than a quarter of a century served some of the most prominent actresses on the English-speaking stage with a superb medium for emotional expression. Mrs. Patrick Campbell leaped into fame over night with her Paula. Mrs. Kendal and Olga Nethersole also matched their talents with this exacting role, while the late Eleanora Duse won fame in an Italian version.

In her recent highly acclaimed portrayal of another of Pinero's heroines —the neurasthenic Zoe Blundell in "Mid Channel"—Miss Barrymore delightfully revealed a sincerity and artistry in the expression of poignant emotion that promised much for her interpretation of Paula. There are many fine moments for acting in "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," and it is safe to predict that several of them will be long treasured in memory.

Miss Barrymore's supporting cast includes Henry Daniell, Lionel Pape, Rhy Darby, J. Covil Dunn, William Kershaw, Jane Wheatley, Helen Robbins, George Thorpe, Harold Webster, Oscar Sterling, Wallen Howe and Edna Peckham.

The production has the advantage of the personal stage direction of Mr. Hopkins.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Gloria Swanson at the Broadway

In Madame San Gene Gloria Swanson has probably the most difficult role ever attempted by her during her screen career, but according to all reports she has created for the screen a figure as great as the French actress Rejane did for the stage in the play by Victorien Sardou and Emile Moreau.

The Paramount picture, which was filmed entirely in Paris, comes to the Broadway theater on Sunday next for a run of four days. The opening of the production finds Gloria as Catherine Hubscher, a French laundress who, through the fortunes of war—the French Revolution—finds herself the possessor of the title of Duchess and a place in the court of Napoleon, for whom she used to steal silk shirts from her wealthy customers, when the Emperor of France was a mere nobody.

Charles de Roche, the only member of the supporting cast with any motion picture experience in this country, has the leading man's role, that of a young sergeant who marries Sans Gene.

Madame Sans Gene was written for the screen by Forrest Halsey, who adapted all of Miss Swanson's recent successes.

"It is the triumphant climax of the triumphant career of Gloria Swanson, said Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president of Famous Players-Lasky Corporation. The plaudits, which were given her on her return to America, will be redoubled by the American people, when this picture is shown publicly. It is a new Gloria, a great Gloria with all the artistry, charm and power which were foreshadowed by her performances in Zaza and the Humming Bird. It is the greatest picture Gloria Swanson has ever made; it is one of the greatest pictures that have ever been made.

Short subjects will include a comedy and news.

Here is the big picture of the year you must not miss.

Palace Theater

There is a splendid, well balanced bill of vaudeville and picture most entertaining at the Palace the last half of the week. The vaudeville is headed by a real American act, Clifford Wayne and Co., (four Indians) presenting singing, dancing, comedy and acrobatic stunts. The act is very versatile and goes big with the audience. The Faucets open the show with some real snappy stepping from Dixie. The Melody Comedy Four, a male quartette proved to be great favorites at last nights performance every number being sung with that deep rich harmony. Their comedy chatter just kept the audiences howling. Josephine Davis introduced some new popular songs and sang them with such pleasing personality, she was forced to sing several encores. Jim and Bobby close the show with performing a fine exhibition of strength and gymnastic stunts.

Bobby Agnew, who is signed to play a prominent role in The Man Without a Conscience, reported for the work at the Warner Bros. studio a day in advance of his call, through a misunderstanding. But rather than return home and spend the day in idleness, he asked to be used as an extra on a party scene in The Bridge of Sighs. Bobby felt quite at home, as it recalled to him the days when extra jobs were scarce.

The Bridge of Sighs is now at the Palace theater. Dorothy Mackaill heads the cast.

Broad

After a continuous run of more than seventy weeks in New York, an engagement of a year in London, and a brilliant road tour of the United States, Sally, the Ziegfeld musical comedy hit, is now on the screen, with Colleen Moore as the star.

Sally holds the record for being perhaps the most successful musical comedy ever presented in America. The screen version, originally written by Guy Bolton and Jerome Kern, was made by June Mathias. Miss Mathias is recognized as one of the most expert adapters of plays for the screen in the country. It was she who transformed The Four Horsemen and Blood and Sand into film form.

Sally has been brought to the screen with new life, new color and new charm. It is said to supply an ideal role for Colleen Moore.

Alfred E. Green, who was responsible for 18 Hollywood Follies, Potash and Perlmutter, Inez From Hollywood and others, directed Sally.

The picture will be shown at the Breed theater Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

DANIELSON

Memories of Onward Christian Soldiers, the rhythm of marching men with their brilliant accouprements and glinting swords and an impressive church service, were strong in the minds of hundreds of Danielson people, Friday, who watched Thursday evening's annual Ascension day parade of 127 members of Columbian commandery, Knights Templar, of Norwich, or attended the service at St. Alban's church.

The knights, in full regalia, and escorted by the Men's club band of Dayville, presented a brilliant spectacle, reminiscent of the Crusaders of old, as their lines were formed in Main street outside Masonic hall and they marched away for their annual church parade. Danielson had seen nothing just like this, for the commandery had not previously assembled here for such an occasion, Sir Knights from all the jurisdiction of Columbian commandery were in attendance, a number of towns and cities in various sections of eastern Connecticut being represented. And Danielson was very deeply impressed.

The church service was conducted by the rector, Rev. Leonard J. Richards. He preached the sermon recalling the ancient and honorable history of the knights and the significance of the day observed.

At the close of the service the knights marched to Masonic hall, where a banquet was served them by members of Danielson chapter, Order of the Eastern Star.

Friday morning, the funeral of Mrs. Catherine Duggan was held from her home on the West Side with funeral services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock, Rev. Joseph Deschaux, M. S., Rev. James McCarthy, M. S., and Rev. F. X. Richards, M. S., being the officers of the solemn mass of requiem. Burial was in the family plot in St. James' cemetery. The bearers were Hugh Gorman, Sr., Hugh Gorman, Jr., William J. Brennan, James Looney, John Doyle and Edward Maher. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Killingly has taken the first step leading along the road of possibilities as to increased school facilities. This step constitutes the naming of a committee, at a special town meeting, that the committee may make a complete investigation as to the town's needs in educational accomodations and make a report on its findings by early fall, this plan contemplating action on the report at the annual town meeting on the first Monday in October.

The committee is headed by Frederick A. Jacobs, N. Lorne Greig, Alma Forcier, John A. Gilbert, William Kinder, Frank Harrington and James N. Tucker. This personnel gives representation to Danielson, Dayville, Goodyear, Attawaugan and East Killingly as well as to the town school committee, the board of selectmen, manufacturing and other interests.

The special town meeting heard from Superintendent William E. Parker of Killingly's schools a statement establishing the need of Killingly's seriously considering its school facilities and methods of overcoming the congestion and limitations that now exists in some schools.

Potted plants and cut flowers; artificial designs a specialty. A. Bretschneider. Tel. 582.—Adv.

Tomorrow (Sunday) afternoon the annual Memorial day exercises will be held at South Killingly and patriotic organizations from Danielson will assist, as has been the rule for many years. The church service is scheduled for 2 o'clock, and following this graves of the honored dead in the cemeteries nearby will be decorated.

In the evening members of the patriotic societies will attend a special Memorial Sunday service at the Baptist church. Members of the W. R. C. and D. A. R. will meet at Mrs. E. M. ### THREE BURGLARIES REPORTED. A FOURTH ATTEMPTED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, May 22—Three burglaries and an attempt at a fourth, were reported Friday morning. The business place of Gallup Brothers and Lindner, at Main and Academy streets, was entered, as was the postoffice at Dayville and the drug store of John J. O'Neill in that place. An attempt was made to get into the business place of W. J. Craig in the Winkleman building here, but this was abandoned for some reason after a screen over a window in an alley at the south of the building had been partly cut away.

At Gallup Brothers and Lindner's the loss appeared to be no more than a few packages of cigarettes. The cash register was opened and inspected, revealing that there was no money in it and a desk in the office was ransacked.

At the O'Neill store in Dayvills, the loss amounts to about $25 and includes spotlights and a quantity of a patented type of pencil. At the postoffice there, parcel post packages were opened and the contents strewn about, but there did not appear to be any important loss, so far as is known.

The breaks look like the work of the parties responsible for another break made at the Hoyle store here a few nights ago. At Dayville, identical methods of breaking window glass in a manner to allow of releasing the window catch were employed. A burglar had his hand out on the glass he broke at the O'Neill store, but this did not deter him from going across the street later and breaking into the postoffice. This is established through a splotch of blood on the back door, through which exit from the office was made.

Night Officer John Gebert of the local police found the open window in the Gallup building while making his rounds during the night and at once reported the matter.

Boldness characterized the operation of the burglar or burglars, for all of the breaks were in places where the risk of detection was great.

EDWARD BLOOM CO. ACQUIRES PUTNAM MFG. CO. PLANT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, May 22—The plant of the Putnam Manufacturing company has been sold to the Edward Bloom company, manufacturers of silk products, with offices and salesrooms in New York City, and mills at Paterson, New Jersey and New London Conn. Included with the mill is a large number of tenements.

The deal, which has been in negotiation for several weeks, was consumated Thursday. The new owners will take immediate possession and as soon as the cotton working machinery can be removed will install their own machines which will be put in operation at the earliest possible date.

When the plant is equipped to capacity, employment will be given to from 500 to 600 operatives.

Both throwing and weaving will be done and the machines will be installed in units so as to permit work to begin before the entire plant is equipped.

The cotton machinery was not included in the sale and it will be removed by the former owners at once, preparations for dismantling having been begun today.

The Edward Bloom company is a nationally known concern and ranks high as manufacturers of silk and mercerized products. They have been engaged in this line of work for twenty-three years.

Francis E. Metcalf, who has been the resident superintendent of the Putnam Mfg. Co., will remain with the new owners as superintendent.

The Putnam Mfg. Co., suspended operations just a year ago and not a wheel has been turned since then. Prior to that time the plant was operated for many months on a three-quarter-time schedule.

The purchase price was not made public. The property is located on Providence street and has ample water facilities. There are also many tenements which are included in the transfer. Announcement of the sale and the renewal of work is welcome to the people of Putnam.

ALL THE GOOD THINGS ARE NOT LEARNED IN SCHOOL

Schooling is mental exercising. It makes the mind think.

Thrift should be taught with the Three R's in school and after school by parents. Give the youngsters a chance to earn a little money. When they have worked for it—they will understand that it requires effort to make money—and then they will be more willing to save a part of what they earn.

SURVEY OF NEW ENGLAND INDUSTRIES

The committee on New England industries of the Boston chamber of commerce has been making a survey of the important industries which are in competition with similar industries in other parts of the country, for the gleaning of facts that will be beneficial to such industries.

The first of these reports concerns the New England shoe industry and a distinct note of optimism is sounded in it. The report recommends more co-operation by the community in which the plant is located; better transportation rates for the short haul; more scientific marketing methods; a clarification of the labor piece rates and labor union rules and policies and more intelligent factory management.

The committee finds many hopeful signs for New England. One of these is New England's fortunate position, where raw materials, both for the main trade and its allied products, are readily obtainable, and because of its importing and exporting advantages.

Says the report: "Shoes have been manufactured in quantity in this section for at least a hundred years. Until about the period of the Civil war there was no other factory source of supply; shoes required for all sections of the country were produced in New England. The modern system of shoemaking, as distinct from the old handcraft, originated here. The machinery and factory systems now in use the world over were created and developed here.

"New England has the largest body of skilled, highly trained shoe operatives in the world. It has a multitude of factories, both large and small, easily adapted to all conditions. Boston is the greatest leather market in the world. Materials of all kinds are immediately at hand."

Originality of Style.

Another encouraging feature that the committee finds is that in originality of style New England leads, and because of the high grade of workmanship New England-made shoes seem to have a special high appeal for the shoe buyer, and as a result New England continues to hold its own because the preference of the larger and more discriminating dealers is for New England-made products with style value.

More energetic merchandising and retailing methods are used by the shoe manufacturers of the west whose field is newer and who are considered first of all financial and merchandising men and, second, shoe manufacturers. The survey also states that heavy taxation is frequently a handicap in the east where the plants have been long established and where the manufacturers deem to be heavily assessed for local civic income, while communities in the middle and far west, where business is new or just starting in, give land tax free and in many cases build plants for the manufacturers to be rented at a low cost.

Report Discusses Labor.

In regard to labor the report says: "Labor costs in the principal shoe centers of New England at the present time we find are higher for a similar grade than in other competitive sections. Considering for the moment other items of cost as being about equal, this means that the New England product is at present handicapped in competing with the rest of the country by higher unit labor costs."

Notwithstanding the high labor costs in New England, the total income of workers is not correspondingly high. The report says: "The high labor costs in New England do not mean correspondingly high yearly earnings for the worker. To be sure, the New England wage earner in the shoe industry earns more per year than workers in states outside of New England. However, examining the returns for the past twenty-five years, it is seen that whereas, as indicated above, the labor cost has been increasing, the yearly earnings have been relatively less, dropping from 28 per cent. higher than the rest of the country in 1899 to 4.3 per cent. higher in 1921. In other words, while the unit production labor cost has mounted the earnings per year have not kept pace."

The "piece price" schedules throughout the country seem to be unbalanced and upon that subject the report has the following to say: "Piece prices in most shoe centers are unbalanced, rates on some operations providing a fair day's work for a fair day's pay, while rates on other operations are so low that the jobs must be given out so as to dovetail with jobs for which abnormally high prices are paid. This condition of unbalanced rates more than any other factor is responsible for controversies over wages and earnings.

"Another illustration is the difference in earnings of workers on piece rates on fancy styles. In one city recently a change in style from fancy to base shoes reduced the cutter's wages one-half and caused a strike—in other words, prices on cutting fancy shoes were too high and on base shoes too low. In one center the earnings on one type of operation which could be learned in a few days were $30 per week, or very much higher than the earnings of highly trained operators on other operations.

"In one center the pay for cut-outs is three-quarter cent each, regardless of the fact that the labor required for different sizes and shapes of cut-outs varies greatly.

"These inequalities are due to the general custom—universal in the shoe industry except in a few plants—of fixing piece prices either by judgment based on records of performance, or by bargaining between the union or workers' representatives and the association or the manufacturer.

"The cure, as has been proved by results in a few plants, must be through job analysis of each operation with unit time study so that fair rates may be based not on guess but on fact.

"Scientific rate setting has been retarded in the shoe industry through lack of appreciation by both the manufacturer and the worker of the practical possibilities of such development in the complicated processes involved in the making of a shoe."

Hiring and Discharging Help.

Another striking subject discussed in the report is the rule, in some sections, that the employer cannot discharge his own help, and if, for instance, a special crew is brought in during a rush period, they cannot be discharged when the work sloughs off, but the work must be divided among them all. The report says: "A common rule in some organized centers in and out of New England is that the manufacturer is not permitted to lay off workers in slack seasons, but is forced to divide whatever work there is between all the workers. This, while apparently fair if the workers themselves desire it, results in increased costs. For example, during a rush season extra men were taken on to get out orders quickly. The rush season over, these extra men cannot be released, but must be continued on the factory payroll although normal factory operation has no need for their services. The result is that all workers are then placed on part time. Because they can only work part time, they demand a corresponding increase in their wages on the bases that otherwise their yearly earnings will decrease, as through conditions beyond their control they are not permitted to do enough work to earn a living wage at the old rates. Consequently wage rates tend to be fixed on a basis of part time work, resulting in higher costs and in the long run a still smaller volume of work.

Disposal of the Profit.

"Another policy which results in high costs and reacts on the workers themselves, is the hesitation of some bodies of workers to allow the manufacturer to reap any benefit from improved conditions. A manufacturer who, perhaps, through the installation of a new type of equipment, reduces the time necessary for a certain operation, is not permitted to reduce the piece price so that he may reap the benefit of some part of the saving which may have cost him the outlay of a considerable amount of capital. On the other hand, some manufacturers fail to appreciate the justice of sharing labor cost reductions with their workers. A proper perspective from each viewpoint would bring better results."

The committee further states: "This report is not adverse to unions. It simply asks from them as from shoe workers generally an understanding of the forces against which the manufacturer is contending and an attitude not of surrender but of appreciation of their own best interests and of the need of co-operation."

After this study of the field the committee concludes: "We are optimistic of the future of New England. We have faith in the spirit of New England enterprise. We cannot, however, rest upon faded laurels. We must always remember that the shoe industry in the United States is highly competitive, that success will come only to the efficient, and that the inefficient will be eliminated.

"If the community and the railroads will be reasonably co-operative, if the manufacturer will study his market, his selling costs and methods, and his operating efficiency, and if the employe will assist in a broad and mutually helpful consideration of wage and factory problems, New England has little to fear. There is nothing in her geographical location that should impose any considerable handicap upon her."

MORE AND MORE ATTENTION TO PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Physical education in schools is required by law in 33 states. Thirteen now have state physical directors of education and most of the states have definite requirements for the training of teachers and supervisors for this work. One school gave professional courses in physical education 15 years ago, but now 75 institutions offer two, three, or four-year courses, and post-graduate work is given in many schools. A summary of present state requirements for directors and supervisors of physical education has been issued by the department of the interior, bureau of education.

THE SALVATION ARMY APPEAL

An annual appeal which has always awakened a keen interest and a generous response from the people of Norwich is that which has come from the Salvation Army in its effort to provide for its budget. It is regarded as being an organization of great benefit to the community and there is appreciation of the fact that it is being conducted on a commendable business basis.

The Salvation Army has labored for years in this city, most of the time under serious handicaps. By its works by its policies and by its accomplishments it has steadily gained a warm spot in the hearts of the people. It is realized that its highly praiseworthy work is carried on for a large part in channels not otherwise reached. The value of such an organization is therefore not difficult to appraise. It is not only important but it is necessary, and the community which receives the benefit of its activities should be only too anxious to provide the wherewithal for it to do business, and do it in a manner that will produce the best results.

Whether the demands upon the Salvation Army are large or small, city needs just such an active force for better things. Most effectively does it devote its energies among certain individuals and in certain homes. These might or might not be reached by any other influence, but humanity in certain circumstances will appeal to such an organization when it would hesitate to seek help elsewhere. It occupies a place and serves a field that is all its own.

Faithful and conscientious administration in the past has created only the kindliest feelings for the Salvation Army. It is committed to the continuance of the most effective work possible in the future. With the machinery ready it looks to the people of Norwich to give it the financial encouragement. It means upholding an asset of the city and in the campaign about to be launched a generous response is most certainly justified. It is a work that all should be anxious to aid and keeping going full blast.

ABOLISHING COMMISSIONS

Speaking before the United States chamber of commerce on government waste, Secretary Hoover pointed to the fact that "we have grown to have more than 200 diffirent bureaus, boards and commissions employing several hundred thousand people. For the most part they have been thrown hodge podge into ten different executive departments under cabinet officers."

This is only one of the avenues through which economic reform is possible in the belief of the secretary of commerce, but while Senators Norris and Borah are training their guns on the federal trade commission it is possible that that is one of the boards or commissions that can be dispensed with.

This was a commission that was created for the purpose of getting facts concerning business methods as they affected the anti-trust laws. It was intended to be a non-political body and to work in the interest of business conditions and not politics. It was a creation of the Wilson administration which wandered far afield, and it is only within later days that it has been trued up to the course it was supposed to follow. While this reformation within the Commission has called for the approval of the Wilson administration supporters it has aroused the opposition of others. Those who believe it should function as intended are pleased. Those who have figured on its political activities are opposed.

This is a commission which costs the government over a million dollars a year. Its findings in some instances have been used by politicians for promoting their causes even though the department of justice has quickly found that the claims presented by it were not so. In the changes made the commission no longer can be used by the politicians. Therefore there are certain ones who have no use for it, and of course when it cannot be turned to their advantage it ought to be eliminated. Whether congress will regard it as a commission that should go remains to be seen but in the weeding out it promises to come in for such attention as may be devoted to the curtailments which have been recommended both by the president and the secretary of commerce.

MORE TROUBLE FOR FRANCE

It would seem to most people that France has enough trouble and plenty of problems without the new threat being made by the socialists to cause the downfall of Premier Painleve next week.

It is no secret that the socialists are opposed to all war. They are not alone in taking such a view, but there is a decided difference between a war of aggression and one of defense. The whole matter revolves about the situation in Morocco, and according to the premier's claim he is being criticized for something which was started by his predecessor and continued by him.

Apparently the socialists would have the French government do nothing in regard to the invasion of French Morocco by the Riffians. They would favor having Marshal Lyautey throw up his hands and surrender that territory to Abd-el-Krim and his forces. If that isn't the view they take the only alternative seems to be to oppose such an invasion, and opposition isn't to be furnished without making a warlike demonstration. Likewise in the matter of defense it is not always wise to wait until the enemy reaches the kitchen door before making a move for the broom or some other defensive weapon.

Marshal Layautey some time ago called for the aid which he knew he would require for the defense of the territory over which he has charge. Steps were taken to provide it and Premier Painleve coming into office during the midst of it has continued to furnish it. He has recognized the situation as it exists, given endorsement to the policies of his predecessor and takes what seems to be the only possible stand that could be expected under the circumstances.

Just what the socialists move will be or just what effect it will have is a bit uncertain but it will be an interesting development if they have the power and succeed in causing France to yield to the aggressive movement which has been launched by Abd-el-Krim who has apparently not figured on the support the socialists are trying to give him.

AMUNDSEN'S TEST

Perhaps one of the greatest demonstrations of faith in the flying machine possibly with the exception of the flight around the world is the attempt which is now being made by Roald Amundsen and his party in their effort to reach the north pole by airplane from Spitzbergen. Here is a case where the two machines are being driven to the summit of the world over arctic seas and ice for the purpose of reaching that point which few have trod. The plan is to make a landing and definitely determine the exact point and then get away for a return to civilization. It will mean the first flight of the kind if it is successful but it is fraught with grave dangers all of which are fully understood by the participants and all of which they have confidence they can avoid or overcome.

The crashing of a plane in that desolate region means an experience which few would seek. It is to be hoped that there will be no mishap of the kind, but for their own protection against such a development it is unfortunate that there could not have been carried some wireless equipment that would have permitted them to keep or get in touch with the outside world, or to communicate with MacMillan who will before long be scouring the region south of the pole.

With success crowning the Amundsen effort it should not be long before he is back in some country. He has headed into regions where he is more or less familiar and undertaken what he and others have tried many times before. Great dependence is being placed upon the air machines, and the expedition is going to be one of the greatest tests to which they have been put. Flying may revolutionize the form of transportation into the polar regions.

TAX CUTTNG

Interest attaches to the suggestions which are being offered by Senator Couzens, looking to a reduction in taxation, chiefly because of the fact that he has virtually given endorsement to the Mellon plan, after it has been well understood through his actions that about anything that Secretary Mellon advocated he could be expected ot be opposed to.

Senator Couzens considers it possible to make a tax cut of $400,000,000. He believes that incomes below $5,000 can be relieved of tax and he believes that there should be a cutting of the surtax by 50 per cent. in the higher amounts. He likewise favors the elimination of certain taxes which are included under the name of nuisance taxes.

He doesn't take exactly the same position that Secretary Mellon does but he comes close to it, and this in particular concerning the cutting of the surtax. He is not unmindful of the fact that the suggestion for the exclusion of all incomes under $5,000 will meet with much opposition. Such means the placing of the income tax on a much smaller number of people.

It is to be expected that there will be numerous plans offered for the meeting of the possible tax reduction. They will probably all of them have some merit but it will be necessary to sift out the best from the ideas advanced. The indications are pointing very strongly to the certainty of a further reduction in the federal taxes. Just how the cutting can best be done offers no small problem. It is a matter that should be determined after careful consideration and not by haphazard slashing without regard for what is actually involved.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

When Galileo was under the awful charge of advancing the theory that the earth rotated upon its own axis he was forced to recant under the penalty of death. But when he recanted it is reported that he said in an undertone, "yet it does move." When we see things openly espoused today that were only a few years ago condemned, we say that: "the earth moves." In a speech before the alumni, Yale's decision to form a department of dramatic art and to build a theater was pronounced by President Angell as one of the most important of the period. An expert from Harvard university has been employed to take charge of the work. This professor has gone to Europe to study theater building plans and other dramatic developments. Not only the physical but the intellectual world is moving. Suppose that Theodore Dwight Woolsey or Jeremiah Day had made such a proposal, what in all probability would have happened?

How far does struggle enter into the development of character and the attainment of success? Is the ability to struggle an asset that is equal to the possession of talent? Does the consciousness of having talent act as an inspiration to struggle? These and similar questions force themselves upon us as we consider the wonderful career of Mme. Schumann-Heink. One of the greatest vocalists now living she was still greater as a mother. One is forced to admire this great artist as she now enters upon her fiftieth year as a concert and opera singer. Any one acquainted with her career of grim determination amid obstacles which at times seemed insuperable must agree with this statement recently appearing in print: "She stands as a shining example of motherhood to all the world, as well as to her own seven children. Her story will interest all mothers, old or young."

As we pass into the latter part of May one's thoughts naturally gravitate in the direction of Memorial day. We cannot, as we certainly ought not, dodge the question of our attitude toward the old soldiers and what their organization stands for. As their ranks are rapidly diminishing, and those who remain show more and more the inevitable ravages of time, pointing to the not far distant day when all the heroes of the Civil war will be in their final resting place, what shall become of the Grand Army of the Republic? If the cause for which they fought and in which so many of them suffered and died is allowed to sink into oblivion it will indicate that patriotism has become a dead passion. And when such a day arrives the beginning of the downfall of this republic that was saved by their sacrifices will not be far distant!

When will the human race begin to realize that Almighty God is never mocked, or that "whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap?" From the time when human responsibility began men have been meeting their maker, and for the same length of time they have been paying the penalty. They have likewise been sowing to the wind and have been reaping the whirlwind, simply because this is the natural and ordinary process of law. We have recently had and are still having spectacular murder trials and do they not overwhelmingly prove the accuracy of this scriptual quotation? When will people learn that neither God nor the moral order can be struck in the face with impunity! There are very few cases of this sort that do not sooner or later get into the grip of statute law, and if guilt is established punishment is sure to follow. When shall we learn this lesson?

Among the immortal (?) paragraphs appearing in this column last week was one referring to a lad who had a new bicycle bought with money saved from selling papers. It brought out (or, at least was intended to bring out) the worthy trait of thrift inspired by a definite purpose. During the short period of his ownership the writer has observed another most admirable quality, that of generosity and unselfishness. He is letting all the lads of the neighborhood use his machine. He evidently finds pleasure in giving the other boys a good time. Does not this point to the interesting fact that, when grown up, this lad will be popular among his fellows? He is going to be happy in making other people happy. Other things being equal this boy is going to succeed in life. May we not learn a lesson from this ingenuous good nature?

In these days of economics when so much is made of the conservation of natural forces, one may reasonably ask the question, why do we not make the land more productive? The first answer that is likely to suggest itself is this: Because we have such a tremendous area in proportion to the size of our population. Still might we not supply other nations with products that they cannot raise because of climatic conditions? We certainly could make the present acreage more fruitful. Nothing surprises the American more when on his first tour abroad than to see how the peoples of Europe make "the waste places" bud and blossom as the rose." Neither in the British Isles nor on the continent do you see any big stretches of swales that can possibly be made productive. Foreigners who have recently settled among us are giving us a wholesome lesson in this respect. Do we realize what a mighty asset our land is?

In view of the change of ideals that has been going on in the world we have a right to ask what are the major forces? At first thought we are very likely to reply: Major forces are those that dominate and control. But when the set of forces that is uppermost in one age becomes secondary in the next we find that our answer must be modified. Back in the dim past the big brute who could swing a club more fiercely than anybody else beat his way into leadership. Fear made him the chieftain. But as the world grew in intelligence it began to be seen that it was a big brain rather than big biceps that made a chieftain big. The old major force had to step down. A new ideal had come as seen in ancient Greece. At length it was discovered that man had also a heart as emphasized by the Man of Galilee. Pure intellect standing alone is not a major force. Heart and brain are uniting as never before in saying that the brutal club shall no longer be used in controlling the actions of men.

One is quite bewildered when he thinks of the many forms of insurance that are in vogue today. The basic principle upon which insurance rests is perfectly sound. But does it ever occur to you that after all the real insurance of life is that protective agency with which man safeguards himself? He may have a policy in his safety box underwritten for $10,000, but suppose he throws caution to the winds, and recklessly exposes himself to all sorts of dangers, will his insurance policy save him from disease or accident? It may be helpful in paying his funeral expenses, out of which he will get little personal satisfaction. Accidents and diseases will come anyway and that justifies the insurance policy. And still if a man feels that it is a duty to live, he must ever have that paramount idea in mind and act accordingly.

GOVERNORS TO CONSIDER STATE EXPENDITURES

Prior to the World war, the federal government was responsible for approximately 40 per cent of the total governmental expenditures in the United States. In the last years the tables have been reversed. Now the federal government spends something like a third, States, counties and towns being now responsible for approximately two-thirds of the amount that the American people have to pay to run their various governments. Through the budget system and by the application of strict economy, the federal government has placed its finances on a businesslike basis. And it is for this reason that President Coolidge has stressed the opportunities that face the state and city governments of the county of joining, to a greater extent than hitherto, in the work of reducing the tax burden of the American taxpayer. For there is no more fertile field for such governmental expenditures than the state and city fields.

Topic for Governors

This is one of the principal topics which the governors will discuss at the proposed meeting of governors in Poland Spring the latter part of June. To what extent the states can reduce expenditures without interfering with proper governmenal activities of course is a matter upon which there may legitimately be a difference of opinion. That some reduction is possible, however, seems to be generally admitted, and it is not unlikely that some way may be found for bringing this about when the governors meet in conference to exchange views and experiences.

From Starke M. Grogan, chief statistician for statistics of states and cities in the bureau of census, the writer has obtained some pertinent figures illustrating the growth in expenditures, revenues and taxation of the states. The census bureau sends out each year a group of expert statisticians to the state capitols to marshal statistics on the expenditures, revenues and taxation of the states. The information thus gathered is tabulated and analyzed, with the result that the census bureau is in possession of accurate information regarding the fiscal affairs of the states.

Increase 142.3 Per Cent

The principal departments of the state governments, as given by the bureau of census are general government, protection to person and property, development and conservation of health, sanitation, highways, charities, hospitals and corrections, education and miscellaneous. An examination of the returns under this head show that the total general department expenses of the 48 states from 1915 to 1922, the last year for which statistics are available, increased from $379,030,094 to $918,269,400 or an increase of 142.3 per cent. The total per capita expenses other than public service enterprises increased from $3.85 in 1915 to $8.48 in 1922, or a rise of 120.3 per cent. In 1925 as in 1922 schools cost the greatest individual amount, requiring $1.48 from each citizen in 1915 and $3.05 in 1922. The per capita increase for highway construction seems to have been the largest individual increase, the rise being from $0.23 per capita to $0.98, or over 400 per cent.

In all, the states paid for governmental costs in 1922 $1,280,319,931, and for non-governmental costs, $570,070,047, by which is meant all expenditures except those paid on account of expense. Interest and outlays. Governmental costs for the New England states are given as follows: Maine $16,696,788, New Hampshire, $6,196,100, Vermont, $5,637,900, Massachusetts, $42,867,490, Rhode Island, $7,343,800 and Connecticut, $20,050,565; and for non-governmental costs, Maine, $2,307,492; New Hampshire, $2,627,366, Vermont, $502,954, Massachusetts, $53,687,114, Rhode Island, $810,840, Connecticut $8,180,085.

New England Statistics

Individual statistics for the New England states are given as follows: In Maine the percapita cost of government is $20.30 in New Hampshire, $11.65, in Vermont, $15.97, in Massachusetts, $10.81 in Rhode Island, $11.84, and in Connecticut, $13.97. Maine had in 1922 a per capita excess of governmental expenditures over revenue receipts of $3.38 and Vermont of $1.63. The other New England states in this respect seem to have registered no such excess. General departments cost in the aggregate in Maine, $10,371,786, or $13.41 per capita; in New Hampshire, $4,253,510, or $9.54 per capita; Vermont, $4,119,158, or a per capita of $9.54; in Massachusetts, $51,152,102, or a percapita of $7.54; in Rhode Island, $4,999,731, or a per capita of $8.06; and in Connecticut $14,844,333 or a per capita of $10.34. In 1922, the various New Eongland states had specified invested trust funds, sinking funds, etc., as follows: Maine, $3,671,047; New Hampshire, $4,015,330; Vermont, $3,271,566; Massachusetts, $97,112,162; Rhode Island, $4,684,355 and of Connecticut, $16,075,322.

Revenue receipts for all the 48 states totaled $1,159,527,168 in 1922 and for the New England states, $165,214,662 in Massachusetts with $51,329,717 and Connecticut respectively on the New England roster.

Average Revenue $68.29 Each

The revenues received by the National, state and local governments amounted in the aggregate to $7,425,145,000 or an average of $69.29 for each person. Of this total, $3,304,133,000 represents revenues of the federal government and the total revenues of the states, counties, cities and townships and all other local political units amounted to $4,220,912,000 or $78.70 per capita was derived from general property taxes, special taxes bringing in a total of $256,724,000.

The revenue of the national government increased 280 per cent in the ten-year period from 1912 to 1922, the increase being from $67,038,000 to $2,204,133,000. During the same period the revenues of the states, counties and incorporated places increased from $1,464,364,000 to $3,144,987,000, or an increase of 115 per cent.

Every move in the direction of a reduction in the cost of government whether federal, state or municipal, is a move also toward a cut in the cost of living. Consequently budget officers of the federal government are watching with interest the efforts which are now being made toward reducing the cost of our state governments.—Oliver McKee, Jr., in Boston Transcript.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Charles C. Hart, the newly-appointed United States minister to Albania, is a Washington newspaper correspondent of many years' standing and his appointment is regarded as in part a recognition of the importance of the active journalists of Washington in government affairs. Mr. Hart is a native of Indiana, where he was reared on a farm and early began his newspaper career. He was later a country publisher, then a soldier in the regular army, serving at various artillery posts around San Francisco. Soon after leaving the army he returned to the newspaper field. He held positions with newspapers at Muncie and Indianapolis, and from the latter place went to Spokane in 1904 to become city editor of one of the newspapers of that city. For the past fifteen years he has been stationed in Washington as corresponent for various Northwestern and Pacific Coast newspapers.

From Small Beginnings

Henry Martyn of Jack the Killer's Land.

Down in the rugged and rocky section of England known as Cornwall there lived, according to the old folklore tales, the famous Jack the Giant Killer, a young man who did incredible things that no one else could do. In that same section of England there was born near the end of the 18th century a modern man who likewise did things that were beyond belief, and accomplished much good for the world. Henry Martyn, the first great modern missionary to the Mohammedan people. Like Jack the Giant Killer, Henry Martyn was born of poor, obscure parentage, and brought up as a child with few opportunities. Nevertheless, he gained a fine education, lived a brilliant life, and became a most learned man, in spite of the fact that he died at the all-too-early age of 31.

Henry Martyn's humble father encouraged him to study and to attend schools, with the good result that the lad, grown older, found the way to enter the great university of Cambridge. There he won high honors. At the age of 22 he gratified his mother's ambition for him by becoming a preacher. In nine years he did such wonderful work that he may be said to have "set the world on fire." That work was done in the Orient, and it awoke the world to the need of carrying on missionary work among the Mohammedans.

It was in 1812, when Henry Martyn was 31 years old, and after he had worked for some seven years in India and Persia, that he set out from Persia to Constantinople, a trip that at any time would have been dangerous but that was doubly dangerous in his days. The Cornishman had by some inherent power been able to master the languages of Persia and of India. He could talk with the natives in their own language almost as well as a native. He had translated the New Testament into many Oriental languages, and with it other religious books. He had set up schools, visited the sick, comforted the dying. In fact, he had literally worn himself out with his unselfish work. He hoped to reach Constantinople and there find rest and treatment. Somewhere in the wild regions of Asia Minor he said to his bearers: "Put me down. I—I—I can't go farther. I wanted to do more."

There, among the savage hills and the dark-skinned natives, he died. His death, so far from home, in such a wild region, and at so early an age, awoke sympathy everywhere. Men spoke of his learning, his earnestness, his unselfishness, and at once a score of men set out to take up the work that he had begun. In the end, therefore, Henry Martyn did much more than Jack the Giant Killer ever thought of doing.

A Popular Ailment

A ten year old boy developed a rash and was sent to the doctor. The doctor said the malady was not serious or infectious and placed no restrictions on diet or exercise, but advocated staying out of school, thinking, apparently, that the boy's appearance might occasion false alarms among teachers and pupils.

Much of the "enforced" vacation was spent on a new bicycle. While on an errand to the grocery one afternoon the "victim" met a schoolmate who inquired as to his absence from school. On hearing the facts, he began to look envious and ejaculated: "Gee, how'd you get it? I wish I had it, too."

Use of a picture-story method of teaching reading has been tried with 10,000 children in Detroit schools. It is hoped that by this purposeful self-teaching children will make as much progress in five months as is ordinarily made in a year.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

Winning Souls.

The soul-winner speech is simple and easy, it is only Philip's "Come and see." The most important thing for a soul-winner to be able to say is just this: "I have found Him." It needs no powerful philosopher or logician, the quiet statement: He has done everything for me.

The man Jesus who found Philip, Our Lord is still calling men to Himself. He goes with every soul-winning disciple. Thus, however lonely, we may also go forth, as did the seventy, two and two. Business men are satisfied to get 10, 5 or even 2 per cent. returns from the capital, but no investment equals in returns the investment of a little time and courage in soul-saving. The interest is literally millions per cent. Indeed, if you remember the endless reaches of eternity, the interest is infinite. Was not Stephen's death well worth while if it helped in the conversion of Saul? Think of the souls Moody won and of their eternal joy in heaven, and estimate, if you can, the reward of that faithful Sunday school teacher who set Moody's feet in the way of life. It was a very obscure man that converted Spurgeon; for that one deed it was worth any man's while to have lived.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The East Side Drum Corps

Mr. Editor: I would like to say a few words about our East Side drum corps. I am very proud of the boys and I think they do wonderfully well. They made a good showing at the Palace Theatre Monday evening and the beautiful basket of flowers and the May basket they received show how pleased the East Siders were with them.

But while passing around the credit why not take off a little corner and give it to their instructor?

Their playing represents a lot of hard work and patience. It shows he is doing his part toward the amusement end of the East Side and I hope to continue to be

AN EAST SIDER.

The Old Orchard Champion

A champion you seldom know
Until you see him face a foe.
—Peter Rabbit.

It was Scrapper the Kingbird who first saw King Eagle high up in the blue, blue sky and at once gave warning. All the birds stopped their chatter and silence fell in the Old Orchard. Most of them got out of sight as much as possible. Only Scrapper the Kingbird remained out in the open. He kept his perch and watched the speck which he knew was King Eagle grow larger and larger.

Now, there was little for the feathered folk to fear from King Eagle. In the first place, he never had been known to visit the Old Orchard, and there was no reason to think that he would visit it now. Then, again, none of the feathered folk in the Old Orchard were big enough to tempt King Eagle to try to catch them. He wouldn't waste his time with such small folks as those living in the Old Orchard. So there was no real reason for this hiding and sudden silence. It was due to just a natural fear of one so big and strong and with such great claws and such a hooked bill.

Peter was so interested in watching King Eagle that he never once thought of daughter

You know that King Eagle has wonderful eyes. From so high up in the sky that he can hardly be seen from the ground he can look down and see everything, even so small a person as Danny Meadow Mouse. So it was that as he was passing high above the Old Orchard he looked down and saw something that interested him. It was Peter Rabbit. In order to see better Peter had come out from the shelter of the old Stone Wall and was sitting with his head tipped back, staring up at King Eagle. You see Peter had seldom had a chance for a good look at King Eagle and he was making the most of this one.

King Eagle also saw that none of those two-legged creatures called men were about. He knew that his two babies in their nest up on the Big Mountain would enjoy a Rabbit breakfast. So King Eagle began to swing in circles, and every time he came around he was a little lower. He was watching Peter Rabbit, and he was watching Farmer Brown's house, to see that no one appeared there.

Peter was so interested in watching King Eagle that he never once thought of danger. It didn't enter his head that King Eagle might come down there in the Old Orchard. So he was startled so that he felt as if he had almost jumped out his skin when Scrapper the Kingbird suddenly screamed, "Run, Peter! Run!" He had just sense enough to make a flying leap for the dear, safe old Stone Wall, and as he did so heard the whistle of air rushing between stiff feathers and he heard a scream of disappointment. King Eagle had shot down like a thunderbolt and had just missed Peter.

At the same time there was another scream. In fact, there was a succession of screams. From the safety of the old wall, Peter peeped out. There was Scrapper, the Kingbird actually attacking King Eagle and trying to drive him away, all the time screaming at him at the top of his voice. Somehow he managed to keep above King Eagle, darting down to strike him on the back or between the shoulders. He actually pulled one or two brown feathers out. Peter saw them floating down through the air.

King Eagle twisted and turned and did his best to get rid of Scrapper, but couldn't. All the time they kept rising higher and higher, until Scrapper was no more than a speck to his friends in the Old Orchard. At last they saw him leave King Eagle and start down for his favorite perch in the Old Orchard. King Eagle kept on his way and seemed glad to go, judging by the way he hurried.

All the feathered folk in the Old Orchard flew to meet Scrapper and tell him how wonderful they thought him and Jenny Wren was one of the first. But the champion of the Old Orchard paid no attention to them. Straight to his favorite perch he flew and began to catch flies, just as if nothing at all had happened.

DANCES AND SONGS IN GLEE CLUG PROGRAMME

A large and appreciative audience applauded the Norwich Free Academy Girls' Glee club which gave its annual concert Friday evening at Slater Hall. The greater part of the programme, which opened at 8 o'clock, was devoted to a cantata, Three Springs, by Paul Bliss. The stage was prettily decorated in palms and apple blosoms and the soloists of the cantata were attractively costumed. Following were the soloists of the cantata and the programme of the concert:

Viola Hill, Song of the Blue Spring; Alberta Boardman, Dance of the Blue Spring; Marian Geer, Song of the White Spring; Elizabeth Zumbro, Dance of the White Spring; Charlotte Brooks, Song of the Gold Spring; Lois Latimer, Dance of the Gold Spring; Amy March, The Butterfly's Song; Ruth Eaton, Song of the Three Little Falls.

On Monday, May 25th, at the Central Baptist church, all the workers of the Salvation Army drive will gather at a supper given by the ladies of the church.

The Salvation Army appeals to the people of Norwich and vicinity for contributions to this fund. It appeals to all our churches and civic bodies to help in making this one day campaign a success.

The Salvation Army comes to the succor of some families who, in order to preserve their self respect, would rather go hungry than appeal for charity. Many times it tides such families over a critical period, until they again become self supporting. In that manner it has succeeded in holding together families who would otherwise have broken up and separated. The good done by this religious and humanitarian organization has made its mark upon the citizens and found a place in the hearts of the people. Therefore, the interest taken by charitable people in the work of the Salvation Army is becoming more marked every day and many of the citizens have enlisted with sincerity and enthusiasm in the coming campaign.

NEW CAR BOUGHT FOR DEPUTY FIRE CHIEF

A new deputy chief's car for the Norwich fire department has arrived at the Rinella-Leeney Motor Car Co. at 41 North Main street and is to be seen in their show window. The car is an Oldsmobile, but is not yet ready for service.

The arrival of the car in the city was the first public intimation that the fire commissioners had made such a purchase, and as the financial report of the department showed a balance of $2.90 at the end of the year the financing for the purchase had apparently been arranged in advance of the appropriations to be made in the city meeting, though this could not be confirmed Friday night through the fire commissioners who are Alderman Edward Crooks, Councilmen Frank Rinella and William H. Aldrich.

We are told that nothing in the universe is wasted, yet about nine-tenths of the efforts spent in literary work are unaccounted for.

HOURIGAN POST AUXILIARY WILL SELL BUDDY POPPIES

Members of Richard Hourigan Post, auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will be on the streets today (Saturday) selling the buddy poppies.

The origin and purpose of buddy poppy is explained as follows:

"When the V. F. W. resolved to make the poppy the Memorial flower to be worn each decoration day in reverent and affectionate remembrance of those who had passed on after serving their country in time of war, we realized that so great an undertaking could not be accomplished in one year or two, but year by year since the great war the movement has spread until it is now recognized whenever the Stars and Stripes float over the citizens of our great country. All the poppies used in the V. F. W. sales are made by disabled and needy veterans and the entire proceeds from the sale of these memorial emblems are devoted to the relief of our war disabled and to meet conditions of distress among ex-service men and their families occasioned by sickness or unemployment.

"In hospitals in nine different states our disabled and needy comrades have been working to produce the millions of scarlet flowers which will gleam in significant tribute in the buttonholes of all America on Memorial day. Buddy Poppy is the name the men themselves have given to the flowers they make, and Buddy Poppy is on the label of each flower. That name is our trade mark registered at the U. S. patent office in Washington.

"Let the Buddy Poppy symbolical of the blood shed by our comrades in foreign lands and seas in the defense of our nation's cause, be worn by every comrade and patriotic American."

McCord, patroness of the classes and the work Friday was most complete.

The concluding march of the afternoon was led by little Misses Natalie Cronin and Barbara Fellows and at dismissal a surprise was sprung upon Miss Estlow, which proved most gratifying to her. The surprise was a gift from members of the children's and high school classes, the former class presenting her a beautiful May basket filled with lilies of the valley and various individual gifts and the latter class making Miss Estlow a present of a large box of fancy chocolates.

The gifts were deeply appreciated by Miss Estlow who thanked her pupils for their gifts, after which she announced that classes would be resumed in Norwich next fall and that she would look forward with pleasure to the day when she would again be with her Norwich friends to enjoy many more happy parties like those held during the past six months.

ACADEMY LOSES LOOSE PLAYED GAME TO WESTERLY HIGH SCHOOL TEAM, 12 TO 6

Baseball as it should not be played was duly demonstrated by the Academy team Friday afternoon at Westerly when the Academy presented Westerly with a 12 to 6 victory. The game was taken by Westerly in the seventh inning when a half dozen errors by the Academy infielders gave the Westerly team 5 big healthy runs. This inning was the worst exhibition of baseball ever staged. The Academy infielders booted easy hit balls, dropped flys and threw to the bases without any sense of direction whatsoever. It was a complete reversal of form from the winning ball that the local team has played during the season.

Mcgowan, Caron and Hinrichs were the three that contributed most liberally to the Academy's misplays each being credited with three errors. The pitching was not much better with the exception of Moye Jarvis who pitched winning ball but if he had been Walter Johnson he would have been unable to win with the support accorded by the Academy players.

Westerly was not by any means a world-beating team and the only reason that the won was that they made a few less errors than the Academy. Neither team played good baseball, far from it, there were dumb plays by both teams that resulted in runs and according to the score there was not an earned run in the game.

Johnny Greene dropped his first outfield fly in the third inning but he managed to convert it into a triple play and should not be credited with the error. It was the play was made possible, however, to show what it was all about. After a consultation of umpires, coaches and scorers it was finally agreed upon that a triple play was good, it was one of those plays that would never happen if the base runners had known what to do. When the batsman struck out a high fly to Greene in center, Sonnby was prepared to make the throw to the plate after the catch but he forgot to catch the ball and make a quick recovery, threw home to Hinrichs who touched the plate for a force out of the man on third who thought the ball had been caught. Hinrichs threw to Jarvis who tagged a runner off third then threw to second and McGowan touched the bag for the third out. There was so much running around and so much touching of bases and tagging of runners that the umpires and everybody in general lost track of the plays. It was one of those cases where everything happened at once and everybody doing something whether right or wrong, a situation that does not occur once in a thousand years.

Eddie Busch pulled one of the prize bone plays of the afternoon when with Burke on first and two out he hit a scoring drive to right field. It was a hit in any league but Busch looked down to first with that self-satisfied smirk all over his face but he soon lost it when he found that the ball had beaten him to the bag by about four feet, the right fielder having thrown him out at first.

Jarvis fanned 8 men and was nicked for 9 hits, a large number going for hits should have been fielded, especially through the shortstop position. Larsen pitching for Westerly struck out five m eand allowed only four hits, the Academy runs being made on errors. Larsen, however was very liberal with his passes giving out three and hitting two other batters. The score:

MISS WETHERED WINS TITLE IN EXTRA-HOLE MATCH

Troon, Scotland, May 22—(A. P.)—Before the largest gallery that ever saw women battle at golf on this side of the Atlantic, Miss Joyce Wethered won her third British ladies' open golf championship by beating Miss Cecil Leitch, three times holder of the title, at the thirty-seventh hole. It was the hardest fought struggle in the history of the British women's golfing classic. The thirty-six hole final match was squared at the completion of the first round, and again at the end of the second.

Fighting valiently against a girl ten years her junior, Miss Leitch played a hard, brilliant game, squaring the match at the thirty-sixth after being dormy two down, only to lose by a putt at the thirty-seventh. On this hole she was short with her approach and needed two putts after she got on. While Miss Wethered also was shot, her run-up shot was almost dead to the pin and she sank her first putt for a four, winning the match and the right to retain the title of champion another year.

STING WINS METROPOLITAN HANDICAP AT BELMONT

New York, May 23—(A. P.)—Sting, record-breaking colt, owned by James Butler, won the Metropolitan handicap, feature event of the Belmont Park opening, by two lengths. Shuffle Along was second and Serenader, third.

Sting's time for the mile was 1:37, one and three-fifths seconds behind the record. Sarazen, conquerer of Espinard in the international races last fall, and favorite, was ridden by Earl Sande, victorious Derby jockey, but finished seventh.

Sting has established a world record for a mile and seventy yards and two track marks in the past two weeks. Browning piloted him to his Metropolitan victory.

KAPLAN KNOCKS OUT SULLIVAN IN FIFTH ROUND OF FIGHT AT WATERBURY

Waterbury, May 22.—(A. P.)—Louis Kid Kaplan, of Meriden, world's featherweight champion, knocked out Steven Kid Sullivan of Brooklyn, N. Y., in the fifth round of their scheduled ten round bout here tonight.

The champion was far superior to Brooklyn boxer in every round. Kaplan rushed out of his corner in the opening round and after a short exchange of his lightning-like blows, he sent Sullivan down for the count of three. Sullivan rose and managed to cover up until the bell rang.

Kaplain opened a cut on Sullivan's lip in the second round which bled continually for the remainder of the bout and which caused the former junior lightweight champion plenty of trouble. The Meriden boxer continued to pile up a big lead with his fireshot blows that were telling on the New Yorker.

The champion easily took the third round although Sullivan improved in his ring work and he managed to ward off the fast flying mitts of the Meriden, Conn., boxer.

Sullivan went down for the count of nine in the fourth round and he was in bad shape when the bell sounded and he was saved from a knockout. Kaplan hit the Brooklyn boxer at will in this stanza and the fans started to leave the park, knowing that it would be only a matter of a few minutes when the bout would be over.

The bell started off the fifth round and Kaplain rushed out from his corner and hit Sullivan with a right hook to the jaw and the Brooklyn boxer fell against the ropes. Kaplain witnessed the plight of his opponent and he readily lifted him from the canvass with the aid of the referee.

A crowd of more than 5,000 fans witnessed the second outdoor show of the season here.

Sheik Leonard of Wallingford and Tracey Ferguson, also of Wallingford, fought a six round draw.

Frankie O'Brien, of Hartford knocked out Rocco Segretto, of Bristol, in the first round.

Eddie Leonard of Waterbury won the decision over Laurie Rich, of New Haven in six rounds.

Young Materio, of Bristol, won the dicision over Young Clarke of Waterbury in six rounds.

WINDHAM PLAYS MANCHESTER TEAM THIS AFTERNOON

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, May 22.—Beginning with the Bulkeley game in this city next week, Coach T. A. Callaghen's Windham High school nine will, after a rather extended sojourn abroad, shift the scene of its operation to the local ballwick for the remainder of the season with one exception. Saturday, May 30, the Crimson and Blue travels to New London for a return game with the Chapman Tech. The coming mid-week clash with the Bulkeley diamond array has aroused more than passing interest in this locality, local fans undoubtedly being of the opinion that despite the recent defeat at the hands of Norwich Free Academy the Whaling Town institution from which emanated Johnny Dwyer now of Fordham has one of the classiest schoolboy teams in the state.

The remaining games on the schedule to be played here are with the Clerks, Manchester, Stafford and Meriden.

The locals entrain tomorrow noon for Manchester where the first of a series of two games will be played with the Silk Town high school. The feeling existing between the two schools at the present time is none too good.

Captain Meikle one of the best all around athletes developed at Windham who has been absent from school for an extended period due to illness has returned to "the hill." The local leader, however will not be able to return to the lineup this year.

ACADEMY TO PLAY FAST HARTFORD HIGH TODAY

The Academy after being beaten by Westerly team in the Interscholastic league will tackle the fast Hartford High team this afternoon at the Academy Campus at 3 o'clock. The team yesterday played loose baseball but with all the errors out of their system a strong comeback may be expected this afternoon. Coach Brigham will start Johnny Greene, the speed ball pitcher against the Hartford team, playing Jarvis in the outfield.

It was originally planned to send the Jewett City boy against Hartford but in the Westerly game Greene after pitching one inning was relieved and Jarvis filled out the game. Greene's fast ball was not so effective against the Westerly team and he was a little wild but would have pulled through if he had been given any decent kind of support.

Hartford comes here with only two defeats chalked up against it for the season and is in line for the state title. If the Academy wins today it will be the second team of title calibre that the local boys have trimmed. The game is called for 3 o'clock.

TWO GAMES AT STORRS COLLEGE THIS AFTERNOON

(Special to The Bulletin)

Storrs, May 22.—Two Connecticut Aggie baseball teams will swing into action tomorrow at Storrs, when the varsity meets the strong University of New Hampshire nine and the freshment entertain the Springfield college yearlings. The freshmen will play first, starting at 12.30, while the varsity will take the field at 3 standard time.

Oscar Nanfeldt will start on the mound for Connecticut, with Wardle doing the backstopping. Dole has made but one shift in his lineup, sending Gilbert to right field in place of Swem. These two men have been waging a battle for this position since the start of the season, and as yet neither can be said to have permanently won the berth. The Aggie lineup: Ahert (capt.), 3b; Schofield, 2b; Makofski 1b; O'Brien, ss; Wardle, c; Tiernan cf; Seymour lf; Gilbert rf; Nanfeldt p; Leary and Sullivan will umpire.

Mrs. Hurd Wins Golf Title

Philadelphia, May 23—Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd won the woman's golf championship of Philadelphia, defeating Mrs. Ronald H. Barlow, nine times champion, 3 and 1 over the Huntingdon Valley course.

Mrs. Hurd thus adds the Philadelphia title to her collection of three Scotch, three British, three American and two Canadian national crowns, as well as the Boston championship.

Corbin Rex Sox at Danielson

The baseball attraction in Danielson for Sunday will be the fast Corbin Red Sox who will clash with DeForest's Danielson town team. Manager DeForest promises the fans a real attraction as he will have an imported battery of note and will give the Corbins a tough battle.

STONINGTON BEATS CHAPMAN IN 13-INNING GAME

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, May 22.—H. Cregan's single in the 13th inning with the bases full decided the Stonington-Chapman Tech game here this afternoon, with the former nine on the long end of a 5 to 4 score. Both teams were evenly matched, and for the entire period of playing time both teams turned in good fielding plays and hit timely in the pinches. This was especially true of the Stonington batters who although outhit 10 to 6, made use of every one of their hits.

For six innings the teams went along at a smooth pace, neither nine exerting itself to break into the run column but content with holding its opponent even. The first sign of a break came in the seventh and the locals bagged three runs. Up until this time the Stonington batters went hitless. A single by R. Cregan breaking their hitless spell. But when the Brown and White nine tied up the game and forced it to go into extra innings they took advantage of every blow. Errors by Chapman Tech at this critical moment lost the game for them after they had it apparently sewed.

Although Courbois doubled to right in the opening inning, and had he not loafed along he would have easily completed the circuit if not three bases on the blow. But nothing came of this hit. The hits made by either team were very way and far between. MacDonald singled in the fifth and M. Brown doubled in the sixth but nothing came of this hitting. But the healthy seventh found Tech breaking the long scoreless spell scoring three runs on three hits. J. Brown hit to center, errors brought him over the plate, for the first run while the second was made after the Stonington first sacker erred on McCaffery's toss to him. Gero and Everts both hit safely and two runs came over the platter.

Stonington made a final stand in the last inning and helped by a costly error committed by Everts in left field for Chapman Tech prolonged the game long enough to allow them to win out eventually. Everything happened with two outs. Then Stowell walked, Foote was also given free trainsportation while Cregan scored the first tally with a timely single to center which scored Stowell. Everts dropped Shea's fly in left field and Foote and H. Cregan scampered across the plate with the runs which forced the game into extra innings.

In the 13th frame Aquillo mussed up Emmet's grounder and Main singled. Emmet's sacrificed, Stowell walked McCaffery sacrificed, Stowell walked but Foote popped up to the catcher and with two outs, H. Cregan singled to left, Emmett scoring and when Everts held the ball too long Main scored with what proved to be the winning run.

Chapman Tech made a game come back to the extent of one run, but foolish base running when the players were hitting the ball caused them to lose out in the final inning. Courbois led off with a single and stole second. Aquillo was out to second but J. Brown singled to center scoring Courbois. But Brown died stealing and when MacDonald fanned it ended the hopes for a Red and Black victory.

SOCONY TAKES FALL OUT OF COAST GUARD

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, May 22.—The Standard Oil heavy siege guns pounded the nine from the Section Base of the Coast Guard fleet into submission and the Oilmen easily walked away with the contest by a 9 to 1 score. A home run by Artie Couillard and a triple and two singles by Barry were the features in the hitting end of the Socony victory. This game completed the second week of the City league twilight games.

Almost all of the scoring made by the Standard Oil nine came with two outs. In each instance heavy and clean hitting brought in run after run and the Standard Oil nine easily went into the fore to stay. Barry's triple in the second provided for the first run. While in the third inning, Artie Coillard smacked one on the nose to deep center field with two outs and no one on the sacks for a home run. Additional hitting brought two more runs across the plate, while the next two frames were also fruitful five runs in all being the result of campaigning.

Steve Posick twirled a nice game, while Morrison was no mystery to the Socony batters who lost no time in hitting his offerings to all corners of the lot. The Socony infield performed to perfection, while the fielding of fly balls by the gobs was good. Score:

Settin' the Flags

This ain't Joe Brown. It is't. Why Joe!
You're bent 'nd gray, 'nd go so slow
I thought 'twas some old man.' But here—
Forgot I'd been away ten year.
I had to come, Joe, had to come,
For one more thirtieth o' May.
To see the boys, 'nd help 'em some
In keeping Decoration Day.
But whar ye bound for this time, Joe?
To see the flags? We'll both on's go
'Nd mark the 'ead o' the march that done,
'Nd call the roll of the boys that's gone,
Say, Joe, you'n me have come so near
The still place where
They're camped, that we can almost hear
Em answer their names over there!
Ther's just ten graves, I r'member 'em all—
Ten men that's answered detail call.
Five flags fur me 'nd five fur you.
What's all the rest fur? Ten'll do!
'Nd whar's the rest o' the boys today?
Ther' should be twelve on's, counting you.
I hope they ain't the way they uster do!
'Taint right! They all had orter come
To mark the graves for 'Morial Day.
No matter 't work is pushing some!
Why, Joe! You're crying! What ails ye, Joe?
What's that! Good Lord! That can't be so!
All dead but us? Why, Joe— But that,
That couldn't be, outsire o' war,
Did fall in battle? Yes—you're right,
We've all been in a long, hard fight,
They fell in battle? Yes, that's so!
'Nd that's the way we've got to go!
An' Joe, I'll bet
Not one o' them boys ever let,
The colors outen 'is sight!
Well, Joe, we've got these flags to set.
Here's ten fur me 'nd ten you keep;
Ther's two of us in wakin' yet,
To stan' guard over them that sleep!
But which of us two, Joe, d'ye s'pose,
Will get the flag fur the next that goes?

The Old Mare

These here new fangled auto cars are handy, it must be confessed,
But when it comes to pleasure, I enjoy the old bay mare the best,
When I go out joy yidin' with my best gal sittin' by my side
I know that I will git back hum, for my old mare is true and tried.
She never makes me walk nine miles to find a country blacksmith shop,
Where I can get her tires repaired, I'm not afraid of any cop.
She's got it forty ways upon a snortin', wheezin', gas machine,
And she's the best old sparking plug that me and my gal ever seen.
Her carburetor works just rate—her coolin' system is immense,
And you kin run her all day long and at a very slight expense,
She's never laid up for repairs, she doesn't have to wear no tag,
She never plunges in the ditch, for she's a very docile nag.
The speed laws she don't violate and I have never yet got pinched,
For safe and sane enjoyment, I have surely got the method clinched.
No folks that walk are cussin me, I don't scare 'em out of their boots
By runnin' up behind 'em quick and lettin' out a lot of toots.

Someone Who Cares

We strive just a little bit harder, I've found,
If only there's someone who cares.
We dream of success, and we climb round by round,
If only there's someone who cares.

Would one struggle so hard if just left to himself,
Would he slave night and day for more self;
I fancy he'd put all his dreams on the shelf,
If it wasn't for someone who cares.

What could make life and its toil worth the while
Or what could replace all our tears with a smile,
Could there be recompense for this sorrow and gulle,
If it wasn't for someone who cares?

I Hear You Calling Me

I hear you calling me before the break of day, to milk the cows and slop the pigs. Why can't you let me lay and take the rest I've won- But ho! Before the rise of sun I hear you say, "Chores must be done. Now hurry up and don't be long." I hear you calling me. I got a note today, which says my taxes I must pay. If not, the sheriff man will come and take my wife and me along w here board and room is provided free; not named but numbered I shall be, and iron bars only will I see. I hear you calling me. My interest is due, I'm told the cash was only lent, its use will cost me 10 per cent; and if I tell them I am broke, they get a judgment on my note; another mortgage I must float. It seems like I've been made the goat that's what they're calling me. And when I go to town, I like to do my business right, but I must needs keep out of sight or trade where it is dark at night, for if I'm seen in broad daylight I hear them calling me to pay them what I owe, for dry goods and for groceries for oil and gas for my tin Lizz. I never can go on a spree' cause every business man I see is busy calling me. Will they be calling me, I wonder, when this life is done? Shall I still hear that same old song? Oh, when with pesky debts I'm thru, I'll hear a song that's really new, and live where everything is free, and no duns in my mail there'll be?

June 5—Social Corner Meeting at Union Baptist Church, East Killingly.

ANSWERS AND INQUIRIES

E. M. R. C. P.: Letter sent as requested.

GREETINGS FROM ELANORE

Dear Social Corner Sister and Editor: Will write a few lines this nice day and say I too would like a pin.

Neighbor Eveready: Was very sorry that I could not help at the last meeting. Was taken sick that day with the grip but am feeling a little better now.

Effie M: Thank you for the card of sympathy. It was nice of you to think of me in my sorrow.

ELEANORE (Aug. 21.)

LIFE IN BIG CITIES AND ELSEWHERE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: First permit me to thank you for your kindness in giving me a niche in the Social Corner.

It is great to be with old friends again. I wish I could live among you and attend some of your meetings. But few of us can have everything we wish. To be in the Social Corner is the next best thing, and, well—that is something!

Some years ago I lived near Norwich. Business, that hard master who all slave for, sent me, bag and baggage, to the greatest of cities, New York.

"Great" it is, but believe me sisters, it too has limitations—limit of space for one thing. Everything is so crowded, and oh ,those subways! You would think there wasn't another inch of space elsewhere in the country. And what beautiful acres and acres of untrampled lands there are in these good old United States! Even Connecticut has a few. New York state has a few open fields too; but the people on that blessed isle of Manhattan will huddle together. Hundreds of families in one building. Appaling numbers for one roof to shelter, and there are hundreds of these buildings. One might suppose this a communistic ideal, "One for all and all for one." But—?—As per usual, strife results. Everyone seems to have a pet grievance either against the janitor, landlord, someone's phonograph, pianola, cat, dog or child; a neighbor upstairs or down, the telephone or elevator, or some other thing.

Some apartment houses are palatial affairs. Others are bad, very bad, nothing but hovels. The others, the indifferent kind, are legion. Most people are "splendidly" miserable in the best of them. The daily adventure of living is taken out of their hands. Worse, they pay an enormous price to be deprived of the main interests in life. There is no room for books, flowers, music, big comfortable fireside chairs, etc. Few even have a fireplace. There is no room for guests, scarcely enough for the family. The kitchen is just a hole in the wall, a mere closet. An "honest-to-goodness" meal can't be prepared in them. And the children, the poor dears, there is no room at all for them! There is not even room enough for the family skeleton. No one can be himself. If he tried that stunt, he would instantly be thrown out.

These makeshift homes, I am afraid, are largely responsible for the "Jazzmania" of our times. Facilities for a homey good time are so utterly lacking, that a good time is sought elsewhere; and cabarets, dance halls, and sensational movies make poor substitutes.

Thank goodness I am again in God's country. Miles now separate me and mine from the maddening crowds. Instead of looking out at prison-like stone and mortar, we look out at green lawns, beautiful trees and flowers.

My city friends have dubbed me a "hopeless small towner." But I notice, the small town woman has it all over her "big city" sister. Usually she is much happier, and her life, in many respects, is less strenuous. Her home is a "home" not merely a place to sleep in. All the things that make this business of living interesting are in it. There is room for everything. Even the family skeleton can be comfortably tucked out of sight. And the children, how they can blossom forth! How different is their outlook on life!

We have to band it to our small town sisters. They do lead useful, well ordered lives. It is they who preserve the family unit for the nation. From their homes come the backbone people of the country, the safest kind to carry on our generations.

"Provincial," I hear the New Yorker say.

But let me whisper it, sisters, there is nothing more provincial than the average New Yorker. He thinks his city is the whole U. S. A. Nothing exists outside of it. The million wonders of nature are sealed books to him. On the surface, he is the polished "Big Guy," but inwardly he is a little narrow fellow. The small towner, on the other hand, may look insignificant on the outside, but the inside of him is as big as—The Universe!

Nema: Thank you for your hearty welcome. Evidently, "Sherlock Holmes" is also among your treasures. Since you've read the Encyclopedia—hope it was not the Britannica—from cover to cover, you must have found that there is often a brook or a hurst after lyn. Perhaps Mary France can tell you about a bridge and the 24th of May, 1882. As for the river, from the drawbridge to the ground, it shelters all sorts of craft, from ocean going yachts to bird-like sailboats. During summer, warships and the N. Y. Yacht club's fleet anchor there. A famous regatta also takes place there.

Kitty Lou: Your reputation as an authoress of Belle Lettres has traveled far.

Mary France: Glad to hear you are better. Hope you are now chipper enough to do a Highland fling.

Marigold, Whirlwind, Theoda, Wiltwick, Huldy: Perhaps I've gotten you a bit mixed, but this is a sort of first "How do you do?" You may not know it, but you have been introduced to me. So have other Corner sisters. Unfortunately I'm stupid at remembering names. Therefore, as this is, so to say, my debut in the Social Corner, I shall say "How do you do?" to one and all.

IRVA LYNN.

ANTS MEAN ROTTED WOOD

Dear Social Corner Editor and Friends: It has been a long time since I have written, but with a full page each week there was no need of my writing.

I said "present" to the roll call and will say the same to housecleaning. I commenced Easter Monday and eight days finished the housecleaning, but the washing that goes with it is more than the housecleaning. Last week Friday I got everything done.

I have been looking to see what the sisters would say was good for ants. I will tell my experience with them. In 1896 we bought our first home and when it came warm I had little red ants and big black ones, so everything had to be set in water. I put a table in the pantry and put the legs in water and had no bother. The next spring we put a new roof on our house, raising it a story higher, covered it with steel and then took out the old roof and I lived there ten years and never saw an ant after that. So the ants must have lived in that roof for the home of the ants is in dead wood. So the sisters who are bothered may find that the shingles are rotted or that there is rotten wood somewhere.

I am sorry to see so many of the good sisters "going Homa" and leaving us.

Sister Wrinkle was a good soul always at our meetings and we miss her. I saw in last week's Bulletin the death of Bettie Brown. I never met her many times but she was nice to meet. You felt as if you had met a friend when you met her. Not all that way. She had a double in North Windham but I cannot find out that they are related in anyway, but both personalities were the same.

This week I have been very much interested in a new sidewalk built across the street. I know how they do it now. It takes lots of cement, sand and hard work.

I would like a Social Corner pin if they are not all gone, and will thank the editor in advance. I think it very nice of our editor to furnish us with pins and not take any pay. It seems there is one thing money will not buy—a Social Corner pin.

We have had our last meeting for the summer at Franklin hall, Willimantic. I am sorry for I like meeting there. It is such a good place with plenty of room for all. Now it will be picnics and unless there is a picnic we cannot go. I hope we have our annual June picnic at Versailles as we have had for two years. It is a nice place for a picnic on the banks of that pond. It is nice under the trees and central for all. I know it is hard for Student and the rest of them, but Student seems to have neglected us for a long time. We would love to see her up to Club No. 1's meetings when they start again in October. Hope she wont be so busy next fall as now.

Wish you all a delightful summer and a nice vacation.

ROSE LEE.

COOKIES

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: As there have been several recipes on cookies, of late, I would like to add another, which I have had good success with. Some of the former writers may have a copy already cut from the Corner page, which was contributed by our late sister, Aunt Mary, who was Mrs. C. T. Bishop of Jewett City. I find results more favorable, when recipes call for the exact amount of flour as Sister Neighbor Eveready suggests. Cookies are always handy to have in the pantry, especially when there are children in the family. In fact we, the grownups, can also make use of a cookie in between meals.

My thoughts go back with pleasant memories, to my early school days, when on return from school I wanted "something to eat" my mother would hand out a "cookie" quite often and outdoors would go again, in favorable weather, and enjoy the little round sugar of molasses cake. There are so many different ways of making cookies, it seems as if we can all find some favorite. Aside from the usual tract flavoring, lemon or vanilla extract flavoring, may be added either a few currants, raisins or caraway seed to the batter. The plain sugar cookies are much improved by sprinkling granulated sugar over the top, after they are cut and ready for the oven. One of the successes for a good looking cookie is to place them far enough apart in the baking pan, so they will not join together when baked, also do not have too large a size for a cookie cutter. In the recipes that call for enough flour to make the dough easy to roll should be handled as little as possible, with plenty of flour on the board, and rolling pin, also dip the cutter into flour each time before cutting the dough to prevent sticking. The oven should be rather hot and the process of baking watched. I always dust some flour into the greased pan before I set the cookies in place. This helps to prevent burning on the under side, before the top is sufficiently done. Recipes that call for "drop" cookies, should be applied by a tablespoon, but not over generous, or the cookie will be too thick in the center to bake well. Recently I saw a piece in the paper about some of the favorite "eats" of President Coolidge. Among the list a recipe for filled cookies and although I have not tested the same as yet, I will enclose a copy that others may try.

Coolidge Cookies: 1 egg, 1 cup sugar 1-2 cup of butter, 1-2 cup milk, 3 1-2 cups of flour, 2 heaping teaspoons of cream of tartar and 1 teaspoon of soda. For the filling 1 1-2 cups of chopped raisins, 1-2 cup of sugar, 1 tablespoon of flour, ½-2 cup of water. Cook until the mixture thickens, roll thin, and place between two pieces of cookie batter.

Aunt Mary's Drop Cookies: 1 cup thick sour cream, 1 cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 level teaspoon of soda sifted into 2 cups of flour 1-2 teaspoon of salt, nutmeg or lemon (I prefer lemon.) Place a raisin in the center of each one after dropping on tin, and sift granulated sugar over them. Bake quickly.

KEROSENE OIL FOR ANTS

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: I have been reading all the nice letters sent in the past few weeks with great interest, and though a few lines from K. W. would be one of them, but have put it off as I am apt to do. There is so much to take one's time these days that we must neglect something.

The sister who wrote on the subject of reducing I think has the right idea. It means considerable to keep a family eating, and if they can get along by just chewing the food it won't take much to keep them, and I think it would help in giving the housekeeper more time to herself. But I know that the average person does not chew the food as much as they should, and I think many will get help from the sister's writing. A large percent of the people fill their mouths and wash it down with drink. That is not the proper way and in some way or other they get it back, have the doctor and he can't tell them the cause. So that is perhaps the beginning of a serious sickness, and they can't remove the cause which they don't know. If they will read the sister's piece they will get a little help on the subject. The suggestion is good for the thin person as well as the fleshy one, to chew our food more.

Rural Delivery: I am still quite well thank you, and I hope by this time that you are all through housecleaning.

To keep ants away I think there is nothing better then kerosene oil for I have tried that and get rid of them.

Kingston Brown: I thought you lived in Danielson and was a member of Club 4, but think I have made a mistake. Please give me some sign through the Social Corner so I may know who is who.

What a wonderful faculty the editor has of giving a heading to all the pieces sent in. Also I see that he is giving a membership pin to all writers. I would like one and please accept my thanks for same.

GREETINGS FROM HARRY E

Dear Social Corner: Am sending a little poem which I think is cute for publication when there's space and also just writing a few lines to ask for a pin.

Barbara: Shall be looking for a pin next time instead of a yellow bow whether it is at an auction or some where else so hurry and write for one.

Rural Delivery: That cake isn't made yet. Are you still waiting?

HARRY E.

INTEREST WHETTED WHEN WRITERS ARE KNOWN

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I am not waiting so long before I write this time. I saw a letter in Saturday's Bulletin from White Clover and as I know her I read her letter with very much pleasure. Of course all the letters are read with pleasure but when one knows who is who that makes a difference.

There are only a few of the writers whom I know.

Would be glad to have a pin if I may. I thank you!

White Clover: Howdy! I wish to thank you for the very nice birthday card received. Wasn't that gift a beauty?

Whoa Dan: I was glad to get your card with the little black band as the name signed on it brought a smile, but I might have known that you were capable of a cherry word even in your sorrow.

Balsam Fir: I was very pleased to get your card and wish to say I am sorry I did not acknowledge it sooner but I have been sick with the grip since a week ago last Friday but am feeling pretty well again now except for a bad cough. I shall comply with your wish soon now.

Fidelity: I tried your recipe for hermits last week and think they are fine, especially as we do not have to roll and cut them which saves a lot of time and work.

My sympathy goes out to all those who have lost dear ones and hope the sick will soon be well again.

THE WILSON WEDDING CAKES

Dear Editor of Social Corner: If you had been the guest or one of the few hundred guests at the wedding of Miss Jessie Wilson, President Wilson's daughter you would have carried away with you in a box a precious slice of the most wonderful wedding cake. Of course, you would never have known how wonderful it was, because nobody would think of eating such a rare souvenir; but if you were not at the wedding there is not the slightest reason why you should not find out at once just how the white house wedding cake tasted. Madam Blanche whose delt fingers created this cake, gave out the recipe.

We hope many a June wedding may be able to boast of this cake made by recipe as that of the white house bride.

Madam Blanche also made Alice Longworth's wedding cake. She also made Gladys Vanderbilt's towering flower decked creation which the guests at her wedding to Count Szechenzr carried away in little boxes. Of Jessie Wilson's bride's cake many exaggerated accounts have been circulated. In reality it was a very simple affair indeed, 20 inches in diameter and made in two stories each four inches high. It was iced and edged with simple decorations of leaves and flowers, put on with pastry tubes. On one side a small shield in silver bore the initials of bride and bridegroom, a crystal vase surmounted it, holding a few white orchids.

The ingredients reduced in quantity by Madam Blanche herself to serve a wedding party of fewer guests than a white house wedding party are as follows:

Jessie Wilson's Wedding Cake: Mix thoroughly the following order, 1 pound butter, one pound of granulated sugar, one dozen eggs well beaten, 1 cup rum, 1 cup brandy, 1 cup sherry, 1 tablespoon of allspice, 2 pounds each of raisins fruits 1 cup mixed blanched almonds, 1 cup flour. Line pan with wax paper and bake in slow oven three to four hours.

Jessie Wilson's Bride's Cake: Sift 1 1-2 pounds of flour five times and let it stand, beat 16 eggs (white) until they can be cut with a knife. Into another bowl beat 16 more egg whites until they can be cut with a knife. Set aside while you thoroughly cream 1 1-2 pounds of butter. To this add gradually 1 1-2 pounds of sugar always beating remember until it rises high in the bowl. Fold in now, very slowly the beaten white of the first 16 eggs. When this is well blended, add 16 more, the same way, the whites of the other 16 eggs, 6 drops almond essence, 2 vanilla beans, add these and beat 15 minutes more; then add the 1 1-2 pounds of sifted flour beating slowly. Butter pan well, and cover with white paper. Before putting dough in pan remove vanilla beans which can be dried and used over again. Have medium oven and bake 1 1-2 hours. Test in the center with straw. Be sure cake is done. Remove from oven let stand in pan until next day. Cover with a clean white towel to keep in flavor. This "sweating" of the cake is one of the important features.

SOME TASTY SANDWICHES

Dear Corner Sisters: To renovate brown shoes take 1 tablespoon each of ammonia, water and milk, and apply with a soft cloth. When quite dry polish with a soft rag or pad.

Fried radishes taste like mushrooms, boiled radishes like turnips. In the season of them we most always have so many extra radishes you don't know what to do with them.

Cheese and Olive Sandwich: Rub 1 roll Neufchatel cheese to a paste, add half the measure finely chopped deviled olives, moisten with mayonnaise or cooked salad dressing and spread between thin slices of white graham bread.

Deviled Sandwiches: 2-3 cup finely shredded almonds in just enough butter to prevent burning stirring constantly, mix 2 tablespoons finely chopped olives, 1 tablespoon Worcester sauce, 1-4 teaspoon of salt, few grains of Cayenne. Add almonds cook three minutes stirring constantly, work 1 cottage cheese and thick cream until smooth add 1 tablespoon of chopped olives season with salt and pepper. Spread thin slices.

Norwich Cross Word Sandwich: Mash cold baked beans to a paste; there should be one cup. Add 2 tablespoons horse raddish, 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion and moisten with tomoto catsup to the consistency to spread. Cut bread in 1-4 slices, spread half the slice with the bean mixture. Put together in pairs, press edges and arrange on serving plate a basket dressed with lace paper dolly.

THE SIGN GEMINI

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: The sign Gemini (the twins) is the third sign of the zodiac and the positive pole of the air trinity. Gemini begins May 21st and ends June 20th. All persons born in this period are Gemini subjects. This sign is moist, variable, intellectual, hot, sanguine and barren. The natural planet is Mercury, and the sign rules the hands, arms and shoulders of human kind. Also governs friends and enemies. Persons born in sign Gemini are restless, like to travel, make good accountants, lawyers, lecturers, photographers, translators and postal employees. They do best on high ground, mountains etc. The colors are green, red and white. The gems are aquamarine and amethyst. The tribe is Issachras, meaning Reward. The important day and time of the week is Wednesday a. m.

The favorable time of the year is from Nov. 14th to 21st; and from April 26th to May 3rd. The planet Mercury governs the brain and rules carmel and medler; and moss agate.

The sign Gemini is the Greek myth of the twin Castor and Pollux.

Club 4 entertained the Social Corner members at the Girls Club rooms, Central Village, May 20. The rooms were prettily decorated with yellow festoons and roses.

Rural Aunty was in charge and her able assistants served a very fine dinner to about 50 members and guests. Then songs, recitations, and readings were in order, after which a sketch called Friendship was given by Mrs. Burke and Mrs. Gallup, which was very well done and very much appreciated by the members. Ice cream was served and a group photograph taken. Later the meeting came to a close by singing Good Night Ladies.

POLAND SPRINGS

Dear Cornerites: Poland is one of the best known summer resorts in the world, and no one has truly seen Maine without visiting Poland Springs in the town of South Poland. In 1794 Jabez Ricker with his four sons and six daughters arrived in this section and settled in a small house on the land south of the present Mansion house. The important part of South Poland is really Poland Springs situated in the south eastern corner of the town. In this locality are several beautiful lakes of ponds and include Sabbath Day lake, the Range ponds, Trip lake and Lake Thompson. In all parts of Poland, more particularly in the vicinity of West Poland, large farm houses have been turned into summer camps for boys and girls. The home of Senator Bert M. Fernald is in the vicinity of Lake Thompson.

Poland which was formerly an agricultural community has been transformed into a summer resort and there is almost no industry in the large town of Poland which is not directly or indirectly connected with catering to summer tourists.

The inhabitants of Poland are descendants of the old Yankee stock and are agreeable, charming, hospitable, home loving, New England people.

On top of the hill directly across the lake from Poland Spring is located the Summit Spring house. It tops one of the highest hills in Poland from which one can obtain a delightful panorama of the whole of Oxford county. The summer recreation field for the northeastern repartment of the Young Women's Christian Association is at Camp Magua located near West Poland on a beautiful point that extends in to Lake Thompson.

At Poland Corner is a colony of all the year round residents and there are stores, post office and churches and general prosperity is noted. In all sections of Poland the residents are thrifty and prosperous. It is only seven miles from my home and on the direct state road to the White Mountains.

Trust those out of health are more comfortable if not entirely recovered is the sincere wish of

A CORRECTION

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I am writing to correct a mistake in my sponge cake recipe. If those who would like to try it, will put in two teaspoons baking powder they will find the cake all right I think. I received a Corner pin and like it very much.

U. C. E.: Don't worry everything will be o. k. The liquid is fine.

Prudence: Was sorry to read of the fire. My mother used to say "No improving the future without disturbing the present." We do not care to have it come that way, do we? Yours for the Corner.

SNOWFLAKE.

NEVER LOST INTEREST

Dear Editor and Sisters: How are you all this lovely morning? I hope the sick ones are better. I have been sick all winter and it seems so good to be out again, although I am not very strong yet. I have never lost interest in the Corner although I write so seldom. I read every letter and attend all the social gatherings I can.

I would like a pin. Thanking you in advance.

NARRAGANSETT.

TRIBUTE TO A DEAR FRIEND

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Just a few lines in memory of a dear friend (Mable Judge) who many times went with me to the Social Corner gatherings and enjoyed with me the Social side of our Corner. She made many friends in the Corner and was beloved by all who knew her. She was a bright and happy girl.

God was with her all through her last sickness. She was conscious to the last, called us all by name and bid us all good bue. We mourn her loss, but our loss is her gain. Her last smile she gave us was like a ray of sunshine. Her bereaved family has my sympathy.

SON AMI.

WHERE PENNAME WAS OBTAINED

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: As the children are all quiet will take time to write a few lines. I would dearly love to have a pin, if I am entitled to one, although I do not write often, and do not attend any of the sisters' gatherings, I enjoy the reading of the letters very much, and would be proud to wear the pin.

Sister Jennie: Pardon me for not answering letter, but have been busy most all spring, and often wish I could meet you sometime at the clubs, if ever I can attend one.

I got my penname, from an old fashioned song, that my little one's use to loved to hear me sing in the evening—Good Night My Starlight. I wonder if any of the sisters knows the song, which has always been a favorite one of mine. The children now have a victrola and it really drives away the blues whenever one feels lonely. I, for one, do not find time to be lonely for there is always something to do where there is a dear little baby in a home. I do not believe loving big dogs and poodles, as so many do. I think there are so many little babies that would love the care and love of a mother, and so many will never know the love of a mother.

EAGER TO KNOW SISTERS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Just a word or two as I do want to know who By Jingo and Babbie's Pal are as they both write they are residents of my home town and think they know me. If they do, please be good and tell me just who you are, or call at 2 South street in the borough and let me see if I do know you.

I was surprised when I saw in Jack's Wife's last letter that she lived in Danielson as I supposed her home was Plainfield, the same as Ma of Greene-Gables. But her's was put in as Mystic! How we do wander away!

I received your kind gift Scottie, and I always am delighted with a handkerchief or apron from a friend. As I once heard a person say, if I had a hundred the last on received would delight me just as much as if I had only one. Thanks. Am glad the book pleased you, but you should not have felt under so much obligation.

Best wishes to Social Corner editor and all sisters.

I saw by Bulletin a notice in Dayville of the death and burial of Social Corner Sister. Just Me (Miss Clara Stokes) and was saddened by it. She has been a friend of mine for a long time and I have enjoyed many a letter from her. I knew her health was very poor but trusted she might gain it again. Had not heard from her recently so did not realize just her condition. I shall miss her letters both the personal ones and those to the Social Corner page. One by one the links of our chain are broken and they have been many during the past year. My sympathy goes out to her family, who mourn her loss.

GLAD TO BE ALIVE AND DOING

Dear Social Corner Sisters: What interesting letters we are having and so many of them, too. We certainly are a happy family. There is not a week that I don't learn something in reading the Corner page. It is surprising what a variety of subjects we get in the letters.

I think this is the most beautiful time of the whole year. The little new green leaves are so pretty and the flowers blossom in such abundance. God has surely been good to us to place us in such a beautiful world. I just feel glad that I am alive and have my family to work for.

Bachelor Maid: I didn't know that you had been at the hospital. Am so glad you are improving and will have your sight again.

Bee: My husband does trucking and I think was down to your place last week. Did he have dinner at your house once and does your last name begin with N? We both went to Matunuck last summer with a crowd of lodge members and their families. But how did you know about it? Were you there?

I should like very much to have one of the Social Corner pins. Thank you, Mr. Editor.

CHUB.

RECIPES TO TRY.

Dear Sisters: I want to send you a few recipes this week for you to try. I think you will find them worth keeping.

English Sponge Tea Cakes: 1 cup sour cream, 1-2 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 egg, 1 3-4 cups of flour (heap in the cup), 1 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon hot water, 1 tablespoon corn meal.

Place sugar in bowl add table spoon hot water, while that is dissolving beat up eggs in a separate bowl until thick then add sour cream beaten light and thick, pour this on the sugar and beat light with an eggbeater.

Sift flour, corn meal, soda, baking powder, salt altogether and add to the egg, cream and sugar beat well with spoon.

I have made mine with sour milk and it is very nice.

Sour Milk Biscuit: 8 cups of flour, 1 teaspoon of soda in 6 teaspoons of baking powder mixed, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons of shortening, 2 tablespoons of sugar.

Sift flour, sugar, baking powder and salt three times, work in lard wet up with sour milk, pat down with hands and bake in a hot oven. I always brush the top over with butter and milk melted.

GREETINGS FROM CATNIP

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Well, I have got home again from my second operation and I hope it will be a success. I feel much better and the doctor says I'm doing fine. I shall have my glasses next week so when I see you all dear sisters next meeting I shall feel so much better. I enjoyed our last meeting. You were all so good to me, so kind and thoughtful. I was sorry to hear of the death of our dear sister, Betty Brown. We shall miss her smiling face and her kind ways. She sent me a lovely Easter card when I was in the hospital to cheer me. Little do we know who is next to answer the call. There have been quite a few sisters who have passed away since I have joined the Corner.

U. C. E.: I shall be up to see you before long.

Lucy Acorn: Was real glad to see you. Hope you got home all right.

Papa's Boy: Congratulations on that lovely boy.

Joan: Call again when you can stay longer.

Many thanks for the pin. Will ring off for I think the line is busy.

BUSY AT HOME BUT INTERESTED

Dear Editor of Social Corner and Sisters: Like Aunt Jerusha I will write a few words to the Corner. Have been kept home most of the time with a sick husband and with two of my grandchildren, so I have not had time to write. If it is not too late would like one of the pins, the which I'll say "thank you."

Was pained to learn of the death of Just Me.

Best wishes to all.

GETS ENJOYMENT FROM LETTERS

To our Editor and Members of the Social Corner: I must write or you will forget Nely Grey.

The page has been full and have enjoyed reading the letters though don't know many of the writers.

Keziah Doolittle: Do you remember a little girl that was late to school and brought a fresh water clam in her pocket and had to stand up in front? C. I. H.: Thanks for the apron pattern you so kindly sent me a few months ago. Have been going to write and thank you but time flies so swiftly.

Lilac Lady: Your social time was very nice and enjoyed it very much. The music and reading were fine.

I have caught the pin fever too and would like one if there are any to spare.

Gadabout: Am so sorry you are sick. Hope you will get well quickly. Have missed your calling up.

Fan Tan and Caro: Thanks for cards. This is the first time I have written since my birthday.

CORNER MEETING TO BE HELD AT EAST KILLINGLY

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: Just a few lines to say there will be a Social Corner meeting in East Killingly, at the Union Baptist church, June 5. All the members are welcome. Please bring dishes and food as usual.

Was sorry to hear of Just Me's death but we can't wish her back for she suffered so long.

Would say "thank you" for one of those pins, even if I didn't get my way in regard to the design, but as I suggested the editor exercise his own judgment I won't complain but say "thank you" just the same.

ANTS

To the Editor and Social Corner Sisters: All around us the fruit trees are covered with beautiful blossoms, pinker than ever before and very fragrant. Hope for an abundant fruit crop this fall.

As some of the sisters are annoyed by ants I will tell my story.

Having no early training in cooking I had to learn by experience which is called a dear teacher, and is sometimes very trying.

I attended lectures on domestic science. At one of these the teacher said housewives wasted flour and hubby's hard earned money by washing the kneading board.

"Don't wash your kneading board Leave it till the next time," she said.

I went home resolved to save barrels of money if it could be done by not washing the kneading board. My work table was a wide shelf at the window in the pantry. When I made tea biscuits I left the kneading board and rolling pin there without washing until the next time I should want them, according to instructions. Next day when I started to use them—horrors!

Millions, trillions, countless tiny black things were running all over the board, the rolling pin and shelf. I just hated to touch anything, but took kneading board and rolling pin to the sink and poured boiling water over all. Then I went back to the pantry to try to solve the problem.

What were they and what attracted them to the shelf?

I concluded they were ants and I was grease left on the kneading board by not washing it that had attracted them.

I said, "The ants can have all the grease they want. Forget the barrels of money we were going to save." I cut wrapping paper into pieces the size of a dinner plate laid them on plates and spread all thick with lard and left them on the shelf. They were laid on plates so as not to grease the shelf. Next morning those papers were black with ants.

I slid the papers into the fire and prepared more. This was done several times at night. Gradually they decreased in numbers until no more stuck on the greased papers and the excitement was over.

Evidently the entire colony was destroyed. If antes are seen on the floor lay greased paper there, also little pieces of suet will catch them, then burn paper or suet.

This is a safe remedy for ants. It is dangerous to put anything poison-out around for them. Be sure to keep all food covered to protect it from ants, rats and mice and be careful about grease. I had a small war garden. When my sweet corn did not germinate I dug into the hill to find the reason. Some kernels were eaten into, others gone entirely. Large black ants were near the corn hills, so I turned over the stones and discovered their colony, also some missing kernels of sweet corn. The director of the war garden said, "Give them coarse salt." I sprinkled coarse salt under all the stone and in the edge of the corn hills, but not against the corn. Salt finished the large black ants. It can be used either in dry form or strong brine.

Don't let little chickens get it. Turn over the stone. Boards and various things laying around out doors and it is surprising to find a colony of ants under nearly everything. That is the place to begin destroying ants.

Mary France: Thank you for your intgresting report of the last meeting of the season for Club No. 1. No doubt all who were not present will appreciate your thoughtfulness.

Hope all will have a pleasant summer.

NEMA.

MORE REMINISCENCES BY N. O. T.

Dear Social Corner Friends: Well I am so glad that J. E. T. has done as much as to speak to me. I have been beating around the bush for a long time thinking that she would recognize an old friend and say, "Now that you have spoken you say that it is troubling you to know who I am. Well it is not the first time that I have troubled you and had you guessing. You were very much put out with me one day a long time ago when I told our good old school visitor Major Quary that I would rather be a farmer than president of the United States. Do you remember how you looked at me when you said that you must be a F- to think of farming when you might be the president. That same day the major thought that he would try you out a bit and called you to the black board to do an example for him, something like this: Set down 546 and subtract from it 423 you put it on the board and turned to the major and said, in your very prompt way of saying things, "Can be done!" Correct said the major you may take your seat. Now you can remember me I am sure, if not I can give you one or two more that you can't miss.

On my trip last week I happened to be in Waterbury over night and had the pleasure of spending the evening with one of our old school mates. She that was Mattie Parkhurst who

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

The outstanding event of the week in Norwich fifty years ago was the semi-annual parade of the local fire department. The programme called for eight bands of music and a large number of visiting firemen, some bringing their apparatus with them. Outside of the fire parade the week was an unusually quiet one. Events chronicled day by day from the files of The Bulletin of May, 1875, are as follows:

Monday, May 17, 1875—A peace meeting was held in the Broadway church last evening being a union of the congregations of that and the other congregational churches of the city and the Second Baptist. The church was crowded. The Rev. Mr. Merriman introduced Judge Foster as president of the meeting. Judge Foster expressed his sympathy with the aims of the peace society and spoke briefly of the destrability of their accomplishment simply from an economic point of view. He introduced the Rev. Dr. Myles, general secretary of the international association who was the speaker of the evening.

At the annual meeting of the Norwich silver band the following officers were elected: John Steiner, captain; Charles Menck, first lieutenant; Frank Klein, 2d lieut; Andrew Ender, treasurer; R. A. Von Berger, sec; L. Bahmer, quartermaster; G. Hess, first sergeant; W. Noss, second sergeant.

At the annual meeting of the New London County association with the Rev. Dr. Daggert, the following gentlemen were chosen delegates to the 184th anniversary of the General Association of Connecticut to be held at Danbury, June 15th. Primaries, the Rev. Messers Hine, Stanton, Jones, Dana, Wilcox, Tuck; alternates, Willard, Merriman, Cutting, Clift, Daggert, Lord, Woodhull, Palmer.

Tuesday, May 18, 1875—The Odd Fellows Funeral association, numbering 1,500 members, have not had a death for over 3 months. Their meeting will be held in New Haven tonight for the election of officers.

A steam hoister has been put in operation on the Laurel Hill tunnel and has a fire built under it daily, in defiance of the popular belief that it is unsafe to heat hoisters during any month without an "r" in it.

A city meeting to consider the appropriation recommended by the common council was held in the court house in New London yesterday. The meeting was called to order by His Honor the Mayor. The resolution for $300 for Ocean avenue was carried by 26 yeas to 23 nays.

Forgies are selling for three cents a piece.

Tubbs band will play for the Grand Army of this city on Decoration day.

Wednesday, May 19, 1875—The semi-annual parade of the fire department next Saturday promises to be the finest ever made here. As will be seen a large number of visiting firemen will be present in companies and delegations and probably a great many spectators from out of town will visit the city.

It is possible that the boats of the Norwich & New York Transportation Company may make their Eastern Terminus at Allyn's Point once more instead of New London.

The A. M. E. Zion church give an entertainment at White's Hall Thursday and Friday evening of this week. Assistance is solicited and as this society is just building a new church, such aid will be wisely bestowed.

A party of Norwich fishermen who went codfishing yesterday from New London, brought home a couple of fish last evening which weighed over 70 pounds.

Thursday, May 20, 1875—Henry P. Appleton, superintendent of the Lock Shop, was presented last evening, by the employes under his direction, with a silver tea set. His friends were accompanied by Lewis' band when they called and gave him a very thorough surprise.

A barn on Church street owned by Dr. Cassidy was discovered to be on fire about 6 o'clock yesterday morning, and before an alarm could be given the entire upper part of it was in flames. The Blackstone hose got two streams on the burning building and the Niagara hose another and the fire was immediately checked after the second story had been burned off. The origin of the fire is a mystery.

While prowling around a barn on Church street yesterday a boy named Willie Smith fell from the loft and injured one leg.

The prize speaking for the year at the Free Academy for the Newton Perkins prize medal will take place next Friday evening. Nine contestants are entered.

Friday, May 21, 1875—Only half fare will be charged on the New Haven road for Masonic parties attending the celebration in New York.

There will be another spell at the East Great Plain school house this evening, at which a great deal of fun is expected. The city will be represented by a number of young people.

The new derrick on the Laurel Hill tunnel settled yesterday and for a moment people thought it was going to fall. There was a lively stampede of the workmen and four or five hundred men who happened to be superintending the work at the time. But it didn't fall.

Contrary to the usual custom the parade of the fire department tomorrow will be in the morning, the procession moving at half-past ten, instead of in the afternoon as heretofore.

The legislative committee have assigned a hearing in the matter of the extension of the city limits for Tuesday next.

Mr. Webster, the photographer, very kindly offers the use of his windows on Shetucket and Main streets to ladies who desire to see the fire parade today.

The community on the West Side have for two days been in a state of exultation, because work has at last commenced on Main street, between the bridges. The horrible cobble-stone pavement is coming up, and before long travellers in carriages will have renewed cause to bless the memory of McAdam.

The semi-annual parade of the fire department takes place today and will undoubtedly be the finest ever made here. A large number of visiting firemen are expected, and an immense crowd from the country. Eight bands of music will be in line.

POETRY

With Strawberries

With strawberries we filled a tray,
And then we drove away away
Along the links beside the sea,
Where wave and wind were light and free,
And August felt as fresh as May.

And where the springy turf was gay
With thyme and balm and many a spray
Of wild roses, you tempted me
With strawberries!

A shadow, cast across the way,
Stole, like a ghost, across the day;
But none could hear me ask my fee,
And none could know what came to be
Can sweethearts all their thirst allay
With strawberries?

The Remnant of the Rose

Poor rose! I lift you from the street—
Far better I should own you
Than you should lie for random feet
Where careless hands have thrown you!

Poor pinky petals crushed and torn!
Did heartless Maybelle use you,
Then cast you forth to lie forlorn,
For chariot wheels to bruise you?

I saw you last in Edith's hair,
Rose, you would scarce discover
That I she passed upon the stair
With Edith's favored lover.

A month—a little month ago—
O theme for moral writer!—
'Twixt you and me, my rose, you know,
She might have been pellier.

But let that pass. She gave you then—
Behind the oleander—
To one, perhaps, of all the men,
Who best could understand her.—

Cyril, that dainty flatterer, took,
As only Cyril's able,
With just the same Arcadian look
He used, last night, for Mabel.

Then, having waltzed till every star
Had paled away in morning,
Lit up his cynical cigar,
And tossed you downward, scorning.

Kismet, my rose! Revenge is sweet—
She made my heart-string quiver;
And yet—you shan't lie in the street,
I'll drop you in the river.

—Austin Dobson.

A company owning numerous penny-in-the-slot scales makes a practice of putting two scales within four or five feet of each other. The person to be weighed jumps on the scales and upon the indicator's immediately the thought arises in his mind that the scales cannot be right. He spies another four feet away and to satisfy his curiosity tries that one. The indicator points to the same figure and the company has 2 cents where only 1 cent should have grown.

FOREIGN WAR VETERANS

A bronze tablet dedicated to the memory of Captain Herbert G. Sparrow was formally unveiled on Sunday, May 17, at the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis in an impressive ceremony in Memorial Hall. Laid at the foot of the tablet was a giant wreath of poppies, the memorial flower, as the tribute of the Captain Herbert G. Sparrow Ship post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, an "All-Navy" post named in honor of dead officers and located in Camden, N. J.

Captain Sparrow lost his life January 17, 1924, when his ship was driven ashore near Vera Cruz. Captain Sparrow and two wireless operators stayed aboard the ship until the last man had been taken off, and in attempting to secure the safety of his men in the face of terrific seas Captain Sparrow was crushed by a falling mast. Captain Sparrow had been urged repeatedly to return to shelter during the heavy storm but refused. Almost his last words were: "I will never leave the ship until I am regularly relieved, or the vessel is ordered out of commission."

The Memorial Tablet, erected by the class of '99 of the Naval Academy, of which Captain Sparrow was a member, was designed by Mrs. Louise Kidder Sparrow, wife of the captain, a sculptress of note and former student of Bush-Brown in his Washington studio, and unveiled by Herbert G. Sparrow, fourteen year old son of the late Captain Sparrow.

Attending the ceremony were Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur, members of the class of '99, all ranking captains now of the U. S. N., the entire regiment of midshipmen, and the following officers of the V. F. W. Sparrow Ship Post: Lt. James G. Williamson, captain of the post; Chaplain Paul A. Kline; Jos H. Williamson; William Hayes; James J. Burke and Harry C. Watson.

Following the unveiling of the tablet in Annapolis a replica will be unveiled in the near future in the Armory of the Second Battalion, Naval Militia of New Jersey under the auspices of the Sparrow Ship post. This duplicate tablet to Captain Sparrow is erected by his shipmates to the memory of a very gallant officer and The Boys Who Never Came Back, 1917-1917."

married Elmer Baton. As she was a Social Corner reader we had a real guessing bee and a very pleasant evening. I gave her your number but of course you won't mind a little thing like that. It was such a temptation that I just couldn't help it.

Come again J. E. T. Best regards to F. I am at home evenings and on standard time. N. O. T.

ASKING THE CORNER

Dear Social Cornerites: I started out to say "I wonder" and when I do I am told to ask the Social Corner. So here goes: Have any of the Cornerites ever made a table set of oilcloth or meritas? If so, how? Please write and tell. That will give someone something to write about.

I should like a Corner pin if the supply still holds out.

May C: I wish you would send to the Corner your recipes for those two conserves—the one with raspberries and the one of peach.

Yours for the Corner.

RICKETY ANN (Aug. 8.)

DO SOMETHING FOR SHUTINS

To the Editor of the Social Corner and Sisters: I received my pin recently and thank you for it. I think it will be buch better than bows of ribbon. I am glad to see some of the old names. We each ought to do something to make the Corner worth while. As the vacation approaches I think it would be well to plan to do something for those around us who are shutin and cannot go about to see their friends. A friendly call will cheer them, or a few flowers, or maybe a nice letter telling about some place we have visited with perhaps a postal with picture of the place. There are other ways which may suggest themselves to us. One nice way is to remember their birthdays. It is so nice when summer is over to be able to look back and know we have tried to give some one pleasure besides ourselves.

Photographer: I was glad to see your name again after a long silence. Hope you and yours are well.

Again thanking the editor for the pin, I am

SISTER BARBAR.

ESCALLOPED STAR HAM AND POTATOES

Place a slice of Star Ham in a greased casserole, dot over with cloves, cover with one quart sliced potatoes and two small onions, and season with salt and pepper. Pour over it one cup of Veribest evaporated milk diluted with an equal portion of water (or two cups milk). Bake one hour in a 350° F. or moderate oven. When half done remove cover from the casserole.

And there are 60 more ways, just as delicious, of enjoying this finest of hams. The Armour booklet, "60 Ways to Serve," gives you the recipes. A copy will be mailed you, if you write for it.

To be sure of tenderest, sweetest ham, ask for Armour's Star Ham. It pays to do so—even if you are buying only a single slice.

MARKETS WAS SLUGGISH

New York, May 23—(A. P.)—Realizing sales by professional traders imparted considerable irregularity to the price movements in the stock market, although the general tone continued upward with the bulls giving another remarkable demonstration of sturdy strength. Rail stocks gathered strength as the session progressed with several of the Western carriers recording substantial gains. Compared with the two previous days, trading showed a moderate contraction in volume, although total sales ran above one and three quarter million shares.

The continued ease of the credit situation, as reflected in the establishment of the highest reserve ratio of the year by the New York federal reserve bank, an increase of ten cents a barrel in Standard crude prices and higher lead and zinc quotations, all had a bullish effect on sentiment. The weekly mercantile reviews also reported a more cheerful tone in business circles. "The improvement is not general or striking," Dun's Review says, "but operations have increased moderately in several lines where there had been a reaction from the expansion of the early months this year, and the price situation is strengthening."

Revival of activity in the rails, in anticipation of favorable April earnings statements by several carriers next week. The Northwestern lines are expected to make a particularly fine showing, which accounts for net gains of 1 to 2 1-3 points being recorded by Atchison, Chicago and Northwestern, Rock Island, Great Northern Preferred, Missouri Pacific preferred, and Union Pacific.

The continued demand for the motor shares was ascribed to reports that Spring sales were running at an unusually high rate with several manufacturers unable to make prompt deliveries. Nash Motors jumped 14 points to 125, duplicating its record high, and Mack trucks moved up over 4 points to within a very small fraction of its record top, but cancelled nearly half of its gain on profit taking. Fleece Motor preferred soared 7 points to a new top at 70 7-8 and the prior preferred closed 4 1-2 points higher at 114 1-2 after touching a new maximum at 115. The Maxwell issues, Packard common and Willys-Overland preferred also broke through to new peak prices, the last named touching 111 and then easing to 103 7-8, up 5 1-2.

Buying of the oils was of a selective character. California Petroleum preferred advancing more than 2 points to a new high at 123, while Marland, Texas Company, Union Oil of California, Sinclair preferred, and Standard Refining climbed a point or so. The increase in the Pacific Oil dividend apparently had been anticipated, the stock closing fractionally lower at 57 1-4.

Speculative belief that the segregation of the water power properties of the International Paper company will soon lead to a dividend declaration on the common, accounted for the brisk demand for that stock which jumped 6 3-8 points to 93, the highest price in several years. Simmons company responded to the announcement of a favorable court decision involving the use of patents for electricity welded tubes used in the manufacture steel beds by climbing more than two points, to a new top at 42 1-4.

Among the many other issues to better their previous top prices of the year were May department stores, Mathieson Alkali, Brooklyn Edison, Robert Reis, National Distillers products, New York Canners, Consolidated Gas, Detroit Edison, Brooklyn Union Gas, American Tobacco and U. S. Industrial Alcohol.

Call money opened at 3 3-4 per cent, but advanced to 4 in the late afternoon. Time money had commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Reactionary tendencies characterized the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling dropped nearly half a cent to $4.83 3-4 while French francs fell 3 points to 3.12 cents, the lowest figure since the middle of last month.

EXPENSIVE FOR HARTFORD MAN, HOGGING THE ROAD AT NEW LONDON

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, May 23—Joseph Bernstein of Hartford was fined $10 in the police court this morning for hogging the road, when he was prosecuted on the complaint of Lewis Holder, a chief petty officer at the submarine base. Holder was operating his Chrysler coupe on Broad street extension when he met another car approaching. He gave the oncoming automobile all the road he could and then, he said, Bernstein cut in ahead of him and forced him to the side of the highway. Holder declared that Bernstein was going at 45 miles an hour. All this occurred in the town of Waterford, so the New London court was without jurisdiction in the case. But Bernstein did not get away because of that fact. He was charged with violating the rules of the road in passing intersecting streets without reducing speed and giving warning of his approach. Now it remains for the Waterford authorities to take up the matter of speeding at a pace that endangered the lives and limbs of persons using the highway.

An automobile, owned by Donald Casey, 46 Tilley street, and Constantine Patterson, also of Tilley street, and others, was completely wrecked and Casey and Patterson were slightly injured and a touring car, owned by James Doyle, 97 North Bank St., was damaged to the extent of $60, last night, when the former car crashed against the motionless car of Doyle, the colliding machine then hitting a building. Casey, who was driving the car sustained numerous lacerations of the scalp by glass from the shattered windshield and Patterson received minor cuts of the face. Casey was taken into custody today charged with reckless driving, evasion of responsibility and refusing to stop at a signal of an officer. He furnished a surety in his mother, Mrs. Florence Casey, for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning.

Casey and Patterson started for a ride about the city last night about 9 o'clock and with two companions they eventually headed through Blackhall street. As the machine was ascending the grade leading to Williams street, State Police Officer Robert Budnick and Patrolman Carlos Selesnitsky were talking at the corner of Blackhall and Williams street. The officers heard the exceptional noise of the car as it climbed the grade because of the cut-out having been removed from the machine. As the car approached the officers Selesnitsky stepped to the highway and signaled the driver of the machine to stop. Instead of doing so, the operator guided the car around the officer and headed for Connecticut avenue. The officers put chase, but the automobile gradually drew away from them. As the machine crossed Garfield avenue and entered Connecticut avenue, the driver, Casey evidently lost control of the steering wheel for the machine crashed against the side of Doyle's car, and then proceeded across the highway and across the sidewalk only to continue between two dwellings where it stopped against one of the houses. The car hitting the building caused the windshield to be smashed and Casey was struck with many of the fragments of glass. He was also thrown from the car as were Patterson and their companions. When the police reached the spot where the wrecked auto was lodged between the two residences, the only occupant of the car found was Patterson. He was indifferent in stating who was at the wheel of the auto and as a result he was taken into custody for he admitted having been driving the automobile, but refused to say whether he was at the wheel when the crash occurred. After Patterson was locked up on a charge of reckless driving, Arthur Vogt, a third member of the party, was apprehended, and he made it known that Casey was at the wheel when the accident resulted. Patterson was released upon the promise of relatives to have the youth in court tomorrow morning, and a search was then made to locate Casey. The driver failed to put in an appearance at his home, but instead went to the residence of his sister, near the site of the accident, where he remained until this morning when he visited the police station and gave himself up.

The liveliest interest is manifested as to the recommendation of City Manager Holt will make to the city council, Monday evening, in disposing of the report of the committee he appointed to inquire into the efficiency of the police department. The majority report of the committee treats the matter with gloved hands and recommends substantially only the adoption of rules and the establishment of discipline that will be for the benefit of the force and for the members of it as well. Councilor Edward Streeter, Jr., a member of the investigating trio and its secretary has taken the opportunity to make other recommendations to the city manager and asks for the dismissal of Capt. Charles Pinney and the demotion of Sergeants Gaffney and Patrick Murphy and Nelson S. Smith. He wants the city manager to place Sergeant Samuel Hick at the head of the force, and would make Sergeant John J. Cavanaugh lieutenant, and would promote Patrolmen George Perkins and Frank Philopena to sergeancies. There is a pretty general belief that Manager Holt will heed the recommendations of such tried councilors as Lucius E. Whiton and John F. Murray and that he will pass over the recommendations made to him by Councilor Streeter without heeding what he recommends. Councilor Streeter has been in opposition to the city manager ever since the police inquiry commenced and has criticised him at every opportunity, sometimes very severely. Mr. Streeter has held to the opinion that members of the council can criticise the city manager and acquaint him with their opinion in all actions in which the council is concerned. It was this matter, when the director of law gave the opinion that the councilors had no right to interfere with the city manager in his official acts as an executive of the city, that led Frank L. McGuire, the city's director in law matters, to resign. It is understood that Mr. Streeter stands by his guns and that he says he will not yield in any degree what he is convinced is his authority. He has prepared a type-written report that has gone to the city manager with the report of the councilors who were associated with him in listening to the evidence that was presented before the committee. He has made it known in his report that there were citizens who were very positive protestants against the conduct of the police, but that they failed to come up to the rack and eat their hay when called on to testify. They took the gumshoe route and didn't know so much when they were asked to tell the committee what they had told individual members of it. All rests with City Manager Holt and he is regarded as being possessed of backbone that will stand the test, when he makes his report and recommendations to the council next Monday. The council chamber will hardly accommodate all who desire to be in at the announcement of the recommendations of the city manager to the council.

An automobile owned and operated by Irving Dean, Alewife avenue, Ocean Beach, and in which his sister, Miss Lee Dean, was a passenger was damaged on Pequot avenue this morning when the car crashed against an ice truck of the W. R. Perry Ice company driven by John Coughlin. Dean escaped injury, but his sister sustained slight injuries. Dean left the beach to bring his sister to her work, when the automobile reached a point near New London lighthouse and while being operated at an estimated speed of 25 miles an hour, the ice truck was encountered. Dean attempted to operate the automobile past the truck, but was unable to do so, losing control of the steering wheel with the result that the automobile crashed against the much heavier vehicle with great force. Miss Dean sustained slight lacerations about the face and head, also received numerous bruises. She was rushed to Home Memorial hospital, where it was determined that the wounds were not of a serious nature and after they had been dressed she returned home.

Dean asserted that the accident was caused by the steering gear becoming disabled at the time that he attempted to operate the car past the ice truck.

BOND MARKET

New York, May 23—(A. P.)—Speculative interest continued undiminished in the bond trading, finding satisfactory outlets in various railroad, public utility and oil company bonds. Prices again worked into new high ground, although most of the gains were relatively narrow.

An explanation for the strength of Chicago, Terre Haute & Southeastern bonds appeared with the circulation of the report that the road might be divorced from the St. Paul system and added to the "Nickle Plate." The income 5s were active, advancing 1 1-2 points. Chesapeake & Ohio Convertible 5s, Erie General 4s and other of the so-called Van Sweringen issues were strengthened by indications that the Cleveland rail magnate were marshalling additional testimony in support of their merger plan to present to the Interstate Commerce Commission next week.

Most of the trading activity in the rail group centered, however, in bonds of the Western carriers, Chicago & Northwestern, Frisco International Great Northern, Chicago Great Western and Iowa Central liens all attracted buying orders. New York Central 6s and "Big Four" 6s "D" were heavy. Oil company obligations continued responsive to the recent series of favorable development in the industry, with Skelly, Pan-American and Sinclair issues capturing popular favor. Favorable merger and earnings reports supplied the basis for the upward movement of the public utilities. Cabled reports that Norway was negotiating for a $25,000,000 loan were discredited by local bankers, who expressed the belief that the government would wait until next fall to refund an outstanding eight per cent bond issue.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, May 22—(A. P.)—Unseasonable high temperatures, especially in the Southwest, together with complaints of drought and crop damage Northwest, did a good deal to lift wheat values. Closing quotations on wheat were firm, 1 1-4 to 2 1-4c net higher, May 168 1-4 and July 155 1-8 to 155 1-4. Corn finished at 1-4 to 1c advance, oats unchanged to 3-8-1-2c. Up, and provisions showing 5 cents to 20 cents advance.

Rains at various points on both sides of the Canadian boundary were reported to have been of only a scattered character and of no material benefit. Under such circumstances, announcement that Canadian mills had purchased 125,000 bushels of United States wheat at Duluth was given much attention and was said to be without precedent.

Throughout the day, except at brief intervals, the wheat market here had a consequent decided upward tilt, helped by unexpected early firmness of quotations at Liverpool and by word that demand there for wheat to be delivered immediately had improved.

Corn and oats sympathized with wheat strength, despite good weather for corn and notwithstanding larger receipts of that grain. Liberal export buying of oats continued.

In line with hog values, the provisions market was firmer.

NOT ATTENTIVE ENOUGH TO DEFECTS OF EYES

Good work of any kind can be done only with good tools. Although the eyes are the most important tools used by the school child and though 10 per cent of school children have such poor vision as to need the help of glasses, it is estimated that only 50 per cent have ever had their vision tested, say specialists of the department of the interior, bureau of education. Laws requiring or permitting such examination have been enacted by 43 states, but alertness and good judgment on the part of school officials seem more needed than legislation.

Practical talks on the vocations are given to high-school boys of Allegan, Mich., by members of the local Rotary club. Business and professional men meet groups of the boys once a week and discuss the problems peculiar to each vocation. Similar instruction is given to girls of the high school by members of the Women's Business and Professional club.

TAFTVILLE

Members of Troop 4, Boy Scouts have been busy this week selling poppies made by the disabled veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States.

There were no sessions at the Sacred Heart School Thursday, to allow the pupils to attend the Ascension Day services at the church.

Miss Dorothy Wood of Willimantic is spending the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Wood and family of South Second avenue.

The regular weekly meeting of Troop 3, Boy Scouts was held Friday evening in the recreation rooms of the Taftville Congregational Church, with Scoutmaster Harold E. Linderson in charge.

A large number of delegates from churches from surrounding towns are expected today (Saturday) at the Acorn Institute, which is to meet at the Taftville Congregational Church. Supper for about 100 will be served in the church vestry by the members of the Ladies Benevolent Society of the church.

Miss Helen C. Aberg of Willimantic is spending the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Axel L. Aberg of North Third avenue.

Philip Belval of Riverside Grove, met with a serious accident this week when he fell from a staging on which he was working, and fractured the bones in both heels.

Great credit is due the schoolboys for their share in the firefighting Thursday afternoon. There were no sessions at the Sacred Heart School and the boys were released from the Wequonnoc School to assist in putting out the blaze. In addition to the fire company, several men employed in the outside gang of the Ponemah company gave valuable assistance with horses and plows. This prevented the fire from crossing the path directly north of Notre Third avenue and getting into the big woods there, where a dense undergrowth would have made the firefighting difficult.

The state highway department is scraping and repairing Norwich avenue, and preparing to treat it with tarvia.

Miss Annie Duane is confined to her home in the Ponemah house with an injury to her hand.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Crowe of South A street are spending a few days in New York.

Fire Co. No. 2, responded to a call for help Friday afternoon, when a brush fire broke out in the woods south of Merchants avenue, swept through the lots, and came near destroying the barn owned by Henan Murray on Merchants avenue. Prompt and efficient work by the firemen saved the barn, and finally extinguished the blaze. The entire village was enveloped in a cloud of smoke throughout the afternoon.

RESIGNS AS DIRECTOR OF WOMEN'S STATE FARM

The resignation of ex-Senator Edward W. Hazen of Haddam as a director of the state farm for women at East Lyme, was announced Thursday by Governor Trumbull. He has been a member of the institution board since its inception and gave ill health as the reason for his request to be relieved at the earliest possible date. No appointment has been made for the unexpired portion of his term, ending July 1, 1929.

Mr. Hazen wrote the governor that familiarity with the development of the institution "has convinced me not only of the great need for such an institution for the protection of society and the reform of the inmates but also convinced me of the practicability of the plan."

He took the view that "the best test of the reform and training value of the institution is found in the parole records, considered with full recognition of the kind of material the institution has to work with and the handicaps that have surrounded the task from the beginning, such as inadequate facilities and a more or less antagonistic atmosphere throughout the state."

The letter of resignation referred briefly to the removal of Mrs. Helen E. Rogers of Hamden as a director, by ex-Governor Templeton nearly two years ago. "As one who knows," said the letter, "I wish to go on record as testifying to the fidelity and intelligent service of the members of the board from the start. Even the one who was dropped during the administration preceding yours is included in this last statement excepting the last few months of her connection with the farm."

Due to road construction at Plainfield, Gallup street will shortly be closed to traffic while the cement bridge on the main road at that point.

EULOGIES ON DECEASED ATTORNEYS PRESENTED BEFORE BAR ASSOCIATION

Eight members of the New London county bar association who have died within the past year were eulogized at memorial services held in the superior court in this city Friday morning after the short calendar session of the court. Members of the bar were present from all parts of the county when the memorial meeting was called to order by the bar association president, William H. Shields, and the eulogies and resolutions were read by the chairmen of the committees appointed some time ago by President Shields, but as John C. Geary was absent the resolutions upon Frank Q. Cronin were read by Charles L. Smiddy, another member of the committee.

Following the reading, Judge Isaac Wolfe, who was present, granted the motion of President Shields to have the resolutions spread upon the records of the court and directed Clerk George E. Parsons to see that this was done.

The committee which had drafted the various resolutions follow:

Committee on the death of Thomas M. Waller—Abel F. Tanner, Charles E. Whittlesey, Philip Z. Hankey.

Committee on the death of Frank B. Brandegee—Charles E. Whittlesey, Arthur M. Brown, Charles B. Waller.

Committee on the death of John M. Thayer—Wallace S. Allis, Nelson J. Ayling, Arthur E. Calkins.

Committee on the death of Hadlai A. Hull—Frank L. McGuire, Herbert W. Rathbun, Arthur M. Brown.

Committee on the death of Lucius Brown—Arthur M. Brown, Jeremiah J. Desmond, Edmund W. Perkins.

Committee on the death of Frank Q. Cronin—John C. Geary, Perry J. Hollandersky, Charles L. Smiddy.

Committee on the death of Henry H. Burnham—Arthur M. Brown, John T. Barry, Richard J. Bylkowski.

Committee on the death of Harry B. Agar—George R. McKenna, Frank H. Hinckley, Benjamin H. Hewitt.

The eulogies were given in part as follows:

Judge John M. Thayer.

As a lawyer John M. Thayer was of the highest type. He was thoroughly grounded in the essential principles of the law and logical and practical in their application. His cases were well prepared and his presentation of them carried conviction. Upright in character, studious by habit, loyal to his clients, fair to his opponent and honorable with the court, he acquired success with honor. He did not appear in the trial of cases as often as some. Unconsciously, perhaps, he exemplified the precept of his distinguished contemporary, Jeremiah Halsey, "The best business of a lawyer is to keep his clients out of court."

It will not be, primarily as a trial lawyer, or as an advocate, that Judge Thayer will be longest remembered, but as a judge. He possessed in an exceptional way a combination of qualities which made an ideal judge. Few indeed were his equals in clear thinking, absolute impartiality and moral courage. As a trial judge he seemed to have an almost intuitive sense of the equities of a case before him and his judgment was seldom questioned even by those who suffered by it. Among the younger members of the bar he was sometimes referred to as "old Steelyards"—a homely expression, but one which becomes dignified and full of meaning when applied to Judge Thayer. As a justice of the supreme court his views were awaited with the greatest respect and his written opinions, scattered through some eighteen volumes of our Connecticut reports, are models of clearness, logic and direct expression. For nearly thirty years he served in our highest courts in a judicial capacity, and has left no small contribution to the jurisprudence of Connecticut.

Judge Thayer was a conspicuous exponent of the maxim, "The law is a jealous mistress." His professional work always received his first consideration. It was because of his devotion to his profession that we sometimes overlooked his genuine interest in public affairs. As a politician he was a believer in party affiliation but never sought political office for himself. It was because of this absence of self interest, as well as of his practical and comprehensive judgment, that the public often sought his advice. It is worthy of note that when appointed to the bench he received unanimous endorsement irrespective of party allegiance. He was interested in the welfare of his adopted city. The business block which bears his name today will long stand as evidence of his expressed wish as he said, "To do something worth while for Norwich." Surely no citizen of Norwich should forget his public services as one of the original commissioners of its gas and electric department. Upon his establishment of this municipal plant, there was needed the calm judgment and careful guidance of one in whom all had implicit confidence. Judge Thayer assumed its direction when he was already carrying a heavy burden of judicial work. In other directions, quietly and without ostentation, he manifested his interest in the matters of public welfare. Comparatively few people in Norwich ever knew of his official position and deep interest in the management of that most excellent charitable organization known as the Johnson Home.

When Judge Thayer retired from the bench in 1917, he anticipated an opportunity for rest and extensive travel, but this was not to be. He was straightaway called to serve as chairman of the federal draft board of his district. Few realize today how much this position, with its complicated and exacting requirements, meant to one of his age and many years of work, entirely different in character. This work he carried until nearly the end of the existence of the organization, sometimes severely handicapped by physical infirmities of which he said but little. Patiently, conscientiously and without compensation, he served his country no less loyally than he who heard the bugle call at the front of battle.

In his community life Judge Thayer was not of the conventional type. Someone has said, "Every great man has about him some singularity and scorns something." Judge Thayer was a man of pronounced individuality. He disliked ostentation and scorned sham. Sometimes he was criticized for his reluctance to accept the conventional or adopt himself, as fully as some do the communal activities of his surroundings. As we look back upon a life of how little importance after all appear many of its conventionalities when compared with those essential qualities which make up character.

Personally Judge Thayer was modest and retiring, vanity and conceit were apparently unknown to him. There was a kind of diffidence in his makeup which is sometimes found in men of great ability and in prominent position, although seldom appreciated. To those who knew him best he was most companionable. He was a true and loyal friend.

It is a fitting custom of the various Bar Associations of this state that their members are called from time to time to pause in the midst of their activities and contentions and remember their comrades who have passed from earthly tribunals. Seldom are the members of the bar of this county called to memorialize so large a number of their former associates as today. Distinguished among a most distinguished group, John M. Thayer has left a character and a record worthy of the emulation of the members of the bar which he honored and which honored him.

Judge Lucius Brown.

Hon. Lucius Brown, for many years a prominent and active member of the New London County Bar, died suddenly at his home in Norwich on the first day of August, 1924, at the advanced age of 78 years. He was born in Griswold, Conn., on the 5th day of May, 1846, the son of Daniel Brown and Mary Stanton Brown. When he was a lad of nine years of age his parents removed to Preston City, in the town of Preston, Conn., where his father operated the village store; and here Judge Brown passed his youth and early manhood, drinking deeply of the atmosphere of honesty, thrift and industry which so thoroughly permeated this New England village and which qualities were an apparent part of the characters of his parents and came afterwards to be vividly marked in his own life.

Judge Brown, the wise and prudent counsellor, and the late Donald G. Perkins, unsurpassed in ability as an advocate and trier of cases, formed a combination which has left its mark in the history of jurisprudence in this commonwealth. In 1903 Edmund W. Perkins and Allyn L. Brown, sons of the two partners, were admitted to the partnership and so continued until the elevation of Mr. Brown to the bench of the superior court in July, 1931.

Upon the death of the late Hon. John C. Kellogg, in 1893, Judge Brown was appointed judge of the city court of Norwich, which position he ably and impartially filled for a period of twenty years. To this office Judge Brown brought an abiding respect for the law and a keen sense of responsibility to society, both tempered with a proper sympathy for the unfortunate and in the discharge of its great responsibilities he rendered a distinct public service.

Recognizing his ability and integrity, his fellow citizens honored Judge Brown with election to important public offices. He was a staunch and unwavering Republican in politics and as such was elected four times to serve his district in the Connecticut state senate, the first time in 1872, when he was only twenty-five years of age. How well he served his constituents and his state in this capacity is best evidenced by his frequent election to the office.

In banking circles his sound sense and good judgment were appreciated.

At the time of his death he was clerk of the New London County Bar Association, which position he had filled with the appreciation and approbation of his brethren of the bar for an extended period of time.

In his religion Judge Brown was ever firm and unshaken. His was an abiding faith, steadfast always and to the end, and in the possession of which he derived much of comfort and solace throughout his life. It gave him courage to calmly face not alone the problems of life but the great adventure called death as well. At the age of ten years he joined the Preston City Baptist church and upon his removal to Norwich he transferred his membership to the Central Baptist church of that city where he remained a devoted and consistent member to the time of his death. He played an active and important part in the affairs of two of the country's leading Baptist educational institutions, Brown university and Suffield school, serving both institutions as trustee with ability and fidelity.

Judge Brown belonged to no fraternal societies, his public and professional duties, his church and his home filling his life to completion.

Judge Brown cared not for pomp or show; he led an unassuming life, ably, conscientiously and unostentatiously meeting the responsibilities of a large law practice, as well as giving liberally of this strength and talent to the service of the public and other varied interests.

He has left to his descendants that most valuable of all legacies, a clean, honorable life of industry and accomplishment.

Ex-Governor Thomas M. Waller.

The charm of a great personality, survives its contemporaries in the tales of tradition, when the vesture in which it functioned has dissolved or as a garment is forever folded up. We are concerned, for a few moments, with such a personality.

"When Governor Waller reached his journey's end a year ago last January at the age of 66, many in this country had known him for a long time, some doubtless through many stressful years. But those who did not know him in the long ago may have no adequate conception of how his personality in those days appealed to the imagination. Whether in the courtroom, or before some popular assembly, or in the city's streets, the presence of "Tom Waller" caused a sensation and drew instant and prolonged attention. As was said of this great Webster, when he passed by many turned and looked after him in silent admiration. And some, it may be, wondered whence he came. For, frankly, then (as now) his lineage was veiled in obscurity. We know something, today, of his father and mother; something of their nationality their calling and religion; but we know nothing of their antecedents, nothing of their geneology; hence, nothing of the source whence came the wondrous gifts which education could prove but not create; and we know all that the family knows. Could we flash on the screen, this morning in some pictures of the yesterdays, his whole life story it would be of romantic interest. The chapter in his native state would remind us that he was born in New York city in 1839, the eldest son of Thomas C. and Mary Macdonald Armstrong both of Irish descent; that by them, or one of them, he was early placed in school, and if they had lived, his career, brilliant as it was, might in that large commonwealth, have been more brilliant, still. But they did not live. Before he was nine years old he had lost both father and mother and his only brother, and was thrown on his own resources. There was an aunt, to be sure, but she was poor and could do, but little. The boy was left practically unguarded in the streets of a great city, with the process of an education in New York indefinitely suspended. He stood at the crossroads of destiny and with him there was no visible guide. There might be a tide in the affairs of men, leading on to fortune but he did not know the hours of its ebb and flow and chance had to be reckoned with. Chance has, always to be reckoned with. Thus, if the boy Armstrong, had not strayed into Fulton market at just the right time, or he had not, later, withstood the golden California lure, Thomas M. Waller might never have borne that name; might never have been conspicuous in this locality, or elsewhere known to fame, and the story of his life might not be now for me to tell. In Fulton market he met the smackman, Captain Harris, was accepted as a cabin boy, and a little later accompanied him to New London.

"While sojourning there, the boy made the acquaintance of a man who was to have a strong influence on his life. That man was Robert K. Waller, who owned a corner grocery at Truman and Blinman streets; and, like all grocers of the day, he sold fruit and candy. The boy was fond of candy and frequently went there to buy it. A mutual thing developed, and eventually the boy was adopted by this kindly merchant, assumed his family name, and ever after, this city was his home. He graduated at 17, from Bartlett's high school, in competition with three young fellows of his own age, all of them orators as brilliant as himself though they did not reach his goal. He came to the bar in the tragedy of civil war—came as the thunder of Sumter's guns electrified the nation—and everywhere his voice was for the union. He answered its bugle call to arms, as a war democrat, with one of these same young men; but fate prescribed for him another calling. We see him now in the political arena and in the general assembly at 28, he was promoting a great public innovation like the bridging of the Connecticut. At 31 he was secretary of state; mayor at 33; speaker of the lower house at 36; state's attorney for seven years; governor at 45; consul general to England at 45; and then vice-president of a World's Fair Commission, thus, rounding out as remarkable a career as may be found in legend or story. We see the child of three years as a newsboy in the streets of New York selling the Sun, Tribune, and Morning Star; no father or mother; no home, no close and dependable friends.

"We see him as night comes upon him on the sidewalks of New York, seeking shelter among the water front, or maybe on the steps of the Tribune building asleep under the clouds or the stars. We look again. We see him now in the city of London an envoy from the greatest nation of the earth, in the atmosphere of royalty and in the society of kings; and we say with the fatalist, it was destiny.

"There is a current notion that he was not a profound student of the law. It may be we cannot judge of legal scholarship in his day by modern standards. A character in Dickens' Tale of Two Cities, who was wont to sit far into the night with a towel about his head and wine and brandy at his elbow, poring over legal tomes with some English barrister might win renown on the morrow, may have been a profound student of the law. Our colleague could hardly have been so much a slave to book and candle. Apparently he could absorb information by contact easier than some can mine it by the glare of the midnight lamp. Yet if we may believe those who read law in his office he was an indefatigable worker. At all events, those who collided with him in ligitation did not count on the probability that he would not know the law. Carefully trained in the office of Andrew C. Lippitt, he knew the sources of the law and he rarely neglected any essential prerequisite of law or fact. He knew that preparation is fundamental to success, and it is a safe conjecture that from his first forensic triumph until he stepped into retirement from out of the law firm of Waller Cook and Wagner in New York he never entered the trial of any case that he did not have a practical knowledge of that case.

"He possessed remarkable extemporizing ability; and, though he did not always win, he impressed the spectator with his resourcefulness and the celerity with which, in an emergency, he could reform a broken line. When, on his accession to the governorship, he temporarily retired from active practice. I undertake to say that he had no superior as a trail lawyer at this bar, in either civil or criminal procedure.

"Confessedly a born orator, his gift of expression attractive personality and vocal accomplishments, doubtless contributed to his success as an advocate. He had the oratorical temperament. We discover him at 17, as precocious as Alexander Hamilton, capturing at the hustings the imagination of the crowd. And his oratory never got out of fashion. He was the master of a concise, lucid and eloquent expressionion that is always in fashion No court ever heard him impatiently no jury except with delight. Yet he labored under one limitation. He could write fluently on current topics, had literary taste and gave abundant thought to preparation; but to draft a speech in advance and follow it as written was irksome to him and he was prone to escape from the text. This may have been due in part to his lack of academic training. While he became as well educated as 50 per cent. of the college bred and received the honorary degree of master of arts from Yale university, he, doubtless, would have profited by the compulsory training in written composition usually inseparable from a college course. Albeit, he seemed to require the actual presence of an audience to inspire him to the highest flights of eloquence. Before the multitude he was as much at home as Henry Ward Beecher, and, with his skill in repartee, no amount of heckling, as a rule could disconcert him. Even what I have called a limitation had its advantage; it insured the charm of freshness and novelty. I am confident that I do not err in including him among the great orators. But, because he did not greatly excel in classic written English, his fame as an orator, like that of Corwin and Marshall, will live only in tradition.

"His career as a statesman is barren in places for want of an opportunity. He could have shone conspicuously in the halls of congress, in the house or in the senate. He would have been as spectacular as Clay, as aggressive as Hayne, as gladiatorial as Douglass in debate. He had the characteristic of a statesman, tact, vision, and leadership; and, to use a colloquialism, he was of presidential size. But he had cast his lot with a political party that, during the greater part of his life was out of power, especially in his amateur years. To be sure, he might have changed his party affiliations as other democrats did in Connecticut, to their advantage, and the republican party would have welcomed him to its ranks, and possibly have bestowed upon him, its highest honors. But for him, that way had no allurement. He cherished the sentiments of Jefferson, imbibed in his youth, and his sympathies were with the plain people. And so he died as he had lived, steadfast in the democratic faith.

"As a citizen he stood for high ideals; for liberty and law; for the rights of the common people. He was congenial, democratic and approachable. In private life, as well as in public life, he drew men to him by a charm that lured and fascinated. He was by nature conservative. He looked askance at current fads and fancies, especially those of a political nature; and when they came "in such questionable shape" he boldly challenged their credentials. Yet he welcomed what to him seemed sensible innovations. He urged the right of jury trial in place of the defaulting system; he contended for the property rights of women and for their emancipation from archaic forms of law; he stood for woman suffrage when it was everywhere unpopular. He lived to see his contentions become established facts. He was a conservative, but not a reactionary. He was a reformer, but not a fanatic. He was charitable and broadminded in both religion and politics. A consistent and loyal member of the Episcopal church, he did not become creed bound, or dogmatic or even exclusively denominational. He recognized the good in all religions; he remembered that his father and mother died in the Catholic faith. He even tolerated the dissenter, who chose to embark for the shora of eternal life across uncharted seas or by some circuitous route. He liked the parable of the lost sheep. He could believe that the Eternal Shepherd, though he corrals in safety the ninty and nine, will never abandon his search for the one that is lost in the mountain wilds.

"In civic affairs he had the thing we all call 'moral courage.' That he made official and individual mistakes none may deny, for mistakes are inevitable. I cannot do better than to quote from his address on Abraham Lincoln, in which he said: 'I would not have you believe from anything I have said, that he was a saint, or that he did not make mistakes as all men do if they make anything.' We are not to portray a character without a foible or a fault. Mr. Waller never aspired to such a degree of perfection. He knew that he was human; and 'to err is human, but to forgive is divine.' Blessed is the man who bears no malice, who can forget animosities; who gives an erring brother another chance, and like Sir Philip Sidney on the field of battle, accents the chivalry of mankind. Thomas M. Waller could forgive. As much as any man I have known he refused to cherish lasting resentment. He was won't to say 'Time mellows differences.' I am confident he went out of this life with no hatred towards any man or woman that lived: that on the edge of the Stygian river he could have greeted his enemy with a smile. In 1859, when a very young man, he married Charlotte, the daughter of Mrs. Charles Bishop; and for 51 years they journeyed towards the sunset, while daughter and sons grew up around them. Mrs. Waller died in 1910 and the governor did not remarry. He contented himself with local industrial work, with founding a street railway and with topographical improvement. Thus he impressed himself for posterity on the hills of his adopted city and down by its waterside. He loved the scenery of the beautiful Thames, as it flowed in its grandeur, past hillside and glens, and there he reared his castle home. At last he became the 'Grand old man,' respected, admired and loved by those who knew him best, as one 'whose yesterdays look backward with a smile'; and he went down the declivity of life into the lowering mists as peacefully as a river meets the sea.

"Confessedly, it is something, in this life, to have known man at his best; it is more to have known woman at her best, as probably most of us have. They really made it worth while to live. They have gone out from us, into the Great Unseen and, though we think of them as in the country of the lily, where the years have no end, we hope to meet again. Yet if we knew we never shall; that, when we have said 'Good Night' beneath the mortal canopy, we shall never say 'Good Morning' on any shore of hope, though crushed with a sense of melancholy, we would still have to own that to have known these splendid men and women was worth while. For myself, I thank the Great Supreme that they came and, with them, this gifted citizen to be an inspiration. But it is over with them, and it is over with him; and we who were his contemporaries are loath to say 'farewell.' The seasons will change, moons will wax and wane and the years will come and go, but never in this county shall we see his like again."

Senator Frank B. Brandegee.

Soon after his admission to the bar Frank B. Brandegee became a member of the firm of Brandegee, Noyes & Brandegee, being associated with his father and Judge Walter C. Noyes, and later was associated as a partner with Michael Kenealy and with William J. Brennan. He assumed a place of prominence at the bar almost as quickly as he had in public life, being elected corporation counsel of the city of New London within two years of his admission to the bar, and was soon engaged in the trial of important matters. Had he devoted more years to the practicing of his profession he would undoubtedly have occupied as conspicious a place at the bar as he later acquired in public life, but because of ill health he was compelled to leave New London for several years in the nineties, and after his election to congress in 1902, he devoted practically all of his time and energies to the public service. He had a clear and logical mind which quickly and accurately grasped legal principles, and as a speaker had an accuracy of expression combined with a earnestness which often rose to real oratory.

During his years in the senate he was a member of many important committees, including the committee on foreign affairs and the committee on the judiciary, of which last he was chairman at the time of his death.

As a member of the senate he made few long speeches nor was much given to oratory, but was conceded to be one of the best parliamentarians in that body, and as a debater had few equals. Having once made up his mind upon any issue, he was willing to state it clearly so that both his colleagues and the country knew what his position was. He never courted favor by choosing what he considered the popular side of any issue but, as each issue arose, took his position on the side which he considered right or most conductive to the public good, regardless of whether that was the popular side or would add to his personal following. This course many times during his public career caused him to meet opposition which might, perhaps, have been avoided had he been willing to compromise with his convictions, but in the end earned him the respect of the people of the state he served, who came to realize that his course on every question was determined by the right of public welfare as he saw it.

His public work which attracted the most attention and was probably most far reaching in its results was his opposition to the covenant of the League of Nations. Believing that great danger lay in that document he fought it with every resource with which nature had endowed him, and probably no man in the country did more than he to prevent this covenant.

Mr. Brandegee was an ardent republican and from the time that he was less than thirty years of age to the time of his death was one of the powerful leaders of that party in Connecticut, many times presiding at its state conventions and many times being one of its delegates to the national convention.

He had a friendliness of manner and a personal magnetism which made friends in great numbers, but because of a natural reticence he revealed the inner man to but a few intimate friends. As a lawyer he was always faithful to his clients, fair to his antagonists, and practiced his profession in accordance with its highest ideals. As a statesman he was able and honest and none doubted his motives. In his private life he was honorable, kindly, a lover of nature and the beautiful, of great charm to those who were closely associated with him, and his death removed a man who deserved all the honors bestowed upon him by his native city and state.

Hadlai A. Hull

Maj. Hadlai A. Hull of New London was a distinguished lawyer, devoting his time exclusively to the practice of his profession. The only interruption in his practice came at the time of the Spanish-American war when Major Hull recruited and became captain of Company H which was mustered into the service of the United States. After the termination of the war Major Hull resumed the practice of his profession.

From 1906 to the time of his death Major Hull was state attorney for this county and for the twelve years prior to 1906 was prosecuting attorney for the criminal court of common pleas for New London county. He devoted a great deal of time to the activities of the Connecticut State Bar association and for two terms served as its president. He was always interested in the extension of law library facilities in the county and served as a member of the law library committee and was instrumental in the establishment of the law library at New London. He excelled in the trial of causes and much of his time was occupied with court work.

Major Hull was always keenly interested in law enforcement and good government and worked zealously to that end. For more than forty years he labored for the common good as attorney, as prosecutor in the common pleas court, and as state attorney. His work in these lines will stand as an enduring memorial to him. He indeed needs no other monument than his work. His devotion to duty, his faithfulness, his unswerving loyalty to his work, his constant fighting against error, and his love of justice and fair play make a finer epitaph than any that could be chiseled on stone by mortal hand.

We are indebted to him for his industry and good works and the world is better for his having lived. He will always remain pleasantly in our memories.

Frank P. Cronin

Frank Quinn Cronin was born in New London, Conn., on Nov. 13, 1882, the son of Jeremiah D. and Annie Quinn Cronin.

Mr. Cronin possessed a personality which gained for him the respect and lasting friendship of those with whom he came in contact in the practice of his profession, and his death is not only regretted by the members of the bar of New London county but by all those who were privileged to form his acquaintance.

Henry H. Burnham

Henry Harrison Burnham, one of the older members of the New London Bar, died at Baltimore, Maryland, on the 28th day of May, 1924, while on a visit to his eldest son, Mr. Burnham was born on the second day of August, 1845, at Coventry, Rhode Island, the son of Andrew Clark Burnham of Lisbon, Conn., and his wife, Cynthia Cruff Remington of Coventry, Rhode Island.

Early in his practice he became a prosecuting liquor agent for New London county, under appointment by the county commissioners, which office through successive appointments he held for many years, successfully prosecuting a great number of violators of the then liquor law. Upon the creation of the town court of Griswold on July 1, 1903, he became its first judge, in which capacity he served until barred by the constitutional provision relative to age in 1915. He then became prosecuting attorney of this court, which position he occupied until his death.

Mr. Burnham possessed a naturally judicial mind and in the determination of disputed question of law and fact his judgment was exceptionally good. This was recognized in the early days of his practice in Norwich, when many cases were returned before him as a justice of the peace. He was an omnivorous reader, and blessed with a tenacious memory, he was able to store away for future ready use much of value gleaned from a wide assortment of books.

STATE TO PAY TAXES FOR STATE INSTITUTIONS

Towns and cities of Connecticut in which state institutions or other property are located will receive taxes from the state in proportion to the stage's acreage in those municipalities under a bill favorably reported in the legislature Wednesday by the finance committee.

This will be a matter of much interest to several New London county towns where state institutions are located. Norwich has Uncas-on-Thames, Preston has the state hospital, and East Lyme has the Seaside and the state farm for women, all state institutions. Senator F. A. Beckwith of East Lyme has been one of the champions of the bill.

The bill requires the tax commissioner, at five-year intervals after August 1, 1926, to determine as of Oct. 1, of the previous year the value of all the land owned by the state in any town of the state. The state will annually pay to these towns a certain sum each year as state grant which would be the equivalent of taxes. The amount of the grant in each case would be determined by multiplying the number of acres of such land by the average assessed value per acre of taxable land in the community, treating each class of land separately, and multiplying the result by the prevailing tax rate in the town. In no case, under the bill could the charge against the state for such land be made greater than the valuation put upon improved farm land.

The same bill would repeal the section of the general statutes requiring the return to towns, cities and boroughs interested, the amount of fines and costs received from prisoners from those municipalities, less 5 per cent. allowed the sheriffs as compensation for making the returns. It would also repeal the 1923 law requiring the state forester to pay to the towns in which state forest land is located 5 per cent. of the value on the stump wood and timber cut on such land in the previous year and sold by the state at a profit.

FORECLOSURE GRANTED ON BROADWAY RESIDENCE

Foreclosures in Norwich and East Lyme were granted by Judge Isaac Wolfe in the superior court short calendar session in this city Friday morning:

Foreclosure in favor of the Bankers Trust Co., of this city, was granted against Edna and Leopold Schaller in the sum of $7,954.64 of a mortgage on the residence of property, No. 171 Broadway. The mortgage was given May 31, 1923, for $7,500. The limitation for redemption was set for June 29, and succeeding days.

Another mortgage foreclosure granted was in favor of Charles B. Prettyman of Philadelphia against Eugene W., and Bertha Royce Hester, et al., of Passaic, N. J., in the sum of $2,197.66 on lot No. 35 at White Beach, East Lyme. A mortgage was given for $1,500 on May 9, 1921 to Charles S. Fuller of Somers, who assigned it to Prettyman on Sept. 25, 1922. Another mortgage for $500 on the property was given to Prettyman on Sept. 25, 1922. The limitation date is June 22, 1925, and succeeding days.

Hygienic Fibre Co. vs. Versailles Sanitary Fibre Mills, Inc., receiver's semi-annual account was approved and order was entered for the payment by the receiver, P. Leroy Harwood, of a 10 per cent. dividend on the allowed claims.

In Lubchansky vs. Sullivan Granite Co., motion for leave to withdraw pleading purporting to be an answer was granted and the judge took the papers after hearing the arguments on a motion to erase for want of jurisdiction.

The judge also took the papers on the arguments for a temporary injunction in Cream vs. Bourque.

Frank W. Browning's monthly report as receiver of the Uncas Paperboard Co., was approved. A profit of $7,467.83 was shown in operation from March 14 to May 16, 1925.

In O'Connor, et al, vs. Ball and Company—an order authorizing receiver to sell assets was entered, the time to present claims was extended one week, and the receiver's semi-annual report was approved.

Several matters on the list were postponed.

CHILD FATALITIES FEARFUL IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS

Nearly five hundred children have been injured or killed in Connecticut motor vehicle accidents between January first and May first of this year, it was announced Friday by the state motor vehicle department. Thirty-five of the injuries proved fatal. The number of children killed in automobile accidents in the corresponding period of last year was twenty-seven.

The whole number of people of all ages who have been injured in motor vehicle accidents in the last four months of 1925 is about 1,170, and the fatality list, taking all ages into account, stood at eighty-four on the first of May, thirty-eight of which occurred last month.

Accidents to children have increased steadily in the large cities of the state this year, except for a slight drop in Hartford in February. Seven children under 14 years old were hurt in New Haven in January, fourteen in February, twenty-one in March and twenty-six in April, whereas Hartford had eleven in March and twenty-six in April.

Special efforts are being made by school authorities in these two cities to combat the increase in accidents to school children. By request, the motor vehicle department furnishes the superintendent of schools, Fred D. Wish, Jr., of Hartford, with a monthly detailed list of accidents to Hartford children, showing where the different accidents occurred. This list is then sub-divided by classifying each accident according to the school district in which it occurred, and the schools of each district receive the list for that district. Greater caution is then urged at the locations where accidents are shown to have occurred in the previous month. Similar reports showing details about accidents involving New Haven children were forwarded recently by request to the principal of a public school in that city.

Among progressive farmers in Rockville, R. I., who are planting for big crops of ensilage corn are Ulysses Gardiner, Prospect Hill, and John Dye at the Flint Arrow farm.

SEEKING THE MURDERER OF MISS AIDA HEYWARD

Maine State Police Are in Quest of Harry A. Kirby—A Posse of American Legion Members is Searching the Woods in the Vicinity of Winthrop, Me.—The State Has Offered a Reward of $1,000 For the Capture of the Person or Persons Guilty of the Crime.

Winthrop, Me., May 24.—Harry A. Kirby, sought in connection with the murder of Miss Aida Heyward here on Tuesday night, was still at liberty tonight, although state highway police had run a dozen tips in as many towns into the ground, while a posse of American Legion members and other citizens kept up their search of the neighboring woods begun last night.

It was a day of sudden alarms, beginning at midnight last night when Chief F. E. Sanborn of the highway police telephoned his headquarters in Augusta that he felt confident that Kirby had been cornered in Portland. Within five minutes 15 of the motorcycle police were converging on Portland. Kirby was not found.

Earlier in the day his suitcase, bearing his initials, had been found at the Union station, Portland, where it had been checked through from Augusta. The case was opened and found to contain men's clothing. Identification was made positive by a key ring to which the shank of a key was attached.

Dr. Carl Bates of Winthrop, one of the three men who found the body of Miss Heyward yesterday in the Flint cottage on Great Pine Point, Lake Maranacook, found that the shank fitted the portion of the key which had been broken off in the lock of the Flint cottage which Kirby had occupied for two weeks.

Again Kirby was reported in Mechanics Falls; in Vassalboro, a Russian national was picked up until he established that he was released from the Kennebec jail on Friday, while from Rome, Belgrade and North Turner came other rumors that proved groundless.

At dawn today Miss Heyward was buried. Before the throng of curious which crowded the village during the day had collected and before the many who had searched through most of the night were astir, simple services were conducted at the grave in Lakeside cemetery. The Rev. H. F. Aldrich, pastor of the Winthrop Methodist church, read the brief prayers.

Announcement was made that Governor Ralph O. Brewster in behalf of the state, had offered an award of $1,000 for the capture of the person or persons responsible for the murder of Miss Heyward.

A photograph of Kirby, enlarged from a print owned by Miss Jennie Gray of Watertown, Mass., an intimate friend of Mrs. Ruby Kirby, his wife, was posted on the front of the Winthrop house with a description of Kirby under the caption "Wanted."

The questioning of Mrs. Emma M. Towns, aunt of Miss Heyward, who was wounded in the arm and throat, has been further delayed. The bulletin issued by her physician this morning said that while she had passed a fairly comfortable night and had shown improved heart action, her stomach was still unable to take nourishment requisite to regain her strength.

DROP OF 46 DEGREES IN TEMPERATURE IN NEW YORK

New York, May 24—(A. P.)—After sweltering under yesterday's midsummer temperatures the highest for any May 23 in more than 50 years, the east shivered today as a cold rainstorm put a sudden end to the season's first heat wave and sent the the temperature tumbling 46 degrees.

In the Middle West the change was even greater, Chicago experiencing its coldest May 24 in the history of its weather bureau. Major League baseball games in Chicago and Cleveland were postponed because of the cold, while in the East the rain halted one game scheduled in New York and stopped the St. Louis-Brooklyn clash at the beginning of the sixth inning.

The week-end's violent extremes of heat and cold were unprecedented for this time of year, weather officials said. At the peak of yesterday's heat the temperature was 92 degrees. In the late afternoon it began to fall and, accelerated by thunderstorms and winds last night, dropped to 46 degrees at 6:15 o'clock this morning, four degrees higher than the lowest temperature for the day recorded here.

The storm was more severe at sea and was accompanied by hail, officers of the liner Carmenia reported when the ship arrived. Heavy winds accompanied the storm in Westchester county. At Croton, reservoirs which supply New York with water 1.5 inches of rain fell.

Tonight and tomorrow will be still cooler in and near New York, with probable showers, it was forecast.

ADOLPH HITLER IS MAN WITHOUT A COUNTRY

Munich, Germany, May 24—Adolph Hitler, who was once leader of the fascisti in Bavaria and was responsible for the "beer-cellar" revolt at Munich two years ago, has become a man without a country by the Austrian government's official announcement of his expatriation. The Bavarian government has refused to grant him citizenship, and he is expected to apply to the reich. In April 1924 Hitler was sentenced to five years imprisonment, but in December of the same year he was released and went to Austria.

REVENUE CUTTER AT SEA 14 DAYS ON RUM DUTY

Stapleton, N. Y., May 24—The revenue cutter Ossipee returned to her base tonight after being at sea for eighteen days as part of the dry navy on guard at rum row. During most of this time the cutter had been watching the two masted schooner Frieda Zimmerman, and with the aid of four small picket boats had kept the small boats of the bootleggers from getting to her. She lies between Atlantic City and Cape May.

Members of the Ossippee's crew said tonight that the crew of the Frieda Zimmerman had told them the ship was provisioned and watered for an indefinite stay on rum row, and that the dry navy would not be able to starve her out. On her way in, the Ossippee saw a steamer and two schooners off the hook, both with liquor for sale but prevented from selling it by several cutters and picket boats. The steamship Margaret was due on rum row tonight with 2,500 cases of Scotch, but additional picket boats were ready to meet her.

All of the forty two boats of the dry navy were hard hit by today's storm, but they rode it out except a few smaller boats which put into New Jersey ports for safety.

New York, May 24.—Mrs. Helen Auguste Geise'-Volk, proprietress of a "baby farm," who pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging baby substitution, will be arraigned tomorrow on the manslaughter charge which was subsequently returned by a grand jury. The latter indictment was based on the death of William Winters, six-month-old inmate of her institution, whose exhumed body revealed a fractured skull.

Mrs. Geisen-Volk, who was a Red Cross nurse in the German army during the World war, denied charges of criminal negligence, in connection with twenty-four deaths in her institution within a year, and charges of general cruelty and unsanitary practices. She is held in bail of $36,000.

RUBBER PLANTATIONS WILL PAY THE BRITISH DEBT

Washington, May 24—(A. P.)—Commerce department inquiries now being concluded indicate that extra profits from only one of the sources of British wealth—the rubber planations of the East Indies—will be sufficient to cover all of that nation's future repayment folta war debt to the United States.

American imports of raw rubber, which cost $185,000,000 during the calendar year 1924, probably will cost $400,000,000 for 1925 and at least a part of this prospective is unofficially attributed to the operation of a scheme for production restriction worked out by the plantation interests through the British colonial office.

Partial report of the investigation undertaken at the direction of Secretary Hoover was made public to meet the pressure for information from the rubber industry in view of recent sharp price increases. Crude rubber that sold as low as 17 cents a pound in 1924, reached 46 cents last January, world's visible stocks are disappearing 70 on nervous markets, while the world's visible stocks are disappearing and exchange prices of English plantation company shares are soaring. The United States, with three great industries concerned, petroleum, automobile and rubber goods manufacture is particularly interested in the situation because its consumption is 70 per cent. of the world's total output.

Secretary Hoover, in a foreword to the partial report, expressed no opinion as to whether the government restriction on production in the English colonies was responsible for the great price advance, but warned that the falling off in new planting was likely to create a real rubber shortage by 1928 or 1930.

One of the American objectives, he indicated, should be to "find means to stimulate competitive production" in other tropical areas of the world.

MACRI JURY DEBATED UNTIL 2.10 IN MORNING

New Haven, May 24—

The jury's deliverations in the trial of Olympia Macri came to a

The jury's deliberations came to a temporary end at 2:10 o'clock this morning after the men had debated for half a day and nearly all of the night in an attempt to bring to an end a murder trial that is now entering its sixth week.

A crowd of nearly 200 persons in the court room and several hundred others outside the building waited through the weary hours of Saturday night for some definite word from the jury, which received the Macri case at 4:16 yesterday morning.

The jury made an appearance in the court room but twice during the day and night. At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, they came in for further instructions from the court especially on the points of self defense and reasonable doubt. They then returned to their deliberations but again appeared in the court room shortly after 9 o'clock. Their question at that hour showed that they were divided and deadlocked, for they asked to have the court read to them the minority clause of the state statutes relating ot jury deliberation.

The 12 men again returned to their task after gaining the desired information and hour after hour passed with no word from them. Judge Avery announced at 1 o'clock this morning that he would permit the jury men to continue their deliberations throughout the night if they desired it, but said he would order them locked up in a hotel if they wished him to do so. The suggestion of the court was not accepted and at 2.10 this morning, the judge, apparently believing that there was no hopes of an early verdict, ordered that the men be taken to a nearby hotel and called a recess until Monday morning.

Miss Macri, who had remained in the court room throughout the night with Mrs. Josepha Whitney, society leader who has offered to adopt both Olympia Macri and her baby if the former is acquitted or to care for the baby if the girl mother is found guilty, also with the wife of Jailer Baldwin, was returned to the county jail.

TROUBLES OF FOREIGN CAPITAL IN MEXICO

Mexico City, May 24—Prior to his departure for the United States James R. Sheffield, the American ambassador, has summarized the concrete results of his negotiations with the Mexican government. He has received assurance from President Calles that action is being taken to restore the mill and sugar cane lands and drive off the squatters from the property owned by the American, Arthur N. Sharpton, located on both sides of of the San Louis Potosi-Quertaro border. The Sharpton case, which has been pending since 1922, was declared by the ambassador as being the most troublesome of those which the embassy has attempted to settle.

Acknowledgment of the receipt of two notes sent by the embassy in behalf of the British government has been received from the Mexican foreign office but no further information. The notes asked what action had been taken relative to Francisco Reis and Alejo Garcia, who were sentenced to death for the killing of Mrs. Rosalie Evans, a British subject, last August. These men were reported to be at liberty pending the decision of the supreme court on their appeal.

The ambassador admitted that the American smelting and Refining company had submitted to the embassy, numerous labor and agrarian troubles which were being experienced on their properties throughout the republic. Thus far he could not report a final settlement, although he expected prompt action by the government to afford the protection requested.

The crisis arising through the threat of American and British banks to liquidate and abandon the country, should the newly formed bank employes syndicate attempt to enforce its demands, had become a closed issue, said the ambassador, because of the syndicate's abandonment of its program.

Complete protection is being given to George Camp, the American who is operating the former Evans ranch in the state of Puebla for the American heirs, the ambassador stated, and federal troops are preventing the agrarians from harvesting the wheat crop.

Negotiations likewise are pending regarding the refusal of the theatrical union to allow Randolph Jennings, the American owner of the large downtown moving picture house in Mexico City to resume showing pictures after renting his theater to a traveling opera company for a fortnight, and also in the case of the agrarians' attempted expropriation of a million square metres of property located just outside Mexico City limits, which an American-owned real estate company is subdividing for residential purposes.

TIDAL WAVE ON SOUTHERN SHORE OF LAKE ONTARIO

Oscillating of Surface of the Lake is Thought to Have Been Produced by Variations in Atmospheric Pressure—Regular Causes of Tidal Waves Were Absent—Contradictory Reports Have Been Made of the Phenomena.

Boston, May 24—A report on the so-called tidal wave which swept the southern shore of Lake Ontario yesterday, received by the Engineering-Economics Foundation here today from its Buffalo correspondent, stated that a preliminary examination of seismograph records showed no earth tremor at Buffalo. The foundation, which is engaged in organizing knowledge of the earthquake hasard in the northeastern area of the United States, supplemented this announcement with the following statement:

"The reports from New York are contradictory. The condition is mentioned both as a coast tidal wave and as a seiche. A seiche is an oscillation of the surface of a lake thought to be produced by variations in atmospheric pressure. Seiches are especially noted on the Swiss lakes.

"A tidal wave follows an earthquake tremor, as in Tokio, or is produced by exceptionally strong winds, as in Galveston.

Seiche does not act as a tidal wave does. It is a rise and fall in the surface of a lake, but not a rolling wave such as observers declare this was to have been, rising and receding as waves do on the shore.

"Observers generally state that the wind was light in this case. Therefore one of the two regular causes of tidal waves—very heavy winds—seems to be absent."

The statement adds that until further information is had and all seismographic stations in turn report, this is as far as the record can be given.

LIGHTNING STRIKES TWICE AT HEBRON, SATURDAY P. M.

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, May 24—Lightning hit twice in the town of Hebron, in the shower late Saturday afternoon. The first time it splintered a button-ball tree which stands in the door yard of the old Wallace White place, owned and occupied by Mrs. Etta Horton, entering the house and playing about the basement and finally finding its way out again without serious damage to house or occupants. The second time it entered the house of Paul Patocelli, on the Gilead road, removing a section of plaster, also some of clapboards.

BOLT AT NORTH FRANKLIN ENTERS ON AERIAL WIRE

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, May 24—During the early Saturday morning, the home of Clifford H. Robinson of North Franklin was entered by a bolt of lightning, causing minor damages to the building, but creating excitement among the members of the household. The bolt came in on an aerial wire not at the time connected with a radio set, on the north side of the house. The house was filled with smoke, there was a deafening reverberation, practically all the window panes on the eastern side of the house were shattered, as the bolt entered the building passed through the dining room, charring the entire north side of the room, and loosening a large section of the plaster, which fell to the floor. Mrs. Robinson was just entering the dining room door as the bolt came in on the wire. Probably the fact that the aerial was well grounded was the only thing that prevented a fire. The Robinson place, which is about one hundred and fifteen years old has been entered by lightning once before.

NEW LONDON MERCHANTS DEBATE PLAN OF MEMORIAL DAY CLOSING

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, May 24—There is considerable discussion as to whether the stores of this city will close next Saturday, in observance of Memorial day. There is manifested a disposition on the part of many merchants to do business on that day. An agreement, or at least a tacit understanding prevails among storekeepers that when a holiday falls on Saturday that the stores shall keep open for business on the preceding Friday and that business shall be suspended on the holiday that follows. But that understanding was reached in other years when the volume of business was far greater than it seems to be now. That makes a difference with the stores that are affected by closing. There are always merchants who will not be bound by any agreement that apparently affects their pocketbooks and these balk at the idea of suspending business on the day that is regarded as the best in the week, the best in every week. During the week an understanding is expected to be reached and by that the merchants will stand, as to closing or doing business.

The city of New London has ordered a Seagrave extension ladder for the fire department. A decision to do this was reached Friday evening when the members of the council heard the merits of the Seagrave and the La France apparatus explained. The matter had been before the council, but some pressure was brought to bear that created a hot contest as to which make of ladder should be procured. The meeting Friday night resulted in the rejection of all bids received by the council and the giving of instructions to City Manager Holt to buy the Seagrave make of ladder with the understanding that a report to that effect would be made to the council when it meets Monday evening. That course was regarded as a bit irregular by some of the members, but it was adopted and the city manager acted upon it at once, that the city might have the apparatus so long needed with as little delay as possible.

Five drunks are to come before the police court Monday morning. They were picked up Saturday night and Sunday. Three of them were found on North Bank street, one on Green St., and one on the government wharf.

Officer Babcock found a couple of boys with a suit case on the street yesterday, the lads saying that they found it. The case contained the clothing evidently of a sailor. The officer took the suit case to the police station where it awaits a claimant.

Patrolman Sloan discovered the door of Music hall unlocked last night, when he was making his round on Bank street. He could not lock it, and perhaps that condition confronted the fellow who was supposed to see that the place was fastened when the parties that occupy the hall for dancing purposes left it to go to their homes. The hall has been occupied by colored people for dances of late.

No information comes as to the purpose of the owners of the building wherein was located for many years the Rialto theatre. The building was badly damaged by fire some months ago. No effort has been made to reestablish it nor is it known that a settlement has effected with the owners that will permit them to go ahead with the restoration of the building. It was constructed for a theatre years ago and has been used for such all the years it has been in existence. It is not readily adaptable to other purposes. The Rialto passed through some varied experience for the lessees and it is claimed that no money was ever made for those who operated it. Now, however, the theatre and picture business is more prosperous in New London than it has ever been, according to parties who know.

Policeman Carlos Selesnitzky has been suspended from duty for infraction of the rules of the department, in absenting himself from his post for a period of forty-five minutes without having obtained permission to be off duty. The infraction occurred Friday and on Saturday when report was made to Capt. Pinney that official suspended Selesnitzky until he was brought before City Manager Holt for discipline. Officer Selesnitzky is declared by other officers to be one of the policemen who insisted upon discipline being enforced among the patrolmen, and who, in his testimony at the police probe, declared that there was a lack of discipline on the force.

The police of New London have been asked to be on the lookout for a Buick automobile carrying registration of Connecticut 1247 that was stolen at New Haven Saturday. The automobile has a blue body, so is conspicuous on that account.

The marriage is announced of Albert N. Tiffany and Carrie A. Smith, both of Groton. They were wedded on the 7th inst., but did not make known their marriage until Saturday. Justice C. Tyler Landphere performed the ceremony.

Groton Grange has been presented a parcel of land on which the grange will erect a home. The donor is George Marquardt, who does not claim membership in the grange, but who entertains the highest regard for the organization and is a believer in the principles espoused by the members He gave the grange the choice of two lots, located on Monument and on Bridge street. The grange chose the Bridge street site. The erection of a substantial building on the land will aid in the development of the section in which it is located. A building committee will take over the property and then will come the new home of the grange. The grange had eight charter members at the meeting Friday evening when the 16th anniversary of the organization was observed. The present master of the grange was the master of the order when the Groton grange was instituted, and Deacon Cyrus, the chaplain, has served during the 16 years the grange has been in existence.

Donald Casey, a youth of 19 has made up his mind that he will not operate an automobile during the next year. He didn't come to that conclusion, though, till Judge Prince, in the police court Saturday told him that one of the penalties he must pay for his experience Thursday night was to forfeit his license. Motor Vehicle Commissioner Stoeckel put his approval on the suggestion that Judge Prince made to him so Casey goes from the wheel to the bat, or to the bench, from which he will not rise, and drive a machine. Casey has not had a record as an auto driver that the motor vehicle department cares to continue.

This city had a variety of weather Saturday that brought to mind what Mark Twain said "that New England could furnish every variety of climate in any twenty-four hours." A thunder storm broke over the city last evening and it brought rain and hail in abundance. The hail was as large as peas. This followed a sultry atmosphere and a high temperature that made humanity swelter. Sunday the temperature had dropped about fifteen degrees and top coats were worn with comfort.

An automobile owned and driven by Walter L. Hillyer, proprietor of a Howard street garage, struck and killed a horse owned by a Chesterfield farmer Frameport, on the Hartford turnpike, early Saturday morning. According to Hillyer, he was operating his machine from Hartford to New London and when the car reached a point between Colchester and Chesterfield, he observed the team standing on the wrong side of the highway, for the team was headed in the opposite direction from which the automobile was traveling. Hillyer attempted to drive around the team, but was unsuccessful, with the result that the horse was struck and dragged a considerable distance. The animal was badly lacerated and died a few minutes after being struck.

Valentine Rielle of Montville, was arrested late Friday night by State Policemen Bobnick and Johnson, of Groton barracks, charged with breach of the peace. He was brought to the New London police station and held a prisoner over night and Saturday morning he was given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Oscar W. Church of Montville and fined $10 and costs. He paid. Rielle returned to his home Friday night and was in an ugly mood, with the result that he engaged in a row with members of his family. So boisterous was Rielle that the state police were notified and his arrest followed.

Mrs. George Hastings and infant daughter, of 946 Bank street, Mrs. James Gray, Ledyard; Mrs. Wells Harris, Blackhall; Miss Jean Bisett, 12 George street, Westerly, and Mrs. Richard Roberts, 99 Elderkin avenue, Groton, patients at Lawrence Memorial hospital, were dismissed Saturday.

Elias B. and Mary E. Hartman have sold a two family house on Huntington street to Mary B. Hewitt.

A small blaze at the summer residence of Edward H. Bindley, corner of Montauk and Pequot avenues Saturday afternoon resulted in a still alarm being sent to fire headquarters. Fire Chief Charles Rose and the Pequot Hose company responded and the blaze was extinguished without damage of consequence, by applying chemicals.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel has caused the operators' licenses of Harry Berg, 12 Williams street, and Carl Angelo, a sailor at the submarine base, to be returned to the owners. Both Berg and Angelo were recently convicted of infractions of the automobile law.

Residents at Ocean Beach were awakened early Saturday morning by the sound of swishing water and investigating they discovered that a section of the new main being installed at the corner of Ocean and Bentley avenues, had burst and that a deluge was being emptied into Ocean avenue. A telephone message was sent to police resulting in a fireman of the city's repair gang being notified of the break. The damaged main was repaired during the day, but not until thousands of gallons of water had gone to waste.

Patrolman Henry Sylvia detected Joseph McDonald, a young man on Bank street early Saturday morning carrying a gallon demijohn of homemade wine and was of the opinion that McDonald was either transporting the wine for purpose of sale or else had it for immediate sale. Sylvia took the wine to the police station, but McDonald was not arrested as there was not sufficient evidence to obtain his conviction for violation of the liquor law.

A gang of youths, from nine to 12, were taken into custody Saturday morning by Sergeant John Cavanaugh because of their mischievous conduct and were turned over to Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield for presentation in the juvenile court next week. The boys had visited the O'Neil bakery, Prest street several times and on each visit had stolen freshly made pies. So great was the annoyance of the bakery proprietor that he obtained relief by complaining to the police.

Alvin E. Vail has sold a store and dwelling, corner of Prest and Blackhall streets, to Jacob Lazrow.

"What is to be the action taken by City Manager Holt, in regard to the police, Monday evening?" was asked of a member of the city council today. The reply was "The city manager has guarded his intentions so that no one has been told what he will do, but he can be depended upon to act in a way that he believes is wise and for the best interests of the city. He has made a study of the information that came to him during the inquiry into the efficiency of the police department and has sifted the grain from the chaff. He is no novice as to the ways of men and he is not to be forced or steered in the direction he takes in this matter. He means to have a police force that is under strict discipline and he means that rules will be established that can and will be observed in the management and the conduct of the police force. When he has accomplished that, he will have done what he has striven to accomplish and will have brought about a situation that the people will approve and heartily endorse." That was a pretty fair and frank statement of the probable course of the city manager. The councilor volunteered the information that the city manager did not take much stock in tales that had been carried to members of the council regarding infractions of discipline by police officers. He regarded the motive that led to the stories being carried and has weighed the evidence with that thought in mind. His action has been decided upon, but he will not make it known until he tells the councilors what it is, next Monday evening. That there will be a throng to hear what action the manager will take in the situation there is no doubt, for interest is at a high pitch.

The hospital this afternoon notified the police here of the escape of Stanley Strasinsky, aged about 23 years. He is being sought in this city.

John A. Herwitsky, the police reported from Ocean Beach, was doing business there today in the Leverone building. What there was peculiar about that fact was not stated.

HELD IN $1,000 BAIL FOR TRANSPORTING LIQUOR

New York, May 24.—Arrested on a warrant from Danbury, Conn., charging liquor transportation, Frank C. Scollins, a retired druggist and former cafe owner of Danbury, was held in $1,000 bail for hearing on Tuesday when he was arraigned in the West Side court today.

Scollins was arrested at the Pennsylvania station yesterday. Police said that he had been sought since the fall of 1923 on suspicion of being implicated in the operation of a farm near Danbury, which was said to be used as a storage plant for liquor running trucks.

Sixteen persons were arrested, liquor valued at between $350,000 and $450,000 was seized in Boston and in New York and the existence of a new overland rum route from Canada to Maine seaports was learned as a result of activities of federal officers in Boston in exposing what are believed to be two huge million dollar liquor rings.

MEXICANS ARRESTED FOR TREASONABLE ACTIVITY

Mexico City, May 24.—General Avelino Salas, the mayor and all the members of the municipal council of one of the suburbs of Mexico City were arrested Friday night by mounted police under orders of the Federal district government. The department of the interior announces that the arrests were due to treasonable activity, the allegation being made that the men were plotting against the life of President Calles. Those arrested have been waging political war against the government of the Federal district.

About the same time the police raided the hom eof General Ireneo Ayala, in Tacuba, another Mexico City suburb. They arrested two men and seized several documents, which, it is alleged, indicated that the general was attempting to organize a revolt in support of former Minister of Finance De La Huerta.

The copy of a letter to Monsignor Mora Y Del Rio, archbishop of Mexico, signed by "Ireneo" as supreme commander, placing his sword at the church's service, a manifesto urging the people to support the movement and blanks for appointments to the Southern revolutionary armies, are also said by the police to have been seized.

Members of the United States park police in Washington, sixty strong, as a general practice must confine their activities to the parks and may not join the metropolitan police in prohibition raids.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

A cold northeast storm—in striking contrast to the oppressive heat of Saturday—altered in material degree the plans of patriotic organizations and citizens in general to pay homage at South Killingly Sunday afternoon to the memory of the heroic dead. Nevertheless delegations went out from Danielson and joined with the people of South Killingly and surrounding communities in the Memorial Sunday service held at the Congregational church at that place. Decorating of the graves of the soldier dead and of others buried in the cemeteries at South Killingly was a feature of the day. In the evening, members of the patriotic societies attended a Memorial service held at the Baptist church here.

In the drive for the American Legion Endowment fund about to be undertaken in this section the American Legion post under Commander Joseph Burton has a real task to perform in raising the quota of more than $2700 that has been assigned to it.

This particular effort of the world war veterans is entitled to receive more consideration than the average drive for numerous and good and sufficient reasons.

Consider, for instance, that nearly seven years after the signing of the Armistice, 30,000 disabled veterans of the world war are stretched on beds of pain in government hospitals alone. Thousands more are being cared for by relatives and friends. Still other thousands are without relatives or friends or hope—hungry, broken in health, neglected—these the heroes of 1917-18. Every day that passes brings additions to the number of world war veterans needing other aid and assistance than the government provides. Every week that passes marks an addition by 500 of the veterans receiving hospital treatment. The passing years are taking their toll of the hardships of the terrible months over there.

At the present time the American Legion, in a nation-wide effort, is striving to do something over and above what the government has done to relieve the suffering of these veterans and to provide for them in future years. This effort constitutes an effort to raise $5,000,000, in an endowment fund. The income from this fund will be used in the care of disabled veterans and orphans of the victims of the world war. One could not give to a more humanitarian cause. Legion members here feel that the public will not deny them when the soliciting beings in this great campaign for those who have bled on the altar of liberty. Men may erect statues to national heros, but men cannot do more than give money to aid the victims of the nation's glory. It is very likely that Killingly will do just that thing, for Killingly has a proud record of loyalty and patriotism, extending back more than 200 years.

Announcement was made at the week end that the offering at St. Alban's church on the evening of Ascension day, when Knights Templar were in attendance, was $96.50. This money will be turned over to the civic federation, to be used for the work of that organization.

Over the week end nothing definite developed relative to the burglaries that occurred here and at Dayville during the past week. The breaks have been so bold and of such a nature as to arouse the interest of many citizens in aiding the police to detect the perpetrators and to bring them to justice.

Next Saturday—Memorial day—business will be generally suspended in Danielson. Manufacturing plants will be closed for the day and only a few stores that regularly remain open in Danielson on holidays will be doing business. The banks will be closed for the day and the postoffice will be observing the usual holiday schedule of hours.

Rain Sunday cut to a minimum for such a day the heavy traffic that is customary at this time of year. Fewer machines were moving than on any Sunday of the recent spring season. Officers watching traffic found little to give them concern.

Danielson people, interested in the general welfare of eastern Connecticut feel like giving three cheers when they read that Putnam has acquired a new industry in the Bloom Silk company. In this modern day, wise people have come to agree that prosperity of all communities in close touch with each other reacts for the general benefit of all. So wha tis good for Putnam is good for Danielson and all other centers in this vicinity.

Measurements were not in Sunday evening, but an estimate of the rainfall for 24 hours up to that time was in excess of one inch.

Florists were rushed at the week end with orders for flowers to be used in connection with Memorial services on Sunday.

As a straw hat Sunday, yesterday was a great day for a cap or rubber headgear.

Members of the cast of Bimbo, the American legion production, held a dress rehearsal at the Orpheum theatre Sunday afternoon.

Dr. E. V. Claypool, superintendent of the Connecticut Anti-Saloon league, spoke at the Methodist church Sunday.

Rev. E. A. Legg, formerly a pastor of the Methodist church in Danielson, preached at a union service at the Congregational church Sunday morning.

FRANK W. BENNETT, DAYVILLE, DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

(Special to the Bulletin)

Danielson, May 24—After a period of several years of broken health, Frank W. Bennett died early Saturday morning at Abington. The body was removed to his home in Dayville, where he had been a resident for a great many years and where he was a prominent citizen, long identified with the manufacturing interests of that community, as he also had been with the affairs of the town as an efficient and capable official, filling at different times the offices of selectmen and auditor.

Mr. Bennett was born in this town August 30, 1849, a son of Samson and Abby Kelly Bennett. His father came of a family long identified with the affairs of this section of eastern Connecticut and his mother was a descendant of Deacon William Kelley, a son of John Kelley, first of his name in the new world and a member of the Massachusetts Bay colony. Deacon Kelley came to Killingly in 1786 following farming and carpentering as occupations.

In his boyhood Mr. Bennett studied in the schools of this town, later going to a high school at Exeter, N. H., for a year and following this special course of study with a commercial study course at a business college. His introduction in the business world was as an assistant in the business office of the Sayles mills at Dayville, a plant with which he was destined to be identified through the greater part of his active years in life. At the time of his taking first employment at the Sayles mill he was but 15 years of age. In 1880 and 1881 he was with the T. E. Hopkins mill at Elmville, this period marking the only exception to his association with the Dayville mill where he began his business experience, he being employed there through several changes of management and ownership.

In 1902 the business at Dayville was incorporated under the name of the Asawaga Woolen company, a very successful concern, Mr. Bennett becoming accountant and in 1914 being advanced to be secretary of the corporation, a position he continued to fill up to the time of his health becoming so shattered that he was obliged to relinquish active work. He was ever a valuable and scrupulously careful and efficient officer, being familiar with every phase of the work, including administrative direction and executive control.

May 29, 1885, Mr. Bennett was united in marriage with Carrie W. Williams, a daughter of Asa and Ellen Williams of Killingly. Mrs. Bennett died in August, 1920. Of this union there are three children, Mrs. Ruth Pierce of Dayville, Wayland W. Bennett, an accountant, who is now on his way east from Leavenworth, Kansas, and Merrill Kelley Bennett of the food research department of Leland Stanford university at Palo Alto, Cal. Both sons served overseas with the American forces during the world war.

Mr. Bennett was for years one of the best known members of the Republican party in the town of Killingly. He was a member of Moriah lodge, A. F. and A. M., and had been associated with the A. O. U. and Knights of Pythias. At Dayville Mr. Bennett had been an attendant of the Congregational church.

PUTNAM

Putnam won the second annual typewriting contest between Putnam High and Killingly High of Danielson, held here Friday night. The pupils of the local school made an average of 40 words to the minute, to 39 1-2 words of the Killingly High. This brings to Putnam the championship cup, which was won by Killingly High last year.

In the individual contest in the senior classes, Deborah May Codding, of Killingly High, won first honors, writing 70 words to the minute and Gertrude Della Marion of Putnam High second honors, with 63 words. In the junior classes Ednaer Fredericka Guy of Putnam High was first with 48.8 to the minute and Dora Alice Bonin second, with 48.7 words.

An unusual distinction was given to the contest by the presence as one of the referee of Miss Bessie Friedman, of New York, who is the fastests woworld. After the contest was over man typewriter in America and in the Miss Friedman gave a demonstration of her mastery of the writing machine. It was not a test and no record was kept but at the speed at which she wrote, she could have recorded the exact words of a rapid speaker. The precision of the fast work in it freedom from errors was almost marvelous.

All the members of the senior and junior classes of the commercial departments of the two school took part and many other students of Killingly High were here to witness the contest.

The second referee was Mr. McCann of Hartford. This annual contest is now officially recognized in the contest department of one of the largest manufacturers of typewriters and Miss Friedman was here as its representative.

A nuptial mass was celebrated at St. Mary's church, Friday morning at 8 o'clock, by Rev. Charles F. Bedard, in observance of the 50th anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Durand, of Battey street. Mr. Durand was born in Juliette, Canada, July 2, 1852. He came to the United States when a boy 16, and worked in the shoe factories at West Boylston, Spencer and Webster, Mass. After nine years he returned to Juliette and married Miss Emilie Roberts. The couple first went to St. Jean de Mathu to live, but 30 years ago came to Putnam.

Upon his arrival in Putnam, Mr. Durand first started a shoe repairing business, but after a few years opened a grocery store which he conducted successfully for 20 years. Six years ago he sold his store at the corner of Battey and Church streets to Oscar Dugas. He next opened a little store on Providence street which is now conducted by his son, Omer.

Seventeen children have been born to them, nine of which are living, Joseph and Benoni, the latter a member of the Putnam police force, Emory, of Juliette, Canada, Marshall of Passaic, N. J., Philip of North Grosvenordale and Mrs. Marion Page, Edmond, William and Omer of Putnam.

A peculiar incident occurred in the lives of this couple. Mrs. Durand's father died when she was a child, then later Mr. Durand's mother died. The mother of Mrs. Durand married the father of Mr. Durand.

One of the sons of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Durand Emilien, was killed by a New Haven train at the West Thompson grade crossing last November.

Intimation that passenger service on the New Haven road between Webster and Worcester, would be curtailed was given by Robert M. Smith, assistant superintendent of the New London division of the road. A newly instituted bus line between Putnam, Webster and Worcester has so decreased the number of passengers on trains that the elimination of at least one and probably more trains may be the result. Since the starting of the bus line, trolley and railroad receipts have suffered. The railroad is also losing business to the bus line running from Springfield to Providence, through Putnam.

The Putnam W. R. C. has announced that it will omit the usual dinner to all who take part in the Memorial Day exercises. The nine remaining G. A. R. veterans in Putnam have been invited to be the guests of Mrs. Hattie Miller at luncheon at the Putnam Inn on that day.

Bartlett High school of Webster broke Putnam High's winning streak of seven games by their victory over the local school team Friday afternoon, 4 to 3. In the second and third innings, the visitors hit Cartier hard, although in the rest of the game he had them well under control.

The Weensocket Checker club is to visit Putnam for a match with the local team next Friday night.

Judge Allyn L. Brown of Norwich, in the superior court has granted the divorce to Joseph Benoit from Ida Plante Benoit, on the grounds of desertion. The couple was married in 1917 and the desertion was alleged to be ten months later. After the husband brought his complaint, Mrs. Benoit entered a cross-petition, also alleging desertion.

An appeal is being made to all veterans and ex-service men of the town of Thompson to take part in the memorial services on May 30. Uniforms are not necessary as there are cases where the old army and navy issues are no longer wearable.

Mrs. Samuel Rosoff and son Herbert of Pleasant street have been visiting friends and relatives at Worcester.

Mispah lodge of Rebekahs is to institute a large class of candidates at their regular meeting next Wednesday night.

At the close of the regular business session of the Workers' Council of the Baptist church, Superintendent W. E. Ames, in behalf of the council and as a token of appreciation for the capable services of Miss Edith Bowen, the president, presented her a well filled May basket and a bouquet of flowers. Cake, wafers and ice cream were then served.

Mrs. Samuel Rosoff and son Herbert, of Pleasant street have been guests of friends and relatives in Worcester the past week.

Miss Gertrude Hall of Morristown, N. J., has been the guest of Mr. and Brs. A. Vonsiatsky, at Pomfret.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Sears are now at the Ben Grosvenor Inn, after a fortnight at Swampscott, Mass.

PLAINFIELD

A meeting of all the arrangement committees on the Memorial day celebration has been called by Commander Provost of the Army and Navy Post for this (Monday) night, at the local post rooms. The speakers will be from all over the state and a general celebration will be held by the Army and Navy. Baseball games, tennis and other sports will give local fans some excitement. Daniel J. Connel, local restaurant man, will leave Plainfield in a few weeks to take over the duties of manager of the Duncan Inn, at Blackstone, Mass.

Tuesday night a meeting of all ex-service men is to be held at the Army and Navy rooms. Final instructions will be given and the firing squad will go through its final drill before Memorial day.

SEVEN COUNTRIES TO TRY JOINT PEACE MANEUVRES

New York, May 24.—(A. P.)—"Joint peace maneuvres" by seven countries will follow the war-game in the Pacific when the new institute of Pacific relations holds its first conference at Honolulu for two weeks beginning July 1, Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of Leland Stanford, Jr., university chairman of the American group, announced today.

This, the first Pan-Pacific conference ever held, Dr. Wilbur said, will be non-political and unofficial. Prominent nationals, 150 strong, representing Canada, Japan, China, Australia, New Zealand, the Philippine Islands and the United States will discuss common problems arising from increasing intercourse of their peoples.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Bernard M. Baruch, Wallace M. Alexander, the World Peace Foundation of Boston, President A. Lawrence Lowell, of Harvard University, W. Cameron Forbes, former governor-general of the Philippines, and many other business men, publicists and educators were named among the institute's supporters.

The institute of Pacific Relations was launched two years ago by citizens of Hawaii.

Roller bearings to make street cars less noisy are being tested by trolley companies to meet bus line competition.

BALLOON TIRES TO BE TESTED ON SPEEDWAY

Indianapolis, Ind., May 24.—(A. P.)—Balloon tires will receive their first test on the Indianapolis motor speedway track next Saturday in the thirteen annual 500 mile automobile race.

Most of the "big league" drivers have equipped their cars with the low pressure tires, which they say have performed satisfactorily in the long practice spins.

The local course is of brick that have settled with age, making the going the roughest and most dangerous, the pilots say, of any track in America. Most speedways are of wood and very smooth.

Give a business man plenty of rope and he will form a cordage trust.

For Germs

No soap that is safe for toilet use will "remove" germs any better than Palmolive

If guarding a good complexion is your aim, use a soap made to protect it

SOME beauty seekers, we are told, may be practicing a grave mistake in complexion care. So this is published for the good of all concerned—for your sake and for ours.

Soaps to "destroy" germs should be used only on advice of a physician. All soaps "remove" germs to a certain degree. No soap suitable for general use will "remove" germs any better than Palmolive.

The real difference in soaps is in their effect upon your skin. And good complexions are too precious for experiment. Remember this when you are tempted to touch your face with other than a good complexion soap.

In old days, women were told, "Use no soap on your face." For all soaps were too harsh. Then Palmolive came. A soap made of cosmetic oils. A soap made to be used lavishly on the skin.

Then note what happened. Women tried it and found amazingly good complexions. Palmolive became quickly the leading toilet soap of the world. In France, home of cosmetics, Palmolive is one of the two largest selling toilet soaps. French soaps, in France itself, are being supplanted by Palmolive.

That is because Palmolive Soap is a unique creation, based on 60 years of soap study. A scientific soap made for ONE purpose only: to foster good complexions.

Don't expect Palmolive results from ordinary soaps. Don't expect them from medicated soaps. Don't expect them from "jack-of-all-trades" soaps—soaps claimed "germ combatants," soaps claimed for facial use and fabric cleansing alike.

Palmolive is not the only fine toilet soap. We know of two others that compare favorably. But they cost you 25 cents, while Palmolive costs but 10 cents . . . no more than ordinary soaps. Enormous production brings you this modest price.

Wash, launder, cleanse with any soap you wish. But when beauty is at stake, take care. Use Palmolive, a soap you know is safe to use. It is nature's formula to "Keep That Schoolgirl Complexion."

THE PALMOLIVE COMPANY
(Del. Corp.)

French Women

Largely Vote "No" on French Soaps

In France, women smile at the age-old beauty bubble of "French soaps." Palmolive is today one of the two greatest selling toilet soaps in France. French soaps have been supplanted.

Parisian beauties are glad to pay almost twice as much for a cake of Palmolive as American women pay. And, in many cases, three times as much as for their own "French" soaps. Remember this when tempted by "Frenchy" claims for soaps.

Soap from Trees

The only oils in Palmolive Soap are the soothing beauty oils from the olive tree, the African palm and the coconut palm—and no other fats whatsoever.

That is why Palmolive Soap is the natural color that it is—for palm and olive oils, nothing else, give Palmolive its green color!

The only secret to Palmolive is its exclusive blend—and that is one of the world's priceless beauty secrets.

Note carefully the name and wrapper. Palmolive is never sold unwrapped.

FEARS FOR AMUNDSEN

Limited as was the amount of equipment that might be carried in his airplane it is most unfortunate that Roald Amundsen was not able to include therein a wireless outfit. This is accentuated by the fact that he has not as yet been heard from since his departure.

When the explorers of other days went into the far north they understood and so did the world that they were cutting all communication with the outside world. They might send back a message if conditions were right, but they might not be heard from until they again emerged from the polar regions. And there was no certainty that they would be able to come back.

Thus Amundsen's expedition is no different than those of old, except that it is being made through the air instead of over the ice. Conditions that are being encountered are those which others have met, but meeting them in the air is admittedly different than meeting them otherwise. Ordinarily there would be no concern over an arctic expedition a few days after it had left, but with Amundsen in his search for the pole by air enough time has elapsed for him to reach the goal and return.

Could he had brought a radio outfit into use he would have been able to allay all the fears and make unnecessary all thoughts of sending expeditions to some unknown point with thoughts of rescue. To set out for his recovery would be like looking for a needle in a haystack, and yet with the means at hand to communicate his plight, his advance or even his victory to the world over such a distance it is unfortunate that he could not have availed himself of it and eliminate the present worry. And yet Amundsen would probably say, "Why worry?"

MISREPRESENTATIVES

It is easily conceivable that every one may not look upon the question of the loans made by this country to other nations during and after the war in the same light as the administration which is responsible to the country for their collection. Thus far Uncle Sam has not pressed the European countries for the repayment of the loans but it has pointed out that there can be no cancellation and early arrangements for payments are desired.

Even the matter of repayment may not be covered by many on this side, but it is not what can be regarded as a display of good-judgment when such Americans while abroad take the opportunity to make public their sentiment along such lines and consider that they are called upon to offer apologies for the course which this government has taken as the result of careful and serious deliberation.

Thus the rebuke to such expressions which has been issued by the administration is no more than should be expected. Some of those to whom the reminder was directed have declared that henceforth they will adopt a policy of keeping their mouths shut, as it would have been much more to their credit had they promulgated such a policy without doing so much talking as to force the administration to remind them of their place.

Instead of trying to throw obstacles in the way of the plans of the government to bring about an adjustment of the debts, all Americans should be standing by their government, and it is surprising that some of the strong peace advocates are trying to apologize for government acts which are intended to inform European nations that this country cannot be relied upon to finance their wars or making other ones easier by cancelling the loans made for carrying on the war and meet postwar effects. Even though they do not represent the government such apologists really do much harm. They misrepresent American sentiments.

ST. LAWRENCE DEVELOPMENT

Even though the plan for the development of the St. Lawrence so that ocean going vessels may reach the great lakes has never got a real warm reception from Canada or from the east, the states of the middle west have not balked in their ambition by any indication of a cold shoulder. There is a belief in that section that the necessary outlay is warranted and that the deepened waterway would be of great benefit to all shippers in that region. The fact that the St. Lawrence is closed for months by ice does not dampen the ardor of the advocates.

Not only the states bordering on the lakes but others once or twice removed are lending their support to the idea. It having banded together for the purpose of boosting the project and presenting to the respective governments the strongest possible arguments. It is a case of looking out for themselves and though it may be an uphill struggle nothing is being allowed to stand in the way of enthusiastic advocacy.

Apparently it is going to require quite as powerful efforts in Canada as in this country to break down the opposition and to bring about the cooperation which is desired and needed. Such project is international since both countries are involved, and yet Canada sees quite as much reason for opposing such an undertaking as sections of this country do.

With more than a third of the states organized to permit ocean liners to reach lake ports there is no weak array of supporters. It discloses what kind of influence is going to be brought to bear upon this government in view of the fact that there has already been strong endorsement given to the idea. Its effect upon Canada is far less certain But it is quite evident that there is no abatement in the interest because no greater progress has been made up to this time, or because other developments are urged in its place.

FIELD MARSHAL FRENCH

It is only just over a decade since the opening of the great war, and yet many of the generals and leaders in that great struggle who outlived it have since passed away. The last of these is Field Marshal John French, who was sent in command of them to the continent at the opening.

He had a long and conspicuous military career and even though he had specialized in the cavalry, and was reluctant to believe that this branch of the army had been made so nearly needless by modern warfare, he met the conditions in a masterly manner which reached its climax at the battle of Ypres. He was a leader who had the highest confidence of his men and who proved himself quite as fully in control of the situation when making a retreat as when engaged in an offensive.

This was true also in the Boer war where the task was different, but where he was able to bring into play the cavalry upon which he had up to then devoted his entire attention and with marked success.

The appreciation of the ability of Field Marshal French is by no means confined to the British. That he should retire from active service at the front during the war does not alter that, while it can well be appreciated why, when the honor of an earldom was conferred upon him later, he chose to become the earl of Ypres. The story of the world was is bound to give him a conspicuous place among the big leaders, while his place in the history of British wars will be one of outstanding prominence.

SAFEGUARDING SCHOOLS

Cranston, R. I., was one of the cities where an investigation disclosed a number of schools where slight attention had been given to the provision of fire protection for the children. The conditions disclosed called forth much protest and a demand for the application of the needed remedy. It has required persistent efforts but results have been obtained to the extent of having contracts let for providing protection in two of the buildings. A contract has just been let for the placing of fireproof stairs in an eight room wooden structure where 300 primary grade children are housed.

In the construction of modern schoolhouses too much importance cannot be attached to the provision of fireproof construction. Much attention has been directed to the need of this protection since the Collinwood disaster, but there is plenty of opportunity for seeing that the old and substantial school buildings as well as the new ones are made as safe as possible.

In the cases of schoolhouse fires it is invariably from the heating plants that the trouble comes. This discloses the necessity of surrounding those with the much needed fireproof construction even if such a policy is not carried out throughout the building.

There are not many communities which today do not require the doors to open outward but along with this precaution it is most important that stairways should be given the protection that comes from fireproofing. Cranston he had to fight for this additional safeguard for the children of that city but in lieu of new buildings it is the least that could be done in the interest of safety. Cranston acts as if it recognized he wisdom of being safe rather than sorry.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Scrub with the grain of the wood for best results.

Put all the kitchen utensils to soak as emtied.

For safety's sake laders should be placed at an angle of 75 degrees.

It is wise to open the can of asparagus from the bottom. Then the stalks can be removed easily without breaking the tips.

Cut string beans lengthwise into splinters. Cut in this way it takes a shorter time to cook them.

When a cake in baking cracks in the middle, too much flour has been used.

To mend a hole in graniteware or tin pans mix putty with linseed oil until soft and apply it on the outside of the hole.

For baking bread and pastry have an oven that will in five minutes turn a piece of white paper a dark brown.

The mattress should be brushed and beaten with a flat rattan beater at least once a month.

Dip your knife into boiling water before cutting butter that is very hard and it goes through with perfect ease.

In washing hand-mirrors be careful that the water does not get in behind the glass as this will spoil the mirror.

Rub lard on the stains from automobile grease before attempting to launder the garment. Then the grease will be loosened and will wash out readily.

To prevent new shoes from pinching lay a cloth moistened in hot water across the place where the pressure is felt most, changing the cloth as soon as it becomes cool. This will make the leather shape itself to the feet.

If you want your kerosene lamps to give a good light, the wicks should be changed every three months at least. The old wicks, if cut into two-inch lengths and stored in a tin, make excellent firelighters.

If the roff should leak and your ceiling become stained, cover the stain with block magnesia. Rub the block over the spot until the stain is covered, then smooth over with tips of fingers. It works like magic.

TO CLARIFY FAT

Foods that have been fried sometimes leave a sediment and also a slight flavor of the food in the fat. To clarify the fat, pare and slice a raw potato into it and let the potato cook until it is richly browned, but not burned. This insures the removal of any flavor or odor that may be present. The fat should then be cooled slightly and strained through a fold of cheese cloth laid over a strainer. This will free it from any crumbs or sediment. Fat, if not burned and if properly taken care of after frying, can be used many times for frying, and after it has become dark or discolored, it may be made into soap. Fresh fat may be added to the used fat when it becomes necessary to increase the quantity. From two to three pounds of fat are required each time deep fat frying is to be done in a deep kettle. Various foods must remain in the fat different lengths of time because of the amount of surface exposed and the size of the portions. Uncooked foods take longer than cooked foods. If the temperature is right, the cooked mixtures will be done when a golden brown appears on the surface.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Late reading, sewing or studying is apt to make one sleepless.

A short walk before bedtime, brisk enough to cause fatigue, will induce sleep.

Green vegetables help to make the teeth and bones stronger by reason of their lime content. They are better when eaten young than when they get old and stringy, though careful cooking, preferably steaming, greatly improves vegetables.

When pimples are chronic, the advice of a skin specialist should be sought. It is unwise to neglect this condition, as it may develop into a serious malady. Needless to say, pimples should never be scratched open with the finger nails. To do so invites infection.

Cleanse neck and arms with warm water and pure soap, rinse well with warm water, then with cold. Give the elbows an extra scrubbing with a rough wash-cloth or brush. Apply a good cream to the neck and arms and massage lightly and firmly. Apply a bleach to the neck if yellow or darkened. Pat the skin food into the hollows of the neck.

HOME NURSING

It is difficult for the home nurse to have to contend with an invalid in the family who expects to coax her or command her to leave undone things that are not to her (or his) likings. But the nurse cannot be the judge of what is best, and she cannot permit the patient to be either. The doctor prescribes. If the nurse feels that any change in the instructions or the care is wise, she should call on the doctor and confer with him. This rule is one that both the professional and the home nurse should follow, though the latter is apt to find she needs her hands strengthened by more frequent advice than does the former. This is generally because the patient does not rely as absolutely on the judgment of the home nurse as on that of the professional.

THE FISH STORE

Be certain that the fish you buy is strictly fresh. Your nose is probably your best barometer in this, for the fish store, having an unsavory odor, is bound to contain something creating that atmosphere, and just on general principles should be avoided. The modern fish store is spotless and odorless.

FLAKES IN LIEU OF SOAP

If you have never used soap flakes for dishwashing try it some time and see if you don't like the quick suds they make better than that eternal "washing the soap" to make a lather. Very few flakes are required in the hot water and a box will last a long time.

KEEP IN THE JUICE

When roasting a piece of meat, it should be cooked quickly at first to sear the outside enough to hold in the juices. Then the temperature of the juices may be lowered to prevent burning.

AIRTIGHT CONTAINERS

Transfer the cereals from their pasteboard packages as soon as opened to either tin or glass containers that are airtight. They will keep fresh and safe from any bugs or mice.

DICTATES OF FASHION

The smartest type of dress for general wear this summer either for town or country is the so-called sports frock.

For country frocks the striped flannels and striped tub silks such as crepe de chine, silk broadcloth and silk radium—all of these wash like cottons and keep their colors much better—are very smart.

Crosswise designs are printed or woven in stripes or bands across the material and are made up to run across the figure.

Drawn silk threads are now being extensively used as trimmings for new summer headgear. Of them are made huge flowers which usually are poised on the side of the crown of the rather high wide brimmed Bankok straws.

The bride's lingerie is practically a mass of lace—Valenciennes, Calais, Venice, Irish or even Chantilly combined with satin, crepe de chine, georgette or radium, in the popular colors of daffodil, rose petal, flesh, beige or peach.

When the modern woman saunters forth these days she takes no chances that there is a loose button on her costume. For she cannot afford to lose one since it has become the mode to wear buttons decorated with real jewels.

As the days lengthen hat brims grow wider. One of the newest importations has a crown of crinoline straw and a four-inch brim of black lace. The trimming consists of a shaded rose of silk and velvet poised on the brim just above the left ear. The crown is both large and high.

While plain colored crepes and crepe de chines are still very good style and are given freshness by their new pastel colors the most interesting materials of the season are what are known as "the novelties"—borders, half-and half materials, crosswise designs, prints in geometrical figures, ferronniere, floral and dotted patterns.

WIDE BRIM EFFECTIVE

Nothing brings out the beauty of a picture like an appropriate frame. That is just what the new medium broad hats are, frames for charming faces. The brims, about three inches wide, curve around the face in front and almost disappear in the back. The crowns are rather high and round and the favorite trimming is a bunch of spring flowers drooping from the right side.

RETURN OF V NECKLINE

The V neckline is returning to favor for evening frocks. The necks of the new frocks are cut extremely low in a long point and a narrow ribbon or brooch is fastened about three inches from the point of the V to keep the dress from slipping off the shoulders entirely.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Turn colored garments inside out before hanging them out to dry.

Silk and pongees will iron beautifully if folded when dry and wrapped in the bundle with the sprinkled clothes. They seem to absorb just enough dampness to iron correctly.

Turn on your electric fan in the laundry the next rainy day and see how big a help it is in the drying of clothes.

Tar stains may be removed from cotton fabrics by covering the spot with butter and allowing it to remain for a few hours before washing.

Never soak soiled clothes in hot water over night. Soak them in cold water in which a handful of borax has been dissolved. Then in the morning when you are ready to wash use the hot water and suds. This method will remove all dirt and make the clothes beautifully white.

A LAUNDRY BUTTON BOX

A small box placed conveniently close to the laundry tubs is handy to receive any buttons that may come off during the washing process. So often buttons are difficult to match and this little box will keep the laundress from becoming careless with an apparently small item.

ABOUT THE HOUSE

There should be at least one comfortable chair in the child's room. This would come in handily when mother takes baby on her lap and reads the daily bedtime story.

Enameled furniture is best for the child's room because it can be cleaned easily. Since children give their things hard wear, and are more liable to soil and scratch them, a heavy glossy enamel, with some sort of design, in another color, will be found of greatest good.

RUBBER TREADS

A very neat-looking pair of cellar steps have treads of rubber on them. These treads can be purchased at the five and 10-cent store and not only look well, but help greatly in keeping the kitchen linoleum free from ashes and soot.

IF TOO STIFF

Of the peanut butter is to stiff to spread easily put it in a double boiler and let it heat through, adding a lump of sweet butter and stirring until the right consistency.

FOR HOT HANDLES

So many housewives use their good tea towels to remove hot pans from the stove, frequently causing ugly burns in them. Why do this when an iron holder can be purchased for 5 cents and answer the purpose so much more satifactorily?

CONCERNING WOMEN

The American Woman's Club in London has Lady Astor as one of its vice presidents.

Dallas has more than 75 women actively engaged in the real estate business.

An effort is being made in Pennsylvania to make 16 years the minimum legal age for girls to marry.

In Slovakia it is the custom to put straw in the baths of baby girls in order that they may grow long hair.

Dr. Livingstone's only surviving daughter is still a missionary at Chitambos. Her famous father died there in 1873.

Drawings 20,000 years old and depicting women dancers, found in a Spanish cave, are described as the oldest fashion plates in the world.

RENOVATING LEATHER CHAIRS

White of egg is splendid for renovating leather chairs when they begin to look shabby. Remove all dust and dirt from the chairs, then rub with a cloth dipped in the white of egg, which should be well beaten. When dry, rub well with soft, clean cloths, and the leather will look almost like new.

DUMPLINGS

When steaming dumplings a cloth should always be placed over the steamer before the lid is put on. This prevents the steam from condensing and dropping on the dumplings, and insures puffy pastry.

RECIPES

Banbury Tarts: One egg, beaten, one cup chopped (seeded) raisins, one-half lemon, grated rind, and juice, one soda cracker rolled to fine crumbs, two tablespoons sugar. Mix in order named. Roll flaky pastry one-third inch thick. Cut into four-inch squares. Place a spoonful of the Banbury mixture in the center of each square, fold over in a triangular shape, brush the edges with cold water and press together. Bake in a hot oven.

Grape Juice Punch: Pack one or more quarts of White Rock and an equal number of quart bottles of white grape juice in rock salt and crushed ice and let stand until thoroughly chilled. Just before serving pour the grape juice into a large chilled pitcher and add the White Rock, using equal parts of both and serve at once in thin tall glasses.

Don't your mother know that Cod Liver Oil will put pounds of good healthy flesh on your bones in just a few weeks?

Tell her every druggist has it in sugar-coated tablet form now so that you won't have to take the nasty, fishy-tasting oil that is apt to upset your delicate stomach.

Tell her that McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets are chock-full of vitalizing vitamines and are the greatest flesh producers and health builders she can find.

One sickly, thin kid, age 9, gained 13 pounds in 7 months.

She must ask Lee & Osgood Co., or any good druggist for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—60 tablets—60 cents—as pleasant to take as candy.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Memorial Day in Plainfield.

Mr. Editor:—Will you allow me space in your valuable paper to try and help rally veterans of all wars, their wives, daughters, sons and grandchildren to the duty that faces them in the town of Plainfield, May 30.

I remember the first Memorial day when but three soldiers' graves were decorated in Packerville,—George Tefft, John Peckham and Stephen Whitman, and in the entire town less than 30.

I also remember when a long line of brave old Civil war veterans filed into the various cemeteries, followed later on by a noble band of women carrying a beautiful American flag. Those veterans are, with half-a-dozen exceptions gone to the place where fighting for the American flag is over, but a band of those noble women have taken their places and desire to make Memorial day 1925 one long to be remembered.

You, son of a veteran, whether in the order or not; you, daughter of a veteran; you, poor old widows, God bless you, turn out next Saturday and help swell the band of genuine American patriots, who show by their presence that the brave men of 1861 and all other wars are remembered.

If it is in your power to do so, meet the ladies at Central Village at 3:30 D. S. T. If you live anywhere in the south part of town be sure and be at Packerville cemetery at 10 o'clock D. S. T. I'll be there to count the noses and trust there'll be the greatest number ever seen in that old cemetery on a Memorial day morning. Let's make it a hummer in size and patriotism.

From there we all go to Plainfield where more patriots reside and then to Moosup for final exercises.

I trust that every Spanish war veteran that possibly can will have his hand where I can see it, grasp it, and say "How'dy." May 30th.

C. B. Montgomery,

Oneco, May 23, 1925.

From Small Beginnings

Pertinax, Woodcutter's Son;

The old man, white-haired, imposing, with a fine, spiritual face that showed character and power, looked as calmly at the frantic mob that had crashed its way into his palace as though he were looking at guests whom he had invited. They were a rough, drunken, brutal lot, and they had come to murder. Pertinax knew it, and he knew there was no possible escape. He did not tremble; he stood calmly—a real man, one of the few real men in all the great Roman Empire. He reminded the ruffians that they owed a duty to their country. For a moment they stood ashamed. Then a burly soldier struck at him with a short sword. In a moment it was all over. Pertinax, the woodcutter's son, was dead. He was 67 years of age, and the year was A. D. 193.

In the forests of northwestern Italy Publius Pertinax, as a boy, had played about under the trees. He had carried wood for his father to make into charcoal; he had listened to the tales of the forest; he had known nothing of the great world except what he heard from passing soldiers.

"Boy, be honest, be virtuous, do right," the old woodcutter said to him. Those words stuck. The quick witted lad talked with various men; he picked up a bit of learning; he set out as a very humble teacher. The wars drew him into the legions, and the man who always did his duty became a centurion. From year to year he rose slowly and steadily, always scrupulously honest, always doing his full duty. He served as far to the east as Syria; as far to the west as Britain; as far to the north as the Danube and the Rhine, and as far south as Africa. He handled great sums of money; he governed vast expanses of territory, and controlled fleets of boats—all with perfect honesty and perfect patriotism.

Late in life, after years of the most faithful service, he lived in Rome as a Senator. He had no ambition for office, but the mob thrust upon him the office of Emperor. He took the position, as he had taken all the others, resolved to do his full duty. He lived simply, saved the public money, cut down waste and punished crime. He was merciful to those who were enslaved through the wars, and he restored captives to their own lands. Against him there arose all the vile and the criminal in the Empire, and in less than three months after he had been made Emperor they carried his head through the streets. The woodchopper's boy had kept the heart of the forest. All honor to him!

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Harry E. Hall, who is to become U. S. Commissioner of Immigration in succession to W. W. Husband, who has been promoted to the post of Assistant Secretary of Labor, has an intimate acquaintance with official life in Washington by reason of his long service as a representative in Congress. Mr. Hull was born in Iowa in 1864, moved to New York as a child and then returned to Iowa, which state has since been his home. Identifying himself quite early in life with the republican party he had full recognition from that body in the way of nominations for public office in his home town of Williamsburg. Thus, he was an alderman two years, mayor ten years, and postmaster of his town for thirteen years. In the early part of 1914 he was chosen at a special election to fill a vacancy in congress caused by the death of Representative Pepper of the Second Iowa district and continued as a member of the house until last March.

CHILD TRAINING

MAKE THE PUNISHMENT FIT THE OFFENSE

Edith Lochridge Reid

"I am sorry you were late to breakfast, for this is the third morning you have disappointed us." Mother looked very soberly yet sincerely at Frederick as she said this.

To the lad this seemed to strike a new note, this idea of someone being disappointed because he wasn't on time. But mother showed further wisdom by adding, "This evening you must go to bed fifteen minutes earlier than usual—"

"O, I don't want to," broke in Frederick in an injured tone. "Why do I have to do that?"

"Because you were fifteen minutes late to breakfast," replied Mother calmly, "and it must be you need that much extra sleep."

Frederick showed no further signs of resentment. How could he? Mother was fair, since he evidently didn't have time enough for sleep, the thing to do was to find some extra minutes where they could be spared.

Julia's mother was having a struggle getting her to wash her hands carefully. As her grandmother said, she gave them a "lick and a promise," and left crayola marks and mud all over the towel. So one day when all the family had fresh bathroom linen, Julia found a square of black sateen hanging on her hook but no nice clean towel. "You get it black and dirty at once anyway," explained Mother, "so we might as well start out with something that doesn't show the soil, for the rest of us dislike to look at those dingy marks on your white towel." Needless to say, Julia felt the penalty appropriate, and reformed speedily.

One must take care, however, to be really logical and to use judgment.

Elaine became angry with Baby Brother and slapped him. "That's naughty!" exclaimed Mother, irritated at the disturbance caused by the little daughter's act. Slapping Elaine on the very spot where the little girl had hurt Brother, the mother added, "How do you like it?" But Elaine saw no fairness in this act because she had not committed the same fault for which she had slapped her brother, and she retorted impudently, "If it's naughty what makes you do it?"

In this case nothing was gained except growing indignation on both sides; the rebuke was not beneficial in results, nor did it contribute to proper character building.

A more understanding mother might have disciplined Elaine by depriving her for the time, of some privilege which she generally enjoyed by virtue of being older and wiser than Brother.

Jimmy was careless and lost his new cap. "Well, when a boy loses his new cap he must wear his ragged one," says Mother. Of course she was a little ashamed to have her son go down the street looking like a ragamuffin and he was a little chagrined himself, but this was the logical punishment.

So with every offense it is always possible to find a punishment to fit and scarcely ever does a child go punished rebel—he feels it is a square deal.

The receiver may be as bad as the thief, but the loser feels worse than both.

Helpful Hair Hints

A leading hair dresser says—"I have found nothing as good as Parisian Sage to make the hair wavy, soft and lustrous and make it grow abundant and beautiful." Remember the name—Parisian Sage—best for the hair and scalp. It's guaranteed. Lee and Osgood and all druggists sell it.

WRINKLES, LINES OR CROWS-FEET

Lemon Juice Tightens Skin

Squeeze the juice of two lemons in a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents, shake well and you have the very mildest antiwrinkle lotion to tighten relaxed skin erase fine lines and eradicate crows-feet.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion into the skin at night. By morning most of the tell-tale wrinkles, tired lines and crows-feet are smoothed out, giving a more youthful contour to cheeks, chin, throat. It leaves the skin velvety soft, clear and fresh.

Beauty experts use this astringent lotion for enlarged pores, also to bleach and whiten sallow, tanned skin.

Mix this harmless lotion yourself since it acts best immediately after prepared.

APPEALS FROM STONINGTON HEALTH OFFICER'S ORDER

Louis Ballestracci, of Mystic, by his attorney, Benjamin H. Hewitt, has taken an appeal from the order of Dr. C. F. Congdon, health officer of the town of Stonington, to abate the so-called public nuisance in the shape of a sewer from his house, emptying into the Mystic river. A hearing will be held before County Health Officer Hibberd R. Norman Tuesday regarding the case.

For some time past Dr. Congdon has felt that the sewers emptying into the river were unsanitary and a source of pollution to the waters, thus killing off the fish which in former years used to frequent the river and he has been working to have it stopped.

This particular sewer, however, has been emptying into the Mystic river for at least a quarter of a century as have many others.

The mills, also, which are situated near the river and empty their refuse, wash waters and dyes into it will also be affected.

SALVATION ARMY PREPARES FOR BUDGET CAMPAIGN ON TUESDAY

A union meeting of a number of the Norwich churches held Sunday evening at the Central Baptist church heralded the Salvation Army $5,000 campaign which is to open Tuesday morning. The early part of the service was led by Rev. Edwid A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church, and prayer was offered by the Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church, and prayer was offered by Rev. Edward C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church. Just before turning the service over to Earl W. Taggart, general chairman of the campaign workers, Rev. Dr. Pitt, extended a hearty welcome to the Salvation Army. Dr. Pitt said he was glad to welcome the Salvation Army and to aid it in furthering its work. He then introduced General Chairman Taggart, who conducted the remainder of the service.

It is an honor and a pleasure to welcome you here tonight and to launch this campaign for $5,000 said Mr. Taggart. We feel the people should give and give freely. The people of Norwich showed their appreciation of the Salvation Army two years ago when the fund for the Salvation Army home on Cliff street was so quickly raised. Mr. Taggart stated that Major Thomas Seaver and his staff of Salvation Army workers of Hartford were present and he introduced Major Seaver who in turn announced that Adjutant Charles Mehling, one of his staff, would favor the congregation with a trombone solo. Adjutant Mehling, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Mehling, played A Perfect Day. Adjutant and Mrs. Mehling have charge of the Salvation Army work among the young people of southern New England.

Chairman Taggart then presented Mayor Milo R. Waters. Mayor Waters said it was the third time he had had the privilege of speaking at the Central Baptist church to ask the people of Norwich to help the Salvation Army. I am going to ask you to put this campaign across in one day, said the mayor. This is a cold business matter We have the Salvation Army, here, they are doing the work and we must support them. Mayor Waters took occasion to pay tribute to Commandant and Mrs. E. W. Wilbur for their splendid record of service in Norwich and expressed regret that they are so soon to leave Norwich.

Commandant Wilbur followed Mayor Waters. The commandant told of the time he first came to Norwich and how the pastor of the Central church and prominent citizens of Norwich aided him in getting his work here started. The commandant spoke of Mrs. Wilbur's failing health which has forced her to seek needed rest. Mrs. Wilbur has made two-thirds of my success, said Commandant Wilbur. We are not leaving because of any loss of interest in Norwich. I want to thank you people for all you have done for us. Although we are leaving Norwich our hearts and our interest will be here.

The Salvation Army quartette, all members of Major Seaver's staff, Captain Sam Pearce, baritone horn, Envoy Mildred McCabe, cornet, Envoy William Hall, cornet, and Adjutant Charles Mehling, were heard in a finely rendered selection. In the Gloaming, after which Max Hanover in a brief address, appealed to the public for hearty support of the campaign. The Salvation Army is a blessing to humanity, he said. Its foundation is based on religious truth. It is enlisted in the service of God and man. Its principles are broadminded and it bends all of its energy to save unfortunate and erring human beings. The Salvation Army does not forsake any soul, no matter how far it has fallen.

The Salvation Army has a right to and deserves the help of every man no matter what his denomination, said Mr. Hanover in closing.

Mrs. Mehling, accompanied at the piano by Adjutant Mehling, sang How Sweet the Name of Jesus Sounds after which Major Seaver gave the address of the evening. We want to thank you for all you have done in the past and for what you are going to do in this campaign, said the major. The speaker went on to tell of the birth of the Salvation Army in London, when Gen. Booth borrowed a soap box and placing it in front of a saloon held the first open air meeting of the Army. During all those years the Salvation Army has continued to hold its open air services, the major said. He said that if the Salvation Army never held an indoor service he felt that the work of the Army in its outdoor services would be worthwhile. Many people have been brought to God by the open air services. As an example of what kind of work the Salvation Army does the major cited several instances, including of the rescue of a local woman from a life of shame. In closing Major Seaver said: "We trust that you are going to put over our campaign for $5,000, that the work here may continue."

A solo by Mrs. Mehling, accompanied by Adjutant Mehling and the benediction by Rev. Dr. Pitt, brought the meeting to a close. This (Monday) evening at 6.15 o'clock there is to be a get-together meeting and supper for the campaign workers at the Central Baptist church to complete the final arrangements for the campaign which is to open Tuesday morning and as Chairman Taggart said, "will end Tuesday night." After the service on Sunday evening announcement was made that Major Seaver and the instrumental quartette had decided to remain in Norwich to be present at the campaign supper.

ANNUAL MAY RECEPTION BY ST. MARY'S SOCIETIES

Three societies of St. Mary's Memorial parish held their annual May day reception and profession of new members at the church Sunday evening at 7.30. A fair sized congregation was present on the rainy evening when the members of the three societies came into the church to the music of a march played by Organist Henry J. LaFontaine, the organizations participating being the Young Ladies' Sodality, Maidens of the Sacred Heart, and the Immaculate Conception.

At the opening of the ceremonies, the statue of the Blessed Virgin was crowned by the Sodality president, Miss Margaret Counihan, assisted by Miss Mollie Driscoll and Miss Margaret Condon, while the society rendered the Crowning Hymn. Rev. William A. Keefe, the pastor who was in general charge of the ceremonies offered the rosary and litany and other special prayers.

The new members for the three societies then went to the altar railing to make their pledge and receive their medals, the act of consecration being read by Miss Alice White. The gain in the society's membership was Young Ladies Sodality 35, Maidens of the Sacred Heart, 30, and Immaculate Conception 20.

The sermon was by Father Keefe whose discourse treated of Mary, and the beauty and nobility of her character.

Benediction of the blessed sacrament given by Father Keefe, closed the services.

The officers of the Young Ladies Sodality are directress, Sister Mary J. Roberts; president, Miss Margaret C. Counihan; vice president, Miss Mollie Driscoll; secretary, Miss Margaret Condon; treasurer, Miss Clavie Coughlin.

The societies practice monthly holy communion and are a power for much good in all parish endeavors.

CONFIRMATION REUNION IS LARGELY ATTENDED

A confirmation reunion, which was largely attended, was held at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the First Evangelical church on McKinley avenue where the sermon of the day was delivered in English by Rev. H. O. Weber of South Manchester, and a short address in German was given by the pastor of the church, Rev. Herman Hunzinger. Several selections were rendered by the choir.

After the service in the church auditorium a banquet was given in the basement at which music was furnished by an orchestra and there was an address by Miss Elizabeth Steiner, president of the Luther League.

Miss Alma Bauck of Waterbury, the daughter of a former pastor of the church, gave an interesting report of the state Luther League and Rev. Mr. Weber gave a brief talk in German.

The musical part of the programme included solos by Frank Steinke, a group of songs by Margaret Hunsinger, Anna Retkowski, Erica Werth and Marion Decker, a duet by Miss Olga Zachas and Mrs. Bruno Weinert, solo with zither accompaniment by Miss Friedman, and piano duet by Miss Margaret Seidel and Miss Freda Phillips.

Flowers for the decorations were furnished by Frederick Krohn and were attractively arranged by the girls of the church.

Cradle Role Party Held

The annual cradle role party of the United Congregational church was held at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the Community house with an attendance of about 85 mothers and babies. Games for the children were followed by refreshments, ice cream and cookies being served. Every child was made happy by the gift of a balloon.

Mrs. A. J. Sinay, who was in charge was assisted by Mrs. Phillip Roberts, Mrs. May Young, Mrs. Edwin Felt, Mrs. George Gifford, Miss Marian Beebe and Miss Lois Latimer.

It's unwise to trust your life in the hand of a physician who makes a specialty of postmortems.

SMALLPOX CASE IS FREED FROM ISOLATION

Mrs. Emma Cavanaugh of 440 Asylum street, who was quarantined with a case of smallpox four weeks ago, when it was first recognized although it had existed for a week before that time, has been freed from isolation by Dr. E. J. Brophy, the city health officer. There were about 23 persons exposed but fortunately no new cases developed.

Dr. Knowlton of the state department of health and Dr. Brophy investigated and succeeded in isolating and vaccinating all who had been exposed. The only person involved in the case who had not been previously vaccinated was the woman who had the disease. She had never been vaccinated, but her husband, who took care of her and remained in the house with her for four weeks, had been vaccinated four times. He remained well all through his attendance upon his sick wife. All those who came into contact with the patient were vaccinated as soon as the nature of the illness was known, but as all of them had been vaccinated years ago, they did not develop any smallpox cases. The public health nurses who gave Mrs. Cavanaugh the needed help during her first week of illness did not develop any symptoms of the disease.

The only distressing feature of the case, it is stated, was that the patient had great difficulty in securing medical attendance. When the doctor who reported the case found that it was smallpox, he refused to attend her any longer, it is reported on good authority and when her family doctor was called, he flatly declined to come, according to the patient's statement. When the city health officer heard of the situation, he gave his services in treatment until the woman recovered.

Selectman William S. Murray aided in a very thorough manner and took care of all the wants of those who were compelled to remain from work.

Two policemen, Officer Sharvan and Crary, were kept on guard duty at the home of Mrs. Cavanaugh, one for days and one for nights, and they did their work in a manner worthy of the traditions of the police department. They were courteous but firm in their duty.

It is considered that Norwich was indeed fortunate to escape with only the original case.

ADDRESS UPON LINCOLN FOR MEMORIAL SUNDAY

"Important Way Marks in the Career of a Great Patriot" was the subject of the address delivered Sunday morning by Rev. C. H. Ricketts at the Greeneville Congregational church for the Memorial Sunday service which was attended by the Grand Army Post, the Woman's Relief Corps, the Sons and Daughters of Veterans, and the American Legion. This was the first time that the Legion has joined in the Sunday Memorial service.

The pastor pointed out significant and inspiring leadings in the life of Abraham Lincoln in the course of his address, which was listened to with the greatest appreciation by the big congregation that filled the church. Two solos, appropriate to the day were rendered in fine voice by Walter McNeely.

BADLY CUT IN FACE WHEN AUTOMOBILE UPSETS

John Macione of 79 Thames street had two bad cuts in his face sewed up at police headquarters Sunday night by Dr. W. T. Driscoll when the man was brought there after an automobile accident below Hallville on the Norwich - Westerly highway.

Macione said that he was riding in a machine driven by his brother-in-law, James D'Ange, and that the car upset. The driver was not hurt but Macione received deep cuts from broken glass, one alongside his nose and the other over one eye. A passing autoist brought the injured man to this city but the driver remained by the wrecked machine.

It sometimes happens that when a man is really known by the company he keeps she prefers to be a sister to him.

HELD ACORN INSTITUTE AT TAFTVILLE CHURCH

The Acorn Institute of the Eastern District of the Connecticut Society of Christian Endeavor was opened at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the Taftville Congregational church with the pastor, Rev. E. G. Crewdis, presiding and conducting the devotional service. The welcome was extended by Robert Schmidt, president of the Taftville Christian Endeavor Union.

At 2.30 the following simultaneous conferences were held: Union Organization, Extension and Publicity, H. W. Hicks, state executive secretary. Personal Equalization in Missions and Society Activities, John S. Marsh, state missionary superintendent. Juniors and Intermediates in Society, Church and Community, Delsie E. Cole, state junior superintendent.

Another series of conferences at 3.30 included the following: Union Junior and Intermediate Departments, Delsie E. Cole. Union Promotion of Missions and Intermediates, John S. Marsh.

C. C. HAMILTON

A recreation hour, with games in charge of Mr. Hicks, was carried out at 4 o'clock and was followed by simultaneous conferences as follows: Union Missionary Activities, John S. Marsh. Missionary Work for Juniors and Intermediates, Delsie E. Cole. Juniors and Intermediates and the Union, H. W. Hicks.

The banquet hour came at 6 o'clock and was followed by the evening service in charge of C. S. Bailey of New London. This opened with a devotional service conducted by Rev. D. A. Pitt of the Central Baptist church.

The Christian Endeavor World Campaign was presented by Mr. Hicks, who also showed many stereoptican slides on the coming summer school for Connecticut Christian Endeavors at Storrs on August 10-17 the expenses for the week being $15.50. These were followed by pictures of some of the scenery and things to be seen on the trip to the thirtieth International C. E. convention which is to be held in Portland, Oregon in July.

In his address upon Putting An End to C. E., Clarence C. Hamilton of Boston, publicity manager of the

HERBERT WINSLOW HICKS

United C. E., said that there has been no time when young people were more alive and alert in their churches and lives than now. There have been many attempts to end C. E. for diverting and ignoring the organization, but those at the Institute can end C. E. quicker by failing to realize the things essential in the C. E. pledge and programme and ignoring the object of the organization. C. E. can be more useful in the local church. It should teach the young people public prayer and testimony and to stand on their feet and talk of God and to God. It should be related to church by the educational programme. If the young people fail to carry the spirit of Endeavor in these lines they will end C. E., he said.

The concluding session of the institute was held Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock with Miss Jessie Hyde of Norwich Town presiding and a good attendance though the afternoon was rainy. William G. Park of Hanover led the song service and Rev Gurdon F. Bailey of Norwich Town conducted the devotional service.

In opening the General Conference of questions and answers, Mr. Hamilton spoke of the 4,000,000 members of C. E. societies of 87 denominations in 80,000 societies that form a chain of fellowship that encircles the earth.

The subject of his address Sunday afternoon was the Second Mile.

Are we only first mile Christians or are we second milers, who will go a little further and do the unusual, he said. There is a difference between the first and second mile Christians in the churches today. The average church today is manned by only fourteen of its membership. The purpose of this institute is to send back to the local church, young people who have a purpose to go the second mile into enlarged service for the church and community. Who have a larger vision, better understanding of the problems in the local church and the needs of the young people of the community. Who will also radiate the Christian spirit and bring people into the kingdom by a worthwhile programme of C. E. These young people should arouse the endeavors in the local church to a real worthwhile task in the church. Many of us are only first relations to Jesus Christ, interested in the mechanical work of the church giving time and energy without coming into the second mile relation with Christ. Mr. Hamilton urged those present to come into the right relation with God.

Purse Rode On Trolley Car Steps

A woman passenger on a late trolley trip on the Franklin street line Saturday night had the unusual good fortune to recover her bag and purse after these articles had ridden to Yantic and back on the step of one of the one-man cars. After she had left the car at Broad street she missed her bag containing her purse but didn't know where she had lost it.

When the car reached Franklin square again after its trip to Yantic, the starter found the purse on the step and it was restored to its owner.

TAX ANALYSIS COMMITTEE GIVES UNANIMOUS REPORT

A unanimous report by the tax analysis committee was handed to the selectmen Saturday, containing the recommendations on the plan for carrying out an equitable tax assessment for Norwich. The report is presented to the selectmen in order that a special town meeting may be called to take action on the recommendations made.

The distinctive difference in this report from the former majority and minority reports that had been reached by the committee consist in providing $2,500 for equipment and for travelling expenses of the assessors in making the salary of each assessor $1,800 and in authorizing them to employ clerical assistance at a cost not to exceed $125 per month.

The present salary of the assessors is $1,200 with an additional $300 for the member who acts as clerk.

The tax analysis committee report given to the selectmen Saturday embodies the same statement that was given in the other report showing what had been done in the way of meetings and conferences. It concludes as follows with the new recommendations:

As the result of these conferences your committee would be respectfully to submit:

1.—That for the present time there is a very great need of a revaluation of the taxable property in the town of Norwich for the purpose of equalization.

2.—That the board of assessors be directed to make a revaluation of all the taxable property in the town of Norwich, the work to be started now and carried out as expeditiously as possible.

3.—That the sum of $2,500 be appropriated for the purchase of the necessary equipment for carrying out the revaluation and installing a system and traveling expenses of the board of assessors.

4.—That the vote passed at the last regular town meeting, relating to the salary of the assessors, be rescinded.

5.—That the salary of the assessors be $1,800 per year each, said salary to date from June 1, 1925.

6.—That the board of assessors be empowered to employ clerical assistance at a cost not to exceed $125 per month.

7.—That the hours of the board of assessors and the clerk shall conform to the hours that obtain in the other town offices.

The report is signed by the fifteen members of the committee as follows: James L. Case, chairman, John F. Rogers, F. R. Ricketson, Charles D. Noyes, Charles R. Butts, Arad R. Manning, Michael J. Curran, Albert Boardman, Herbert M. Lercu, Daniel T. Shea, Robert McNeely, Casper K. Bailey, Grosvanor Ely, Samuel Goldberg, Shepard B. Palmer.

CITY WATER SUPPLY RANK WITH CHLORINE

The city water Sunday was so rank with chlorine that few drank it if they could avoid it. Restaurant patrons in the center of the city turned up their noses in disgust when given a glass of water and the proprietors were obliged to secure water from other sources to offer to their customers.

President John J. Corkery of the water department put in a busy time answering one complaint after another that came to him over the telephone. Most people got the idea that something must have happened to the machinery at the chlorinating plants, but Mr. Corkery stated that nothing like that had occurred. The trouble he said was through an over-impregnation of the water with chlorine because of the slow flow through the pipes over Saturday afternoon and night and Sunday when there is the least water used of any period in the week. Mr. Corkery said they were using the regular quantity of chlorine that is prescribed by the state health department and that he believed the rank taste would pass off as soon as the normal flow through the pipes began again. About five pounds of chlorine is used to a million gallons of water.

Sunday must have made a record for the least city water used in a day in Norwich for a long time, as the complaint was widespread and the use of the water for any purpose was avoided as much as possible.

Throughout the afternoon and late into the evening Sunday the Falls spring on Yantic street was besieged by hundreds of people with bottles, jars and cans, securing supplies of water for drinking purposes. At one time during the evening there was a waiting line 8ne at the spring. Local soft drink stores experienced an unusual sale of bottled drinks, people evidently preferring gingerale and grape juice to the city water.

NEW YORK SUFFERING FROM LACK OF BASIC LOVE

New York, May 24—The term that New Yorkers have for their home town —"I'll ole New York"—does not signify their affection for their city but is merely "the gurgle of the beneficiaries of bootleggers" Rabbi Stephen S. Wise said today in a sermon at Carnegie hall on "What's Wrong With New York."

Rabbi Wise diagnosed the city's ills as too much party politics, acute Hyianism, and the lack of a basic love for the city in the hearts of her people.

CONN. AGGIES WIN CLOSE GAME FROM NEW HAMPSHIRE STATERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

Storrs, May 24.—In a game that was called in the eighth because of rain, here yesterday, the Connecticut Aggies came from behind to defeat the University of New Hampshire by a score of 7-6. It was an uphill battle for the Aggies, who trailed in the rear until the fifth inning, when they fell on Garvin for five hits and five runs, tying the score. Two more Connecticut tallies in the next inning put the game on ice for the State College team.

Nanfeldt started on the mound for Connecticut but was replaced by Wells in the fifth. It was in this inning that O'Connor lifted one over the tennis courts for a home run, one of the longest clouts seen here this year. There was no one on base at the time.

New Hampshire scored first, when in the second inning Jenkins went from first to home on a wild heave over the base. A misinterpretation of the ground rules on the part of the Connecticut fielders, who thought the runner could take but one base, was responsible for this.

In the fourth, Jenkins led off for New Hampshire with a triple. Cambell walked, and Clark singled, scoring Jenkins. French filed out to Wardie, but Cambell scored while an attempt was being made to double up on Clark at first. The Granite Staters scored two more runs in the next frame, when after O'Connor had driven out his circuit clout, Nicora laid down a perfect bunt, took second on a wild throw, and scored on Jenkins' single.

Connecticut staged a timely rally in their half of the inning, making five runs and tying the score. Garvin, the New Hampshire twirler, held the Aggies in check at every turn up to this point, but the team found him easy in this inning. With one away, Seymour sent a line drive out to the left fielder, who misjudged it, allowing Seymour to take second and then third on slow handling of the ball. Gilbert, next man up, was walked. Wells came through with a single to center field that scored Seymour and sent Gilbert to third. Captain Ahern followed with another single, scoring Gilbert and sending Wells to third. Schofield was thrown out at first, but Makofski tripled, scoring Wells and Ahern. O'Brien drove out another triple, scoring Makofski and tying the score. O'Brien was caught trying to steal home, retiring the side.

Three New Hampshire errors in the fifth inning enabled the Aggies to score two more runs and put the game on ice. Wardie was safe on Cambell's error. Tiernan was thrown out at first, Wardie going to second. Seymour lifted a high fly to right field, which was misjudged and dropped by O'Connor, allowing Wardie to score and Seymour to take second. Gilbert was safe on an error of the second baseman, Seymour scoring the Aggies' seventh run.

There was no further scoring, and in the ninth inning, when New Hampshire had one away and a man on base, the game was called because of a heavy downpour of rain. The score:
